

Enhancing Wellness: Reflections of Pete Radatti's June 2024 Radionics Class in Peetz, Colorado

By Vernon Nicolas

In April this year, I lost feeling in most of my right arm and my dominant hand. A dull, constant pain ran from my neck and back through my right arm and fingers, causing many sleepless nights and loss of grip strength. Physician prescribed painkillers did nothing to eliminate the discomfort. Although chiropractic adjustments resulted in flexibility improvements, the pain I felt only decreased slightly.

I was fortunate that Pete Radatti was scheduled to teach his one and only in-person workshop this year in early June. I was hoping Pete's class could help me find answers I couldn't find elsewhere to eliminate this pain. As a Radionics practitioner, I've personally experienced incredible outcomes applying Radionics for others. However, I was not having success using Radionics to restore the feeling in my own hand. I travelled to Peetz, Colorado with an open-mind and the hope I'd leave pain-free with newfound wisdom.

Reflecting on Pete's workshop, one of the most powerful practices I learned was the programming of Radionic rates, reagents, intentions, and operating instructions into simple plastic cards. While these cards innocuously look like credit cards or security badges, these cards allow any Radionic operator to achieve results like a master practitioner. The cards themselves are inexpensive, easy to store and organize, and portable. Because carbon-based materials can hold information, according to Pete, these cards can become very powerful when potentized via a Radionics instrument. The workshop gave me the confidence and inspiration to create new programs of my own, which I have been using to help others achieve meaningful shifts.

Pete's workshop also gave me exposure to the operation of BASE-10 Radionic instruments. While I only knew how to use Hieronymus instruments, I gained the foundational skills to use a BASE-10 machine. I quickly realized that operating a Hieronymus and BASE-10 instrument can both get someone from Point A to Point B very well. It's not unlike test-driving different makes and models of cars, it's just the user experience that differs. I could feel the thoughtfulness, care, and power built into these BASE-10 instruments by their manufacturers - a reflection of their elevated consciousness.

One of my favorite insights from Pete is that Radionics is a forgiving modality. If the intention is there, the actual operation of the instrument doesn't have to be perfect. The desired outcome will still occur. The fact that imperfect operation can still produce desired results means that we are the true radionics instruments. This underscores how Radionics grants us the ultimate freedom because it's our consciousness that matters most. Radionics is just as much about self-discovery and self-realization of how infinitely powerful we humans can be, and the instrument is simply a means to that end.

When attending in-person classes, I often wonder if there's a field effect occurring when in the physical presence of a teacher and other students. I always absorb the information more deeply during a class than just reading a book. Through the years, I've discovered that Radionics is not a subject that can easily be absorbed intellectually. It helps to be hands-on, under the guidance of master practitioners, to have the tactile and physical experiences that accompany such a whole-brain activity.

Perhaps there is a shared transmission of information that seeps into the subconscious to all class attendees. Pete indicated that he had been broadcasting Radionics programs in the background to support a positive learning environment. I can only assume this was a special bonus for attending.

Upon returning home, I started creating my own programs for others. I was excited to learn how the recipients of my broadcasts were reporting profound shifts on a consistent basis. I also created a program for myself to eliminate the pain and numbness in my right arm and hand. In less than a week, the pain gradually disappeared. It's as if my Radionics practice has been elevated to a new level. Radionics is truly energy made real!

The August members-only USPA Masterclass with Pete features learnings that will benefit any Radionics practitioner seeking to enhance the wellness of themselves or others. These are the types of learnings that can't be fully absorbed all in one setting, as every exposure yields new and deeper insights. The wisdom Pete intends to share with the USPA community is an incredible gift. I hope the community can advance these learnings to further enhance wellness and push the boundaries of what we know about reality.

On my way to Peetz, Colorado, the tire on my rental car blew out, leaving me stranded on a rural, interstate highway for 4+ hours before help arrived. Despite the setback in fading daylight, I somehow found a way to Peetz safely and on time. With August's online USPA Masterclass, you wouldn't have to leave home and risk a blown tire. However, you might be leaving Pete's Masterclass with a blown mind instead.
