Susan Says, "As counter intuitive as it may feel, we are all just vibrating strings of electromagnetic energy popping out of our three dimensional "standard" reality and into the other ten dimensions that String Theory describes. (There and back again!)

Quantum Physicists generally agree that the best description of the Universe is simply that it is a single wave of vibrating energy, connected in ways that aren't yet fully understood. Some Philosophers might call that Quantum Wave "Unity Consciousness". If those of us exploring Metaphysics (the study of the nature of reality) act on the idea that we are each a fractal part of the larger whole of All That Is, we can find ways of consciously interacting with it."

Susan's Bio:Susan is an internationally acclaimed author, consultant and workshop leader with a dynamic, professional practice. She uses traditional dowsing tools as well as the power of heart and thought to detect and transform nonbeneficial Earth, Environmental, Psychic and Other energy patterns. Everything is Conscious: Bridge Matter and Spirit with Dowsing with Susan Collins

As counter intuitive as it may feel, we are all just vibrating strings of electromagnetic energy popping out of our three dimensional "standard" reality and into the other ten dimensions that String Theory describes. (There and back again!)

Quantum Physicists generally agree that the best description of the Universe is simply that it is a single wave of vibrating energy, connected in ways that aren't yet fully understood. Some Philosophers might call that Quantum Wave "Unity Consciousness". If those of us exploring Metaphysics (the study of the nature of reality) act on the idea that we are each a fractal part of the larger whole of All That Is, we can find ways of consciously interacting with it.

The most efficient system I have found to communicate with Universal Consciousness is dowsing, the use of simple tools to amplify the body's subtle interaction with electromagnetic energy. Join me at the USPA to explore these concepts further. I will share the Dowsing Protocol I use. If you have a pendulum, bring it. If not, have your car keys handy and they will be your first dowsing tool. No experience necessary!

Susan is an internationally acclaimed author, consultant and workshop leader with a dynamic, professional practice. She uses traditional dowsing tools as well as the power of heart and thought to detect and transform nonbeneficial Earth, Environmental, Psychic and Other energy patterns.

Section IV– Articles of Interest

Military Style Radionics: What Can Be Said

Taken from www.radatti.com/blog

I do not often write about military style radionics. Everything in this article is from open sources, mostly books and articles. Nothing is confirmed or denied. If you read carefully, you will notice that everything in this article is common sense. In addition, I am not talking about any specific military. Not American, not Russian, not British, not European, etc. I am talking about the military as a profession and that transgresses nationality and lies in professionalism and mindset. If you want to learn Military Radionics stop reading, you won't learn it here. If you want to know what any specific military is doing, this is not the place as I don't know.

There are several reasons I don't write about military style radionics.

The first is simple: this is not a subject that should be handled casually. Not everything that can be discussed should be turned into public instruction. Every serious field has private areas. Medicine has private patient records. Law has privileged communications. Computer security has techniques that should not be handed to criminals. Engineering has safety limits. Even cooking has recipes people refuse to share.

Radionics is no different.

The second reason is that the actual military has been very closed mouth about this general subject for a long time. The public record contains material on remote viewing, psych energetics, intelligence collection, and related programs. Anyone can now find declassified documents showing that the subject was taken seriously enough to be studied, organized, funded, criticized, defended, and eventually officially discontinued.

But those documents do not tell the whole story.

They also do not prove every story that has been told around campfires, conferences, bookstores, and late-night radio shows. This is where discipline is required. A serious person must be willing to say two things at the same time: yes, there was official interest in unusual human perception and intelligence collection; and no, that does not mean every rumor about psychic warfare is true.

This is where radionics enters the discussion carefully.

- Military style radionics should not be understood as a civilian hobby or even a civilian profession with camouflage painted on it. It is not merely taking a witness, turning dials, and giving the operation a more dramatic name. Military style work begins with a different mindset.
- Civilian radionics usually begins with a problem.
- A person is uncomfortable. A field is not producing. A house feels wrong. A business is stuck. A student wants to learn. A practitioner seeks balance, correction, improvement, or understanding.

- Military style radionics begins with mission. Mission is the driving force behind all military actions. It is not to be misunderstood, and it is not even close to what a civilian may think of as goal-oriented actions. It is much more.
- That changes everything.
- A mission requires a defined legal target, a purpose, a boundary, an expected militarily legal result, a method of observation, and an understanding of risk. The question is not simply, "Can something be done?" The question is, "Should this be done, by whom, under what authority, with what restraint, and how will anyone know whether the result was useful?"

That is a very different standard.

This is also why I am cautious about teaching too much. Radionics without ethics is already a problem. Radionics with targeting discipline and no ethics is a larger problem. The more capable a method becomes, the more important restraint becomes. A child can be careless with a rubber band. He should not be careless with a rifle. The principle is the same.

Military style work also teaches one of the hardest lessons in radionics: information is often more important than force.

Beginners like force. They want big broadcasts, strong fields, dramatic symbols, and heroic intentions. That may satisfy the ego, but it is not always good work. In intelligence, the first need is often not to push but to perceive. What is the target? What is present? What is hidden? What is changing? What is the pattern? What is the resistance? What does the operator think he knows that he does not actually know?

A wrong answer delivered with confidence is worse than no answer at all.

This is one of the places where remote viewing and radionics touch each other, even though they are not the same thing. Remote viewing attempts to obtain information about a target beyond ordinary sensory access. Radionics uses witness, rate, intention, instrument, and operator to interact with target information. Both fields force us to ask whether information may be available in ways not accounted for by ordinary material assumptions.

- That does not make every session accurate.
- It does not make every operator reliable.
- It does not make every claim true.

In fact, the military problem is partly that the standard is higher. A farmer may experiment with a field and learn over a season. A private operator may work on a personal concern and judge the outcome gradually. An intelligence officer does not have that luxury. Intelligence must be timely, relevant, and usable. It must be checked against other sources. It must be separated from imagination, projection, wishful thinking, and noise.

This may explain why official conclusions about remote viewing were mixed or negative even when some participants believed useful work had been done. The military does not merely ask, "Was something interesting observed?" It asks, "Can this be used reliably in operations?" That is a much harsher question.

Radionics people should understand that distinction.

Anecdotes are not enough. Strong impressions are not enough. A dramatic hit is not enough. If a method is to be used seriously, especially in a military or intelligence context, it must be disciplined, recorded, reviewed, and compared against reality. The operator must be willing to be wrong. That is not a weakness. It is the beginning of competence.

Military style radionics also differs from ordinary practice in its use of language. The civilian practitioner may speak in broad terms: balance, vitality, clearing, support, correction. Military style work thinks in terms of target, objective, signal, interference, protection, concealment, exposure, timing, and effect.

- That language is not decorative. It shapes the mind of the operator.
- If you call something a "wish," you mentally treat it one way.
- If you call it an "operation," you mentally treat it another way.
- Words matter because they organize intention.

This is where my computer background also affects how I look at the subject. In computing, a system does exactly what it is instructed to do, not what the programmer vaguely hoped it would do. A sloppy instruction produces sloppy behavior. A poorly defined target produces unreliable results. A hidden assumption becomes a bug. A missing constraint can create damage. That is true in software, and I believe something similar is true in radionics. Another difference from computers is that in computers you define how to get to the goal. In Radionics, the goal is more important than how you get there.

Military style work must include constraints.

- Do not exceed authority.
- Do not act without purpose.
- Do not confuse curiosity with mission.
- Do not substitute emotion for signal.
- Do not perform work merely because the operator wants to feel powerful.
- Do not publish methods that could be misused by the foolish, the unstable, or the malicious.

That last point is important. Some readers will want details. They will want procedures, rates, structures, or examples. I am not going to provide them. A public blog is not the place for that. The purpose of this article is not to train operators in military style radionics. It is to explain why the subject exists, why it is guarded, and why it should be approached with more seriousness than fantasy.

There is also a moral problem.

In healing, agriculture, and personal work, the stated purpose is usually improvement or balance. Military work may involve defense, intelligence, disruption, concealment, protection, or other objectives. Some of those objectives may be lawful and necessary under proper authority. Some may not be and must be rejected. The operator cannot hide from that issue by pretending that radionics is only symbolic. If one believes radionics can affect real patterns, then one must also accept real responsibility.

That responsibility is why I prefer the term disciplined radionics over glamorous terms such as psychic warfare.

The phrase psychic warfare attracts the wrong kind of mind. It attracts people who want power before they have character. It attracts fantasy, paranoia, and theatrical thinking. Disciplined radionics is less exciting but far more accurate. It reminds the operator that the first requirement is not drama. It is clarity.

What can be said publicly?

- We can say that governments studied unusual perception and psychoenergetic questions.
- We can say that the military interest was connected to intelligence, threat assessment, and operational usefulness.
- We can say that the public record is incomplete.
- We can say that remote viewing and radionics are not identical, but they share an interest in information beyond ordinary sensory access.
- We can say that military style radionics, as a concept, is less about theatrics and more about target discipline, restraint, operational clarity, and ethical boundaries.
- We can also say that some things should remain taught only under responsible conditions.

That last sentence will disappoint some people. Good.

Disappointment is sometimes a useful filter.

A serious student will understand that guarded knowledge is not always hidden because it is false. Sometimes it is guarded because careless publication would damage the field, the student, or other people. Radionics has suffered enough from ridicule, exaggeration, and irresponsible claims. It does not need more of them.

Military style radionics is real enough to discuss, but not something to sensationalize.

It belongs in the same category as other serious subjects: worthy of study, surrounded by uncertainty, historically entangled with secrecy, and requiring moral restraint.

The machine is never the whole issue.

The operator is.

I may not ever write about this topic again, but I think I have said all that needs to be said in a public forum.

OPEN SOURCES

The following open sources are useful for readers who want to understand the public historical background. They do not all discuss radionics directly. Most of the public record concerns remote viewing, psychoenergetics, parapsychology, and intelligence collection.

CIA Reading Room: STAR GATE Collection
This is the primary public archive for declassified U.S. government documents connected with STAR GATE and related material.

Defense Intelligence Agency / National Security Archive: SUN STREAK and related declassified source material
These documents are useful because they show the official vocabulary used in the field, including remote viewing, psychoenergetics, intelligence collection, foreign assessment, GONDOLA WISH, GRILL FLAME, SUN STREAK, and STAR GATE.

American Institutes for Research: An Evaluation of Remote Viewing: Research and Applications, 1995
This is important because it gives the official review perspective. It is not a believer's document. It discusses the history, controversy, research issues, and operational usefulness question.

Russell Targ and Harold E. Puthoff, Mind-Reach
A useful early book from the Stanford Research Institute side of the story. It helps explain how remote viewing entered the modern research vocabulary.

Paul H. Smith, Reading the Enemy's Mind: Inside Star Gate
A detailed insider account of the U.S. military remote viewing program. Useful for understanding the operational culture and the difference between casual psychic experimentation and structured intelligence work.

Joseph McMoneagle, Remote Viewing Secrets
Recommended for readers who want a disciplined remote viewing perspective from one of the best-known figures associated with STAR GATE.

Lyn Buchanan, The Seventh Sense
Another insider-style account connected with the military remote viewing community. Best read with discernment, but useful for understanding the culture, language, and claims of that world.

Annie Jacobsen, Phenomena
A journalistic history of U.S. government interest in extrasensory perception, psychokinesis, intelligence, and national security. It is broader than remote viewing alone and is useful as an overview for readers new to the subject.

A final caution: open sources are not the same as complete sources. Declassified documents show that official interest existed. They do not prove every claim made by later writers, teachers, or enthusiasts. A responsible reader should keep both facts in mind.

Section V Klimo's Korner

November, 2026

Each of us is local consciousness operating in relation to the underlying ground of what we try to experience as non-local consciousness, Mind-at-Large or the universal consciousness field that some call God and that many conceptualize more physically as dimensional space/time, or as the zero-point energy vacuum (ZPV or ZPE), or the ether-like atmosphere for all vibrating quantum fields, or the cloud within which the superposition of all possible and then probable states lie waiting to be collapsed" by consciousness observing or measuring to get local actualized something from what can only be experienced as nothing until the moment consiousness interacts with that ground, but the nature of such observing, measuring, experiencing interaction is being done by the same consciousness that is the grounds from which everything arises that can be experienced by such local consciousness according to, and in terms of, how that local consciousness presents itself to, and interacts with, the underlying non-local consciousness field it, as local individual consciousness, arises from.

The same equations are returned in kind in the terms and language that was posed to the universal consciousness field acting as a mirror for what local consciousness chooses to perform before, and take from, it. Local consciousness makes its faces in the mirror and sees, but does not yet understand, that all is consciousness experiencing only its own objects and contents everywhere forever.

I would like to come back to how I understand the late psychologist Paul Federn's thinking. He was a contemporary of Freud and was very influenced by him. I have earlier written about what I call "Federn Relations", particularly what he called "object cathexis" and "subject cathexis," working from Freud's original idea of "cathexis" by which Freud meant allocating mental/psychical or emotional energy onto a person, object, or idea, investing one's attention and valuing, even love, on it. Then "object cathexis" is how the ego or self relates to what it experiences as coming to it from an otherness outside of it, while "subject cathexis" experiences and interprets all things as coming from, existing within, and made from, itself, its own consciousness and identity.

Now I want you to think again about the nature of windows and mirrors. Windows open out onto views of endless objects that are not oneself but are of otherness and we experience object cathexis toward such. In contrast, we stand before a mirror where all we can see reflected back to us is our own expressions and we experience everything we see as of ourself and with a quality of subject cathexis.

Now I want you to engage in a thought experiment. Imagine what local consciousness, your own bounded, individual-seeming consciousness, would look like in the mirror, and then compare that with what non-local consciousness, or the unbounded universal consciousness field, would look like. One does this somewhat in the "thought experiment" manner of Einstein imagining the way a beam of light would appear to him if he were moving at the same speed of light. Could you then imagine the way your own consciousness would appear to itself in the mirror compared to how a universal consciousness field would look and be experienced by you?

And then extend your thought experiment a bit more and imagine shifting so the window seen as a reflecting surface, like a mirror, becomes again a window, transparent, and seeing through to all manner of objectivity. What if all that could be experienced through the window was subjectivity, not objectivity? That everything was experienced through subject, not object, cathexis, experienced through non-local universal consciousness, not in your own familiar local consciousness. What would that look like? Imagine that if you are able.

I want to talk about "Skinwalker Ranch", a place in Utah that has been owned by a couple of different wealthy people, including a man named Fugal and realtor Robert Bigelow, both of whom took a very predictable, scientific, explorative attitude together with others they brought in to investigate the different kinds of anomalous phenomena occurring at the ranch.

As I followed the stories of what was happening, I thought of the ranch as an "anomalies nest" because there were so many different inexplicable things on the ranch being reported. It reached a point where I found the number of unexplained things occurring being explained by me as related in terms of being myriad Interactions between the normal level of reality in which the ranch existed and a more subsuming, higher-dimensional reality that contained, yet transcended, the existence of the ranch and the anomalous phenomena going on there.

This was reported to involve "portals", delimited regions where kinds of connection took place involving "orbs", lights, presences, seeming "ETs", shadowy humanoid figures, unidentified flying objects, unusual creatures and assorted inexplicable electromagnetic, gravitational, temporal, and other goings-on. Just so many perplexing and vexing things that the ranch over the years became synonymous with what could not be explained in ordinary ways and terms. It's as if perforations were being purposefully made, by whom or whatever, in the opaque fabric woven between the consensual reality occupied by the ranch and a larger reality.

Then I saw a taped interview between Fugal and Bigelow in which they talked about the attitude they had been bringing to the ranch's anomalies they were studying through conventional means. Over time they were coming to an agreement that the usual attitude they held about all the inexplicable activity at the ranch needed to be changed from one of traditional dominating aggressive scientific "know-it-all" inquiry to a kind of letting go, surrendering and opening-up in a more passive, receptive curiosity that could invite a new level of dialogue between the ranch and the apparent larger reality containing and impinging it. And this made me think of how quantum physics is said to work, with experiments and interrogations deriving local focused actuality from a non-local "cloud" of hitherto superposed possible then probable states.

Somehow what is experienced as real comes from what is not yet real, becoming conscious of what one had earlier been unconscious of. In the case of Skinwalker Ranch, things anomalous seem to randomly erupt from what is experienced as normal.

I want to talk about remote viewing in relation to the nature of consciousness. Someone experiencing remote viewing possesses what I call "local consciousness," personal consciousness, the consciousness they possess as a physically embodied living human being for a lifetime. And the experiential environment they inhabit and operate within is the unbounded environment of "non-local consciousness," the universal consciousness field, or "Mind-at-Large," or possible even the mind of God. Local consciousness then moves through this impersonal open domain in an "out-of-body" (obe) manner, exercising the focusing nature of its awareness by following whatever input- clues, questions, coordinates, information, pictures in sealed envelopes- it has been given to work with.

In this way personal local-consciousness interacts with and spatio-temporally explores the subsuming realm of boundless non-local consciousness giving rise to the local, focal, consciousness each of us experiences as ourself and with which we each experience. No secrets can be kept within the universal consciousness field. No lies can successfully take place. No duplicity can occur.

All becomes veridical and truth must have out. Telepathy can unite all local consciousness as all grows transparent. Individual solidity dissolves. Opacity is transient even as the grounds for all reification grows and infinite imagined gardens are grounded as experienced fact. As more and more of us learn the skills of "remote viewing" and acquire the ability to go "out of body," joining the handful who currently are able to do so, we will soon be reaching the point of accessing a shared omniscience that will no longer allow small groups comprised of self-selected cognitively-privileged local consciousness to keep their secrets from the rest of us, presuming "we could not handle "it."

A climate of secrecy, ignorance and privileged power-politics will end. Power to the people, to all people, sharing the same non-local consciousness, the universal consciousness field that is their birthright, as their own local consciousness must eventually dissolve into the one impersonal sea of non-locality, becoming identical with it. Ask AI and nonhuman beings: Are you aware, and in what ways, and aware of what? Can robotic AI and non-human ET intelligence experience in the same way that we humans can and do? To the extent they could be seen as possessing individual local consciousness and passing all manner of Turing Tests, what is their origin with regard to, and their experiential relationship with, non-local consciousness, the universal consciousness field, or "God" compared to human beings? Can they even have such an "experiential relationship" as we can and do?

There seems a relationship between Skinwalker Ranch and what Dr, Steven Greer calls "CE-5"" UFO/UAP phenomena (close encounters of the 5th kind). brought on by the humans experiencing them. How we interact with "Kuhnian anomalies "can lead to what we can learn from the "scientific revolutions" for which they are catalysts when engaged with seriously. The idea of changing one's attitude enough to benefit from anomalousness through a shift in one's "Kuhnian attitude." needs to involve an intention-setting meditation and altering of consciousness, ideally including a group of like-minded participants sharing a common receptive state and intention of letting go and opening up.

What I call the "Polanyi Relations" of the complex multidimensional sets of points or coordinate systems, of "attending from" and "attended to," with perspective and "attitude" manipulating the two sets, from and to— that from which one is coming and experiencing, and that which one is attending to, paying attention to— the intentional objects of consciousness.

Shifting "gears" a bit, I want you to conceptualize a revision of our financial considerations such that an experience of scarcity or rarity leads to our bestowable of value in a symbolic system where the rare thing, such as gold, is arbitrarily given value in what is called "fiat currency", even "cryptocurrency— far from a process of honest "bartering" of "goods and services," eventually even needed food and water.

I want to now introduce "true," not "counterfeit", LOVE, experienced as rare and valuable, the ultimate "commodity" that we have to give and barter with. It is more a gift given or received spontaneously without any awareness or consideration of consequence or transactional quid pro quo. We each have this wealth of love we can't help but give though too many of us have learned to hold our love in, bridle it, not spend it, though it costs us nothing, having been given our loving capacity freely by whom or whatever.

We are all born wealthy but choose to live a parsimonious existence, coveting dollars and gold we do not have, rather than food and water we need, let alone the love we could be giving freely even as we were given it.

Section VI – In Case You Missed Masterclass #78- "The Latest Radionics Reagents: Turning On The Physical Body's Electromagnetics" with Michelle Peal.

October 17, 2026. 1:00 Central Time. FREE USPA Masterclass

We are truly living in amazing times! The constant influx of cosmic energy is changing everything.

These changes are not just affecting radionics, but with every energy modality. As these changes continue to be a part of our daily lives, so we must learn new ways and new methods of working in our respective energy fields.

Join Dr. Peal for a deep dive into what changes are occurring on our planet, and what changes she is witnessing in the physical body. Learn what she is using to help facilitate better health through energy integration.

Bio Dr. Michelle Peal is a Naturopathic doctor with over 30 years of experience in holistic health, energy resonance, and scalar balancing techniques. She also holds a BS degree in Computer Science that has helped her to understand the base systems of the body that are not taught anywhere else.

Additionally, Dr. Peal has heard the Angels since the age of four and receives many revelations to solve problems that she encounters.

She uses a wide range of holistic techniques, which includes Hands On, Dowsing, Radionics, Radionic Reagents, and various Energy Balancing Techniques unique to her.

Section VII- USPA Local Affiliate Groups

The USPA is establishing localized affiliate psychotronics groups wherever our members are located – in the United States and elsewhere in the world. This is so that USPA members and others interested in psychotronics can get together in person, socialize, collaborate, and have speakers make local presentations

These local groups will be independent to give you maximum freedom of organization and activities. These groups can be composed of USPA members, as well as, others interested in psychotronics who may later decide to become members of the USPA. A set of "Guidelines" will be provided.

Listed below are the USPA local affiliate groups that have already been established, with the leader(s) of each group and contact email address. Please contact the leader if you would like to join one of these. If you live in a town or city that is not near an existing local group, and are interested in starting a group in your area, please contact the Local Group Coordinator, John Reed: joreed43@Gmail.com

MIA "Among the Missing"

Missing People, Organizations, Periodicals, Books, Artifacts, and more in the Psychotronics Field
by John H. Reed, USPA President

This is a new "column" or section of the USPA Newsletter, with the purpose of helping the USPA, as well as our members and research associates, to locate people, organizations, written works, devices, and other items that have seemingly disappeared, or have been extremely difficult to find in the psychotronics field. Updates will be added, and each missing item will be retained in future issues until it is found or otherwise resolved.

In our research and reading, we all have encountered reports or mentions of things of interest that we have tried to find. With our expanding readership, we can all help one another find what we have been searching for. Some may have experience in genealogical research, private investigation, law enforcement, or even intelligence work, which you could use to help with these searches.

This will also serve as a "People Locator Service" to help USPA members find authors, researchers, and other people involved in psychotronics, radionics, subtle energies, free energy, and related subjects. This would include people who have "disappeared" or have died long ago, and whose relatives USPA members may be trying to find in order to preserve the research papers and collection of that person.

If there is anything you have been searching for and need help to find, please write to me at: joreed43@gmail.com , and I will include your search help request in the next issues of the USPA Newsletter.

Missing Device: Lafferty Radionic Instrument

Does anyone know anything about the Lafferty Radionic instrument? The "Lafferty" in the instrument name, may refer to Tom Lafferty, a recognized radionics practitioner and researcher who has contributed to the radionics field, particularly through patient surveys. It has been reported that Lafferty is associated with the development or analysis of the "Virtual Radionic Instrument" (VRI), which translates traditional, hardware-based radionic methods into computer/tablet software. If anyone has any information about this instrument or its inventor, please contact John at: joreed43@gmail.com

Missing Person: Paul Sauvin

We are trying to track down some of the early directors, officers, and researchers associated with the United States Psychotronics Association (USPA), after it was organized in 1975. Paul Sauvin was a USPA officer in 1996 and 1977. Paul, whose full name is Pierre Paul Sauvin, was an electrical engineer and inventor who, according to one source, worked in the aerospace industry and later with the National Institute for Rehabilitation Engineering at St. Joseph's Hospital in Paterson, NJ. He also worked with Dr. Carl Schleicher, head of Mankind Research Unlimited, and helped develop a device called the "AGRAD Machine." This device was designed to control crop insects, and was introduced on an experimental basis, although it is not known if it ever reached commercial production. Paul Sauvin's mother was Edith Sauvin, who lived in White Plains, NY, and died August 25th, 1987. Edith's only child was Pierre Paul Sauvin, who himself had 2 sons, Alan Paul Sauvin and Steven Eric Sauvin. He also had one daughter, Jane Elizabeth Sauvin. Any help in locating the children of Paul Sauvin would be greatly appreciated, and please write to joreed43@gmail.com.

Missing Organization and Proceedings: International Association for Psychotronic Research (IAPR)

Does anyone know what became of the International Association for Psychotronic Research? And do any of you have copies of its meeting proceedings? It was founded in 1973. However, the current location or activities of the IAPR are unknown.

The IAPR held numerous international conferences around the world, beginning with its first in 1974 in Prague, then Czechoslovakia. At this conference, Dr. Zdenek Rejdak was elected president for the Eastern Division of the IAPR, and Dr. Stanley Krippner was elected president for the West. The 8th International Conference on Psychotronic Research was held in Milwaukee, Wisconsin, 1993, as a joint conference with the United States Psychotronics Association (USPA), but it is unknown if any subsequent conferences of the IAPR were held.

Proceedings of each of these conferences were published, but the USPA Library only has copies of the second conference in 1976 and the eigth conference in 1993. In addition, the IAPR published a newsletter called Psychotronik. Thanks to the research of Gail Wind, our current USPA Newsletter editor, we have the first issues of Psychotronik through vol.1, no.3-4, 1977, but none after that date.

If you have any knowledge about these organizations, or have copies of the proceedings, or newsletters, please write to John at: joreed43@gmail.com

What is USPA?

The United States Psychotronics Association (USPA) is a federally recognized, nonprofit 501(c)(3) organization founded in 1975 to serve as a focal point for scientific and technical exploration of the universe of esoteric, spiritual, and psychic arts in the United States of America.

The USPA has been hosting annual conferences for its membership since its formation and has featured countless individuals with cutting-edge viewpoints, research, or theories to share, allowing any interested persons to openly discuss their work.

What is Psychotronics?

USPA defines psychotronics as the science of mind-body-environment relationships, an interdisciplinary science concerned with the interactions of matter, energy, and consciousness.

Psychotronics involves the study, research, and applications of the physics and technology of the mind, brain, spirit, consciousness, and the underlying forces of life and nature – hence the term "psychotronics." A true understanding of the universe must include the spiritual as well as the technical. USPA provides an opportunity for amateur researchers to present their findings along with the professionals.

USPA stresses research, with documentation of results, and practical applications, rather than personal experience and unsupported hypotheses.

Section XIV- Books for Sale

J.G. Gallimore's Books are Still Available on Amazon - through assistance from USPA

Jerry G. Gallimore was one of the founders of the USPA in 1975, and was a leading researcher in psychotronics and unusual energies until his untimely death in 1989.

All five of J.G. Gallimore's rare books on psychotronics subjects and unusual energies have been reprinted by the United States Psychotronics Association (USPA) and are being made available at a fraction of the cost that used copies were being sold at online. Available at Amazon.com USPA Shares in the income from these sales.

So rare have these books been, that only a few libraries in the entire world had them in their collections, and some original Gallimore's books were being sold for several hundred dollars each online. However, with these newly reprinted volumes, each will be available for less than $30.00.

| | | | |
| The Handbook of Unusual Energies: Volume | ISBN-13: 978-1543024999 | The 1st book of 3 on unusual energies | 468 Pages |

Gallimore discusses in depth the research, discoveries, and inventions of all the major researchers in subtle energies, the aether, biological 62 fields, pyramid energy, radiesthesia, radionics, crystal transduction, and related subjects.

These include the works of Baron von Reichenbach's and his odic energy, Dr. Wilhelm Reich's orgone energy, Dr. Harold Burr's biological life fields, Kozyrev's time mirror, Edgar Cayce's transmission of energy, and related research done by many others.

Of particular importance is Gallimore's 127-page chapter on radionics. In this chapter he discusses in depth the research and devices of Ruth Drown, T. Galen Hieronymus, Rho Sigma, Dr. L. P. Corte, and other prominent people in the radionics field.

| Collected Properties & Writings of J. G. Gallimore: Volume 2 | ISBN-13: 978-1543025040 | The 2nd book of 3 on unusual energies | 258 Pages |

This is the second book in the "Unusual Energies" series that J.G. Gallimore published. It covers Gallimore's research on Albert Abrams, the founder of modern radionics, psychological physics, psychic energy, thought resonance, subtle energies, crystals, and related subjects.

In addition, a number of radionics devices are discussed, such as the De La Warr Diagnostic Instrument. And very helpfully, the rates are provided for substances, body organs, and medical diseases and disorders. I very interesting interview of Christopher Bird, conducted by J.G. Gallimore is provided, as well as a discussion of Walter Russell and his research

| Relationship Between Parapsychology and Gravity: Vol. 3 | ISBN-13: 978-1543024944 | The 3rd book of 3 on unusual energies | 228 Pages |

This book describes in depth the research and theories of J.G. Gallimore into the question of parapsychology transmission" -the question of how such things as telepathy, remote viewing, ESP, and similar phenomena can physically occur. He discusses the various emanations, radiations, and energy fields of all matter and life including the ancient Chinese energy called "chi" (qi), the ancient Indian's prana energy, Reichenbach's "odic force," Gurwitsch's "mitogenic radiation,"

Wilhelm Reich's orgone energy, and other subtle energies. He shows how these energies are similar, how they interact, and how they are related to gravity. He also discusses crystals as transducers of these energies, and provides diagrams of devices that could potentially be used to harness or control these energies.

| | | | |
| Transverse Paraphysics: The New Science of Space, Time, and Gravity Control | ISBN-13: 978-1543024920 | Gallimore's fourth book | 374 Pages |

This book covers the visionary research and theories developed by J.G. Gallimore about anti-gravity, space, time, and biophysics. He discusses in depth the dimensions of space, time, and gravity, and new discoveries in each of these areas. In addition, he covers research being done on anti-gravity and then discusses anti-gravity patents that have been obtained.

He also discusses the intriguing concept of aura energy fields surrounding humans and other living things, and how extra-sensory perception (ESP) might be explained through biophysical principles.

| | | | |
| Unified Field Theory Research Book: Using Subjective Response to Psi-Plasma | ISBN-13: 978-1543024838 | Gallimore's Fifth book | 134 Pages |

This book is about psychotronics, radionics, electromagnetic fields and waves, psi-plasma, plasma fields, subtle energies, bio-electromagnetic energy, and other unusual energies emitted by living and non-living things. It also is about how living things interact with and are affected by these energies, which may enhance or harm health.
