Section I - What's Happening Soon:

September 21, 2024 USPA Free Masterclass #56.

Ed Kelly will present: "A Fall Update from KRT- Kelly Research Technologies"

Ed Wrote:

"At KRT, we are always striving to better fulfill the three pillars of our mission, which is to deliver quality equipment, information, and training to the radionics community.

In this update I will share the new resources and opportunities in our development pipeline in all three areas, including:

- Introduction of our first brand-new radionics instrument since the launch of the Replicator in 2010
- Publication of our first book through Amazon
- New format for the 10th Annual KRT Spring Classic workshop in Atlanta"

Section II SPONSOR'S SCENE

This is the Third Masterclass sponsored by Neddy Ludwig

Wow! Thank You Neddy!!!

You are an inspiration.

YES!

(Thanks to sponsors like Neddy)

USPA FREE Masterclasses ARE BACK!

WHY DO WE ASK FOR SPONSORS?

- To Present these Masterclasses, USPA Pays for its Website, (with FileZilla) Business Zoom, and MailChimp
- USPA must continually upgrade computer programs to record, render, and upload videos and to maintain our digital Video library.
- We encourage those who can, to sponsor a Masterclass.

Our sponsors, in return,

- Have their business or services recognized in our emails, and newsletters.
- They are also offered the option to present live (or pre-recorded) before our masterclass audience.

To learn about the levels and perks of being a sponsor lick the box below.

What do Sponsors have to do?

Then email Scott! He'll make the process easy.

Section IV In Case You Missed This Members' Only Event

August 17, 2024, Pete Radatti presented a four-hour workshop, "Using Radionics to Enhance Wellness: Toxin Removal, Immune System Balancing and More."

Pete covered the following topics:

- 1) What is a witness and what is media and things you can do with it.
- 2) Compression of pages of rates into one rate.
- 3) Experiences using Radionics Commands
- 4) Why you should always use Spooky2 (Rife) via Radionics.
- 5) Making smart radionics programs using IF
- 6) New to Old
- 7) Audio to Radionics
- 8) Emotional Radionics
- 9) Virtual Radionics

About Pete

Pete has done many things in his life and he is not done living! He worked on the project to connect the first supercomputer to the ARPANET which later became the Internet. He also worked in the space program where he learned he had a talent for inventing things and writing. He worked on the project to connect NOAA data online which improved weather forecasting and worked on the Strategic Defense Initiative Systems Integration Data Center (Star Wars). In addition to writing about Radionics he writes about computer security, dietary issues and other topics of interest to him. Pete started the companies CyberSoft Operating Corporation and Radatti Foods, LLC.

<http://www.radatti.com/books/>

There have been many who asked, and yes, Pete's presentation was recorded and is available in our Member's Tab.

This was one of our best attended events. Many people became members so they could attend. USPA now has the highest number of members in decades!! Our email list is now at a peak also; our readership has now topped a 3500 mark!

Alan Glicker, a long-time member sent Scott an email, (with permission to use it here.)

He said,

"Hi Scott,

I just wanted to thank .... the USPA team for hosting yesterday's presentation with Pete Radatti. I've read and enjoyed all four of Pete's Radionics books but having him speak live and answer questions was invaluable. His work is advancing so quickly that the books just can't keep up with it. I really appreciate the fact that the USPA continues to give people at Pete's level a forum to present their latest research to people like me.

Thank you,

Alan Glicker

USPA Members – Did you miss our Members Only Special Events?

If you are a member in good standing and missed the Members Only special events on April 13th, you can view the recordings of the Members' Only events on the Members tab on our website.

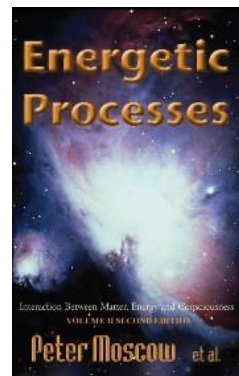

Scroll down to the category "Special Events Videos" and you will see that the business meeting is one video and Dannion Brinkley's presentation, "How the afterlife reinforces the nature of scalar waves...and why everyone should be a USPA member" is another. The panel discussion from July is now in that category also! Pete Radatti's event has also been posted. Recordings of these events are not for sale, and only viewable in the Members tab on the website.

Section V – ENERGETIC PROCESSES II Second Edition is IN PRINT

Priced the same as Energetic Processes I – $29.00 includes shipping for continental United States.

1. Now available in our online shop – We had such a great response; we've refilled stock three times!

Dan Taylor Shares an Article from Research Gate by Stephen Schwartz of the California Institute for Human Sciences

“A Reality Based on Consciousness: Abstract”

"This paper addresses the central idea of nonlocal consciousness: that all life is interconnected and interdependent, that we are part of a matrix of life, but even more fundamentally than spacetime itself arises from consciousness, not consciousness from spacetime.

It is not a new idea. The excavation of burials dating to the Neolithic ( $\approx 10,200-2,000$  BCE) has revealed that early humans had a sense of spirituality and some concept about the nature of human consciousness. It discusses the bargain made between the Roman Church, and the emerging discipline of science in the 16th century, one taking consciousness (packaged as “spirit”), the other spacetime, and how this led to physicalism taking root as a world view and becoming the prevailing materialist paradigm.

It describes the emergence of a new paradigm that incorporates consciousness and lays out the four relevant descriptors helping to define what this new paradigm will look like. They are: • Only certain aspects of the mind are the result of physiologic processes. • Consciousness is causal, and physical reality is its manifestation. • All consciousnesses, regardless of their physical manifestations, are part of a network of life which they both inform and influence and are informed and influenced by; there is a passage back and forth between the individual and the collective. • Some aspects of consciousness are not limited by the time/space continuum and do not originate entirely within an organism’s neuroanatomy. "

September is Science Month! These scientists were all born in September

Stephen Jay Gould (September 10, 1941) was an American paleontologist, evolutionary biologist, and historian of science. His most important contribution in the area evolutionary science is the idea of punctuated equilibrium. Gould proposed that evolution does not happen by constant changes through vast amounts of time like Darwin proposed but that from time to time a sudden change will happen that provoked change in response. He described several examples like the Cambrian explosion where after an extinction event, lots of new life forms arise or the rise of the mammals after the cretaceous extinction of the dinosaurs. These sudden changes will follow by long time of constancy where almost no major evolutionary changes will happen. Gould was a prolific writer of science and specifically evolutionary books aimed to popularize evolutionary thought.

Irène Curie (September 12, 1897) was a French physicist and the daughter of the Nobel Prize winners Pierre and Marie Curie. She started as her mother’s assistant and eventually become a scientist herself. She won the Nobel Prize for Chemistry in 1935 along with her husband for artificially producing isotopes. Their research included the bombardment of chemical compounds with alpha particles to artificially produce radioactive 9/21/24, 9:11 AM Scientists Born in September - the owl <https://www.theowletscience.org/scientists-born-in-september-2/> 1/3 compounds of chemicals normally not radioactive. Her work on the action of neutrons on heavy elements was the seed for the investigation and discovery of uranium fission. She was a commissioner for atomic energy and oversaw the construction of the center for nuclear physics that housed a synchro-cyclotron in Paris. As a member of the National Committee of French women, Irene Curie promoted the intellectual and social advancement of women and she was an active participant in the World Peace Council.

Murray Gell-Mann (September 15, 1929) is an American physicist whose main contribution was the classification of strongly interacting subatomic particles into an arrangement called ‘the eight-fold’ for which he won the Nobel Prize for Physics in 1969. He found that those particles were composed of fundamental units called quarks. These ideas were subsequently confirmed by experiments. Gell-Mann introduced the concept of strangeness, a quantum property that describes the chaotic decay pattern of certain particles. He proposed that strangeness is conserved when these particles interact via the strong forces that bind the atomic nucleus components. Later in his work he constructed the quantum field theory of quarks that describe all the nuclear component and their strong interactions. His most popular book is The Quark and the Jaguar (1994) where he explores ideas about simplicity versus complexity.

Albert Szent-Gyorgyi (September 16, 1893) was a Hungarian biochemist that won the Nobel Prize in Medicine in 1937 for isolating and discovering the role of Ascorbic acid or vitamin C in the oxidation of nutrients. He became interested on how sugars are broken down into simpler elements like carbon dioxide and water, this work led him to identified many of the components and reactions of the citric acid cycle. This work was completed a few years later by Krebs who produced the complete citric acid cycle. Szent-Gyorgyi later work focused on the elucidation of muscle contraction, he identified actin, myosin, demonstrated that they act together as a complex during muscle contraction, and showed that ATP is the required energy source. He wrote several books pertaining to his area of research.

Steven Arthur Pinker (September 18, 1954) is an American cognitive psychologists and linguist. He has many contributions in the area of the evolutionary aspect of language development. Pinker proposed that language is a human instinct wired in our brains by evolution. He furthers explain how through the study of language we can learn how the mind works. Pinker’s thesis is that human thoughts are built around core primal ideas and explains how these ideas are place into categories in children as they grow. In his later work he examines human nature and psychology and proposes that historically violence is in the decreased because the best part of humanity tends to prevail. He was written several very influential books targeted to the public, like the language instinct, the stuff of thought, and others.

Thomas H. Morgan (September 25, 1866) was an American geneticist and developmental biologist that won the Nobel Prize in Medicine in 1933 for his theory of inheritance. Morgan most influential work was to show that genes are linearly positioned in the chromosomes and that they are responsible for defining a trait. Morgan questioned Mendel’s Laws of inheritance; he thought inheritance couldn’t be as simple as Mendel’s result showed and skeptical to the unit of inheritance (genes). In order to understand these genetics and further its study, he switched from his previous field of embryology 9/21/24, 9:11 AM Scientists Born in September - the owlet <https://www.theowletscience.org/scientists-born-in-september-2/> 2/3 Copyright 2014–2024 The Owlet. Design by Imaginary Office. to genetics, using Drosophila melanogaster (fruit fly). This allowed him to discover traits that are always inherited with the male fly and thus linked to the X chromosome. He also discovered linkage, where some genes are always inherited together. This led him to mapping genes to specific locations in the chromosome, accepting Mendel’s results, and showing that genes are linked because they reside in the same chromosome. He wrote several books in the area of genetics and embryology. He is remembered as the scientist that expanded Mendelian genetics to cover other methods of inheritance.

A Rumble Echoed Around the World for Nine Days. Here's What Caused It.

Last year, an immense but brief outburst of seismic energy was soon followed by a long hum that made the world ring. Finding its cause took 68 scientists and an assist by the Danish military.

On September 16, 2023, the world began to rumble. A gargantuan rock-ice avalanche tumbled into the deep waters of a fjord in eastern Greenland, unleashing a megatsunami whose initial waves reached a height of 200 meters. The waves scoured the walls of the fjord before flowing into the open sea.

Image: Soren Ryesgaard

Even for this avalanche-prone corner of Greenland, the collapse and subsequent megatsunami were shocking for their speed and ferocity. But what followed was considerably stranger. The collapse triggered a monotonous growl that kept going for nine days straight. It was strong enough to be detected by seismometers all around the world. And yet, when the Danish military visited the scene, they found nothing amiss.

Even for this avalanche-prone corner of Greenland, the collapse and subsequent megatsunami were shocking for their speed and ferocity. But what followed was considerably stranger. The collapse triggered a monotonous growl that kept going for nine days straight. It was strong enough to be detected by seismometers all around the world. And yet, when the Danish military visited the scene, they found nothing amiss.

“This is crazy,” said Kristian Svennevig \(opens a new tab\), a geologist at the Geological Survey of Denmark and Greenland and a member of a team that investigated the anomaly. It was like nothing anyone had ever seen.

“Immediately, there was a massive amount of researchers joining forces,” said Finn Løvholt \(opens a new tab\), a tsunami and landslide researcher at the Norwegian Geotechnical Institute in Oslo. The team quickly grew to include experts from 15 different countries. The Danish navy offered their help. But nothing anyone suggested as an underlying cause — from peculiar magmatic movements to jiggling ice sheets — seemed to make sense.

“If we found no other explanation, we would have gone for sea monster or baby dragons,” joked team member Stephen Hicks \(opens a new tab\), a seismologist at University College London.

Now, as reported today in the journal Science \(opens a new tab\), a team of 68 scientists has managed to identify the source of the world-wobbling hum: a bizarre natural phenomenon, rhythmically hammering on Earth’s surface like a drum.

“I don’t know if anyone’s seen anything even remotely like that before,” said Ben Fernando \(opens a new tab\), a seismologist at Johns Hopkins University who was not involved with the new study. “It’s a very cool result.”

The joy of discovering something so outlandish has left the team both humbled and overjoyed. “This is probably why a lot of these people went into science,” Svennevig said. “With all our fancy gear and equipment and knowledge, we still, once in a while, find something [we] don’t know.”

The Boom and the Hum

On September 16 of last year, at 11:35 a.m. local East Greenland time, a wedge of ice had, after years of climate change-driven warming, thinned away just a bit too much. On the side of a mountain peak atop Dickson Fjord, around 25 million cubic meters of rock — about 10 times the size of the Great Pyramid of Giza — thundered downward. As it did, it hit a glacier nestling in a gully, obliterating it.

Lubricated by that ice, and channeled by a narrow gully, this rock-ice avalanche crashed into the fjord at over 160 kilometers per hour. It “hit the water as a fist,” said Svennevig, a co-author of the new study, and created a megatsunami with an average wave height of 110 meters.

Megatsunamis usually form when a large, swiftly moving mass plunges into a constricted body of water. The combination of extremely high waves and fast speeds has enormous destructive potential.

As this one careened through a section of the 35-kilometer-long fjord, it stripped away Inuit archaeological sites and 20th-century trapper hunts. It escaped into the sea and partially inundated a scientific and military outpost 72 kilometers away on Ella Island\(opens a new tab\), where its (now far smaller) waves caused $200,000 in damages. Thankfully, nobody was injured or killed.

The initial landslide and the ensuing rock-ice avalanche made a lot of noise. Its acoustic roar was picked up more than 3,300 kilometers away, in Russia, by an infrasound instrument designed to detect clandestine nuclear weapons tests. Seismometers also picked up a salvo of high-frequency seismic events, along with some low-frequency waves that came from the acceleration and deceleration of the mass grinding on the Earth’s surface.

What came next wasn’t quite so straightforward.

Seismologists picked up a deep hum oscillating at 10.88 millihertz. “This thing was showing up like a really big anomaly, sticking out like a sore thumb,” Hicks said. As they watched it persist for a day, then another, then another, researchers across the world were stunned. “What’s going on here? Why are we still seeing this?” he said, summing up the shock at the time.

By the time the hum had decayed after nine strange days, a variety of experts, from tsunami researchers to deep-Earth geoscientists, had gathered into an expansive chat group on an open-source platform called Mattermost. They debated all sorts of possible explanations, from the routine to the avant-garde.

The seismic signals didn’t match the signature of an earthquake. Perhaps an ice sheet, disturbed by the rockfall, was ringing like a bell. Maybe the landslide had forced a chunk of ice to melt, and that water slipped through a natural piping system in a glacier, turning it into an instrument and creating the geological equivalent of music. Or could the Greenlandic hum be the work of some incognito volcanism\(opens a new tab\)?

No evidence to support any of these ideas was forthcoming. People started jokingly wondering if it was aliens or dragons having a rave or a tantrum. Some sort of leviathan “always comes up” when abnormalities like this baffle seismologists, Hicks said.

Three days after the great collapse, the Danish navy surveyed the fjord to chronicle the changed landscape. To those scouts, everything seemed tranquil. “It still blows my mind that we’re still seeing this seismic signal going round the world, being produced at that time that they sailed there, and they didn’t notice any discernible disturbance,” Hicks said.

Slosh Party

Despite a dearth of conclusive evidence, one hypothesis stuck around. Perhaps the avalanche created a standing wave that was sloshing back and forth in the fjord. Such a wave, called a seiche, is common in lakes and harbors, although it typically takes shape in the presence of strong winds\(opens a new tab\).

Then, just three weeks after September's dramatics, a second (weaker) seismic signal emerged from the fjord and spread through the planet. It also appeared to have been triggered by a landslide, and it was accompanied by a smaller tsunami. Checking through historical seismic records going back to the early 1980s, the team soon found four similar events. If those signals were from seiches, then perhaps September's grumble was too.

But there was a glaring problem with the seiche hypothesis. The avalanche and tsunami were large and forceful, but ephemeral. It wasn't clear how they could generate or sustain a nine-day seiche.

In desperation, one member of the team tried to re-create the prolonged sloshing in their own bathtub. Alas, Dickson Fjord isn't straight and symmetrical, so a bathtub made for a poor stand-in. The noble experiment didn't work.

The team then tried to model the event on a computer. In their first attempts at building numerical simulations of the tsunami, they couldn't reconstruct the seiche. Then the Danish military gave them access to high-resolution sonar surveys of the fjord's baroque bottom. That's when the evidence started to pile up.

Simulations that took into account the varying depth of the fjord showed that the megatsunami had stabilized into a seiche with a dominant frequency of 11.45 millihertz — very close to the 10.88 millihertz frequency of the weird hum. The virtual seiche's nine-day decay matched that of the real thing. The wonky geography of the fjord suggested that the seiche's energy would only leak out into open waters gradually, helping to explain its longevity.

Their simulations also revealed the reason the Danish navy failed to see the seiche's waves in person. The seiche was sloshing the 2.7 kilometers from one side of the fjord to the other every 45 seconds. After just three days, the wave height had decayed to just a handful of centimeters, making it all but imperceptible to anyone present.

The study underscores that our rapidly warming world can affect us in surprising ways. The landslide that kicked off that megatsunami was triggered by a melting film of ice. "Climate change is lurking in the background of this story," Svennevig said. Researchers will now be on the alert for similar warning signs in other glaciated parts of the planet vulnerable to megatsunamis.

Nine days of global quivering may be impressive, but it's not a record. The devastating magnitude-9.1 Sumatra-Andaman earthquake and tsunami in December 2004 shook the planet for 18 days\(opens a new tab\). And it's thought that the Chicxulub asteroid, which ended the reign of the dinosaurs 66 million years ago, rumbled Earth for months\(opens a new tab\) after impact.

The difference with the Greenlandic pandemonium is that, luckily, it caused minimal damage and zero casualties. Instead, Earth presented scientists with a riddle — and they went all-in to solve it, simply to satiate their curiosity. "It's just cool to say: I see a weird signal — what is it?" said Jackie Caplan-Auerbach\(opens a new tab\), a seismologist and geophysicist at Western Washington University who was not involved with the new study. "Sometimes," Hicks said, "this kind of science is the most fun."

What is USPA?

The United States Psychotronics Association (USPA) is a federally recognized, nonprofit 501(c)(3) organization founded in 1975 to serve as a focal point for scientific and technical exploration of the universe of esoteric, spiritual, and psychic arts in the United States of America.

The USPA has been hosting annual conferences for its membership since its formation and has featured countless individuals with cutting-edge viewpoints, research, or theories to share, allowing any interested persons to openly discuss their work.

What is Psychotronics?

USPA defines psychotronics as the science of mind-body-environment relationships, an interdisciplinary science concerned with the interactions of matter, energy, and consciousness.

Psychotronics involves the study, research, and applications of the physics and technology of the mind, brain, spirit, consciousness, and the underlying forces of life and nature – hence the term “psychotronics.” A true understanding of the universe must include the spiritual as well as the technical. USPA provides an opportunity for amateur researchers to present their findings along with the professionals. USPA stresses research, with documentation of results, and practical applications, rather than personal experience and unsupported hypotheses.

Section XI Classified Ad Section – Part I

Section XII Classified Ad Section – Part II

- Personal Ads: If you have any “psychotronic related items” to sell, (books, radionic machines, etc.) We charge 20 cents per word, 20.00 per half page with supplied artwork or photos or 35.00 per whole page. Your paid ad will run in the next three issues of the newsletter.
- If you would like to publicize an event for a non-profit organization, USPA will advertise for you up to 750 words free. We ask for mutual links to our website from yours.
- If you would like to publicize a for-profit event, or a business USPA charges reasonable ad rates. Link to the ad rates is posted on our Donate page of the website, or CLICK HERE
- Please Note: USPA is not responsible for the content or condition of items sold from this newsletter by any private person or company, nor does it back any treatment, modality or veracity of presentation. It does not back any claim of medical efficacy of machines or treatments. USPA cannot recommend specific radionic practitioners, or offer radionic treatments from its board or officers.

Section XIII – We are building a selection of books to buy to support USPA

The USPA books, Energetic Processes, Volume I and Volume II are now available!

You can purchase them on our website at <https://www.psychotronics.org/shop/> View the TOC in the ad too

For a limited time, the purchase price on our website, with shipping is 29.00 (Continental US Only). All others CLICK HERE for a shipping quote or go to Amazon at THIS LINK (Note: We are collecting a list of Australian buyers and we’ll ship the lot to a USPA representative in Australia to re-ship them and save money. To get on this list, email Gail)

With assistance from USPA, J.G. Gallimore’s Books are Still Available on Amazon

Jerry G. Gallimore was one of the founders of the USPA in 1975, and was a leading researcher in psychotronics and unusual energies until his untimely death in 1989.

All five of J.G. Gallimore’s rare books on psychotronics subjects and unusual energies have been reprinted by the United States Psychotronics Association (USPA) and are being made available at a fraction of the cost that used copies were being sold at online. Available at Amazon.com

So rare have these books been, that only a few libraries in the entire world had them in their collections, and some original Gallimore’s books were being sold for several hundred dollars each online. However, with these newly reprinted volumes, each will be available for less than $30.00.

The Handbook of Unusual Energies: Volume	ISBN-13: 978-1543024999	The first book of 3 on unusual energies	468 Pages
Gallimore discusses in depth the research, discoveries, and inventions of all the major researchers in subtle energies, the aether, biological 62 fields, pyramid energy, radiesthesia, radionics, crystal transduction, and related subjects. These include the works of Baron von Reichenbach's and his odic energy, Dr. Wilhelm Reich's orgone energy, Dr. Harold Burr's biological life fields, Kozyrev's time mirror, Edgar Cayce's transmission of energy, and related research done by many others. Of particular importance is Gallimore's 127-page chapter on radionics. In this chapter he discusses in depth the research and devices of Ruth Drown, T. Galen Hieronymus, Rho Sigma, Dr. L. P. Corte and other prominent people in the radionics field.

Collected Properties &amp; Writings of J. G. Gallimore: Volume 2	ISBN-13: 978-1543025040	The second book of 3 on unusual energies	258 Pages

This is the second book in the "Unusual Energies" series that J.G. Gallimore published. It covers Gallimore's research on Albert Abrams, the founder of modern radionics, psychological physics, psychic energy, thought resonance, subtle energies, crystals, and related subjects.

In addition, a number of radionics devices are discussed, such as the De La Warr Diagnostic Instrument. And very helpfully, the rates are provided for substances, body organs, and medical diseases and disorders. I very interesting interview of Christopher Bird, conducted by J.G. Gallimore is provided, as well as a discussion of Walter Russell and his research

Relationship Between Parapsychology and Gravity: Volume 3	ISBN-13: 978-1543024944	The third book of 3 on unusual energies	228 Pages
--	----------------------------	---	-----------

This book describes in depth the research and theories of J.G. Gallimore into the question of "parapsychology transmission" -the question of how such things as telepathy, remote viewing, ESP, and similar phenomena can physically occur. He discusses the various emanations, radiations, and energy fields of all matter and life including the ancient Chinese energy called "chi" (qi), the ancient Indian's prana energy, Reichenbach's "odic force," Gurwitsch's "mitogenic radiation," Wilhelm Reich's orgone energy, and other subtle energies. He shows how all of these energies are similar, how they interact, and how they are related to gravity. He also discusses crystals as transducers of these energies, and provides diagrams of devices that could potentially be used to harness or control these energies.

Transverse Paraphysics: The New Science of Space, Time, and Gravity Control	ISBN-13: 978-1543024920	Gallimore's fourth book	374 Pages

This book covers the visionary research and theories developed by J.G. Gallimore about anti-gravity, space, time, and biophysics. He discusses in depth the dimensions of space, time, and gravity, and new discoveries in each of these areas. In addition, he covers research being done on anti-gravity and then discusses anti-gravity patents that have been obtained.

He also discusses the intriguing concept of aura energy fields surrounding humans and other living things, and how extra-sensory perception (ESP) might be explained through biophysical principles.

Unified Field Theory Research Book: Using Subjective Response to Psi-Plasma	ISBN-13: 978-1543024838	Gallimore's Fifth book	134 Pages
--	----------------------------	------------------------	-----------

This book is about psychotronics, radionics, electromagnetic fields and waves, psi-plasma, plasma fields, subtle energies, bio-electromagnetic energy, and other unusual energies emitted by living and non-living things. It also is about how living things interact with and are affected by these energies, which may enhance health or harm health. The book covers the research of Wilhelm Reich on Orgone energy, of Baron Reichenback on the odic forces, as well as research done by Cazzamalli on brain radiations and Lakhovsky on using high frequency radiations to successfully treat cancer in humans. In addition, Lakhovsky used similar methods to enhance the growth of plants. Gallimore shows how these energies, forces, and fields are all inter-related and provides hypotheses and ideas on their possible unification.
