About Sharry Edwards MEd

Sharry Edwards has been accused of being too scientific by some, too esoteric by others. She is a bridge between both fields of inquiry. Sharry is the acknowledged pioneer in the emerging field of Vocal Profiling using BioAcoustic Biology.

She has for many years provided the leading-edge research to show the frequencies of the voice can be used to create a holographic representation of health and wellness. Her research has caught the attention of even large pharmaceutical houses, government agencies, alternative health providers and those who wish to create a better future. Recent AT&T declared that bioacoustics is the “medicine of the future”.

From birth to death, we use sounds to express our needs and emotions, but there are additional layers of information hidden within the words. In modern times we possess only limited conscious awareness of this information for ourselves or, as a means to interpret the intentions of others.

Vocal Profiling can let us know the intentions of our leaders; the motivations of our partners; the foundation of our sense of well-being. Would those abilities be of value in the struggle to attain dominion over our intrinsic right to personal freedoms?

Imagine a future in which the individual frequency-based biomarkers contained within the voice can be used to keep us and our world, healthy and emotionally balanced.

Vocal Profiling software has been developed that can use the components of the voice to create a matrix of information about anyone, from fundamental DNA, to the hidden intentions of those who claim to speak for us.

Sharry's intention is to demonstrate how the present system of health is akin to tyranny and is both a tragedy and an opportunity for, We THE PEOPLE, to take charge of our own health using a new paradigm of SELF HEALTH.

Sharry has presented at several USPA Conferences. Some of her videos are in the USPA Shop. In December of 2025, she published her latest book, Breaking the Sound Barriers of Disease: How Human BioAcoustic Sound Healing Can Improve All Aspects of Your Health and Help Solve Today's Growing Health Crisis

Section IV Breakthrough Tech gets Investment Fund

BTIF founders focus on altruism, open-sourcing, and vetting of working inventions. A special Article from Jean Manning (with permission) Nov 21, 2025

When I saw Drs. John H. Reed and Nick Begich, Sr. in serious conversation across a small dinner table in a convention center's restaurant, I sensed good news.

I had worked closely with Nick three decades ago on a book project, appreciated his integrity, and always enjoyed reconnecting. In recent years I realized that John is equally a principled humanitarian. So, whatever they were brewing could probably benefit the world.

My intuition turned out to be correct.

That day, each of them had attended the panel on 'free energy' organized by Toby Grotz as a final event of July's USPA (United States Psychotronics Association) conference in Illinois.

After each panel member had our say, the audience questioned why a shift to truly clean energy was so slow in coming. They heard many reasons. Yet they were reminded that open-sourcing of a breakthrough invention—even the simple circuit described by one participant—could help lead to the long-awaited beginning.

Amid further lively debate, Nick had stood up and made a generous offer of $50,000 seed money to start such an invention on its way to the goal, if it met necessary requirements. And the money would come out of his own funds, to benefit the greater good.

That lit the fire. As I remember, everyone started talking at the same time.

Nick Begich (left) and John Reed (Right) later told me what happened after we left that panel-discussion room, and this week I spoke with each of them again—first Nick who was working on a project in Colombia, then John in Eastern USA—and asked for more details.

In the hotel after the panel event, John had approached Nick and offered to match his $50,000 if they set up an appropriate legal entity. And they did talk for hours, first in the hotel and then after they returned to their home states.

They set up a new company called Breakthrough Technologies Investment Fund (BTIF) LLC, which they funded with $100,000.00.

I wasn't too surprised. I'll tell you more about why I sensed a change-making partnership forming in that hotel restaurant in July.

First, here is the gist of the announcement placed in the USPA newsletter this fall:

Their new company was established for the development and production of highly innovative devices in the psychotronics, healing, and new energy fields.

Reed and Begich together are providing $100,000 as initial investment funds for inventors and developers of such devices. They have generously offered that any net income or other benefits from investments of their initial $100,000 will go to USPA (United States Psychotronics Association.)

BTIF will consider proposals for several types of devices. The founders hope that others with a strong interest in development of breakthrough technologies in the beneficial psychotronics, healing, and new energy fields will join with BTIF, so that the investment fund can grow and be able to fund even more inventors and startup companies.

(The health, wellness, and healing devices category is better-known, but if you're unfamiliar with psychotronics, that category means technologies that beneficially affect the brain and mind.

“These would include devices whose use will enhance memory, intelligence, learning, or knowledge acquisition; enhance psychic abilities of any kind, such as remote viewing, telepathy, psychometry, or spiritual healing; enhance the placebo and other mind-body effects to treat one's own diseases and disorders.”)

Readers of Aether or... may be most interested in the third category– New Energy and Propulsion Devices.

“This would include any device that generates usable electricity or propulsion operating on new principles of energy production, such as zero-point energy, vacuum energy, magnetic fields, anti-gravity, water as fuel, nitrogen as fuel, or any other ‘free energy’ method.”

“The development and production of any of these devices could potentially have a dramatic effect on the betterment and advancement of humanity. So, if you have developed or are developing any such device, or know someone else who has done so, please send us information or a proposal, and we will follow up with you.”

“Proposals and applications for funding are being accepted, but with the clear understanding that any funding is contingent upon thorough due diligence.”

The announcement ended with, “Please send all communications by email, with attachments, if necessary, to John H. Reed, M.D. at joreed43@gmail.com. You can also phone 443-858-0757. Our mailing address is: Breakthrough Technologies Investment Fund, 6800 Roosevelt Ave., #701, Allen Park, MI 48101.”

Here's a quick sketch of what I know about the BTIF's founders.

When I met Dr. Nick Begich, he was young, yet he already had an honorary degree as a result of impressive research accomplishments. He'd received his doctorate in traditional medicine from The Open International University for Complementary Medicines in 1994. Although teaching was not his profession, he had been voted president of the Alaska Federation of Teachers and the Anchorage Council of Education. His natural abilities as a public speaker, enhanced by being in a political family, were fast unfolding.

Nick took out a loan on his house to publish our co-authored Angels Don't Play This HAARP. The book could have faded out of sight, being nonfiction by new authors and self-published in remote Alaska. However, Nick took the topic to international audiences by speaking on thousands of radio broadcasts and at large events and even to the European Parliament.

Meanwhile he supported his family by, for instance, consulting for Alaskan natives, and gained valuable experience in the arena of business ventures. Nick Begich is a swift learner. He published additional well-researched books.

Nick's speeches during the USPA conference urged people to respond appropriately when they see a need. "Step into it. Do something positive."

Dr. John Reed's life shows his own responses to that call. Some details about his service to frontier science are on his LinkedIn page, such as leading the World Institute for Scientific Exploration (WISE.)

It evolved from his work with the Society for Scientific Exploration. "One of the big interests there was alternative energy. By that I don't mean wind and solar. We're talking about very new energy areas..."

Reed's first career resulted from earning an M.B.A. in finance and a couple of Masters degrees, then working in the venture capital field.

At age 42 John left Wall Street, began his medical studies, and earned an M.D. from the Marshall University School of Medicine. He then did a medical residency at Johns Hopkins University in preventive medicine, "because there is a need to prevent diseases, not just cure them once they occur."

I found common ground with John when he told me he was born and raised in northern Michigan on a small family farm and he milked cows as well as pitched hay. That mirrors my family's experience after we had relocated to northern Idaho during my school years. Farm kids learn life lessons in the hayfields.

John Reed's background explains (to me, anyway) his appreciation of people who work hard physically for a living. He and Nick Begich, regardless of their high degrees from universities, have no educational requirements for applicants for the Breakthrough Technology Investment Fund. And applicants don't need to have any particular work experience.

Questions will of course be asked on an application form for BTIF, and references, just as when we apply for any funds or job. Stating where you went to school is a part of a due-diligence background check on anyone, including doctors.

What the BTIF screening looks for is creativity and that the device works, they both told me. It can't just be theory or an 'r and d' project, but it can be a crude prototype if able to do something useful that standard science can't explain. And the applicant must have integrity.

The founders of the fund didn't receive much response to their announcement in the newsletter and are not surprised. They understand that most inventors are not interested in open source, Nick Begich told me. "And that's fine...We encourage people to move their science forward, whether they use our vehicle or not. We want to help stimulate an altruistic open-source option."

Obituary Dr. Ronald Eugene Barone, D.C. May 21, 1944 – April 5, 2026

Dr. Ronald Eugene Barone, D.C., 81, passed away peacefully on Sunday, April 5, 2026, Easter Sunday, a fitting and meaningful day for a man whose life was grounded in faith, healing, and the promise of renewal.

Ron was born on May 21, 1944, in Chicago, Illinois, to Joseph and Margaret (Lazzara) Barone. His early years were marked by significant health challenges until his family was introduced to chiropractic care, an experience that profoundly changed his life and set him on the path that would become his life's calling.

He graduated from Palmer College of Chiropractic in Davenport, Iowa, in 1966 and went on to build a successful and deeply impactful practice in Dyersville, Iowa.

Dr. Barone dedicated himself to helping others, not only through physical healing but by guiding many along their broader health and spiritual journeys. He was, at his core, a healer, someone who believed deeply in the body's ability to heal and the importance of living in alignment with one's values....

...Ron touched countless lives through his work, his wisdom, and his unwavering desire to help others heal and grow. His legacy lives on not only in the family he cherished, but in the many people whose lives were changed by his care, guidance, and presence.

A Celebration of Life will be held on Saturday, May 16, 2026, in Rapid City, South Dakota. Final arrangements will be announced.

Lost; then Found! 1990 Puharich Lab Tape - Psychic Tech, Healing Frequencies & the Radionics Machine

This was recorded by our friend, Duncan Laurie, in 1990, Dr. Andrija Puharich explains radionics, and then some...<https://youtu.be/jdqX9h41kUI> This is a 40 minute video.

A never-before-seen 1990 interview inside Dr. Andrija Puharich's home lab. In this impromptu session, Puharich breaks down Radionics- from "Stone Age" psychometry (reading information from objects by touch) to an instrument-based method of tuning for "information" and "healing."

He recounts extraordinary case stories involving gifted sensitives, then goes deeper: scalar waves, frequency as data, magnetic monopoles, and the idea that consciousness and creativity might interact with the physical world through precise tuning.

The conversation veers into art and metaphysics- Kandinsky, "inner form," mandalas, sound as activation- and ends with a surprisingly urgent reflection on culture, children, and why music may be central to human survival. This is archival Puharich at full power: theory, controversy, and a worldview where touch, sound, and mind are all part of the same hidden technology. Thanks to Duncan Laurie and Daffi Nathanson for the video.

Dan asked, "Did These Scientists Predict Havana Syndrome in the 1970's?"

The scientists in question being USPA regulars Andrija Puharich and Bob Beck...A short video.

What if the ideas behind Havana Syndrome weren't new at all? In this video, we explore rare archival lectures and recordings from Andrija Puharich and Bob Beck, two researchers who, in the late 1970s, claimed they had uncovered technologies involving electromagnetic signals, the human nervous system, and the potential dangers of directed energy.

According to these recordings, Puharich and Beck believed this technology was not only real, but may already have existed decades ago. They also argued that the public needed to understand both the dangers and the possible positive uses of these discoveries before they disappeared behind military and intelligence secrecy. Now, with Havana Syndrome and directed energy once again in the news, these old recordings raise unsettling questions: If researchers were discussing these possibilities so long ago... why are we only hearing about them now? – here's the link to the video: <https://youtu.be/sWXRcC5YHNU>

Stump the Chump

Correction: Last month ~~Dan Taylor~~ Dan Mangum asked, "Do you recognize the instrument in the attached photos? I got an email from a woman trying to figure it out and hopefully get a users manual so her friend can use the device. Send responses to uspsychotronics@yahoo.com

Dan Taylor responded: That appears to be an instrument designed by the late Katherine Gray, of the White Light Radionics Association in Switzerland. (She was influenced by the late Mark Gallert, whom you have likely heard of, and some of his books survive.) Katherine's devices were popular in Ontario province, at one time, with several practitioners in that area. Here are a few quick search results to get you going:

Section VI – Articles of Interest

Radionics and the Medical Community by Peter Radatti

The medical establishment has rarely welcomed ideas that arise outside its own institutions. In most cases, acceptance comes only after a concept has been filtered through universities, credentialing bodies, pharmaceutical influence, or some other structure the system already recognizes as legitimate. Until then, even potentially valuable ideas are often dismissed, ignored, or ridiculed.

That pattern is not new. In fact, it can be seen repeatedly in the history of healing.

When I look back, I see several modalities that were once treated as outsiders but later became absorbed, constrained, or redefined by the allopathic medical world. Osteopathy is one of the clearest examples. Chiropractic is another. Naturopathy, though less fully integrated, has also felt this pressure. Each of these traditions began with its own distinct philosophy, methods, and strengths. Over time, however, the dominant medical system either fought them, contained them, or reshaped them.

Consider osteopathy. Osteopathic schools were eventually harmonized with allopathic schools to such an extent that graduates of both now practice nearly the same medicine. Only a small and fading number of older physicians still remember or actively use distinctly osteopathic methods. That is unfortunate, because osteopathy once offered a broader, more hands-on approach that brought real value to patients.

Chiropractic followed a different but equally telling path. For decades, chiropractors were denounced as quacks by organized medicine. Yet the underlying idea of spinal manipulation was not unknown or inherently absurd. Osteopaths also used manipulation, and it was long recognized that certain kinds of pain and dysfunction associated with the spine could be relieved through mechanical adjustment. The real objection was never simply that manipulation did not work. The deeper problem was that it did not fit neatly into a system centered on drugs and surgery.

That history matters because it helps explain where radionics may stand today.

When chiropractors, homeopaths, naturopaths, and other alternative practitioners encountered radionics, some of them took it seriously. They may not always have used it openly in clinical settings, often because of licensing concerns or professional risk, but they learned it, explored it, and in some cases incorporated it quietly into their worldview. That fact is important. It marks an early point on the American timeline of radionics as something adjacent to healing practice, even if not formally recognized by medicine.

At this stage, radionics remains in the familiar outsider position. It is still dismissed by many as unproven quackery, much the way chiropractic once was. Yet history suggests that ridicule is often the first institutional response to a system that does not fit accepted models but refuses to disappear.

If we use chiropractic as a rough comparison, radionics may be at something like its 1960s stage. That analogy is imperfect, but it is useful. Chiropractic eventually gained licensure in all 50 states by 1974, yet organized opposition continued long after that. The American Medical Association did not truly relent until a landmark federal antitrust case led to an injunction in 1987 ordering an end to efforts to contain and eliminate the profession. Whether one agrees with every aspect of chiropractic or not, the lesson is clear: institutional hostility can persist for decades, even after public adoption has already begun.

Radionics, however, is not simply another healing profession waiting to be admitted into the medical guild. That is one of the reasons its path will not be identical.

Unlike chiropractic, osteopathy, or naturopathy, radionics is not fundamentally medicine. It is better understood as a spiritual, informational, or consciousness-based modality. It has persisted not because it was granted institutional approval, but because practitioners continued to find it useful in fields where conventional medicine has little or nothing to say.

Medicine does not solve business problems. Medicine does not remotely assist agricultural outcomes. Medicine does not attempt to alter probability, influence events at a distance, or address the larger patterning of circumstances that many would call fate. Radionics, by contrast, has long been used by its practitioners in precisely those broader domains. That is why it cannot be neatly classified as a medical specialty. It is not medicine, though it may be useful to medicine. It can complement medical work, but it also reaches far beyond it.

For that reason, radionics may prove harder for the medical establishment to absorb completely. The allopathic model is built on material mechanisms, measurable interventions, and institutional control. Radionics operates from very different assumptions about information, intention, mind, and causation. Cooperation between the two is possible, but full philosophical convergence is unlikely.

So, what happens next?

The next important step will probably be the consolidation of radionics education into more formal standards. At present, certificates of completion exist in various forms, but the field will eventually need certificates of competency tied to a recognized core body of knowledge. That process appears to be developing already. As standards emerge, training becomes more consistent. As training becomes more consistent, schools, institutes, and recognized programs become possible.

Once formal educational structures appear, the timeline accelerates. From there, one could reasonably expect the creation of dedicated schools, professional organizations with clearer authority, and perhaps certification structures tied to established groups such as the United States Psychotronics Association. If that occurs, legal and regulatory challenges will almost certainly follow. That is simply how institutional systems respond when an unconventional field begins to organize itself successfully.

At some point, organized medicine may attempt to regulate, redefine, or absorb radionics in the same way it largely absorbed osteopathy. I believe that will be more difficult here. The reason is not merely politics. It is temperament. The kind of mind that thrives in radionics is usually not the same kind of mind that thrives in conventional allopathic medicine. The two may cooperate in selected areas, but they are rooted in different habits of thought and different understandings of reality.

Where does that leave us now?

My own view, and I admit I may be wrong, is that radionics will eventually gain a recognized place within the broader healing culture, though perhaps not fully within orthodox medicine itself. That acceptance may come gradually, and it may take most of this century. Still, the conditions that drive people toward alternatives are already in place: dissatisfaction with impersonal medicine, the rising cost of drugs, the staggering expense of hospital care, and the growing sense that conventional systems often treat symptoms while neglecting deeper causes.

Those pressures will continue to push people toward other ways of thinking and healing. Some of that movement will inevitably reach radionics.

Radionics may never become “medicine” in the conventional sense, and perhaps it should not. But it may become something far more durable: a respected parallel discipline, useful where medicine is limited, complementary where medicine is strong, and increasingly difficult for serious people to dismiss.

Book Review by Scott Beutlich - Dan Brown's *The Secret of Secrets

Dan Brown, author of The De Vinci Code Has a new novel out, The Secret of Secrets. It involves a bio-chemistry brain researcher, Dr. Solomon, who wrote her thesis on Non-local Consciousness.

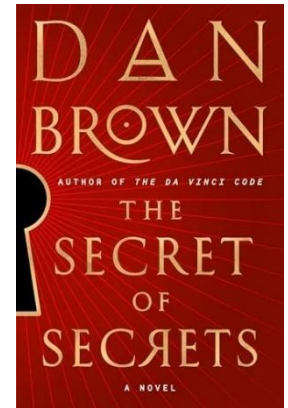

Her protocol, which she attempted to patent, suggests how to enhance out of body type experiences. The CIA continues their SRI remote viewing (Stargate project) by creating a more advanced remote-viewing spy project called “Threshold.”

A lot of action takes place over one day in Prague, where the secret underground CIA lab is just ready to open, twenty years after the denied patent and Dr Solomons book has more research that would help other countries learn how to develop better remote viewing.

Putoff, Targ, Swann, McMonigle, Radin, Noetics, PEAR and many others are named or described.

Psychotronics, NDE, psychic phenomena, out of body experiences, scientific theories, history and research in consciousness and more weave in and out.

It's a novel, with character Dr. Langdon of Dan Brown's other novels and movies ( played by Tom Hanks) helping Dr Solomon and overcoming his skepticism on Nonlocal consciousness.

From John Reed: 60 Minutes Report, March 8, 2026: U.S. military tested device that may be tied to Havana Syndrome on rats, sheep, confidential sources say

60 Minutes - Newsmakers, By Scott Pelley and others.

Tonight, we have details of a classified U.S. intelligence mission that has obtained a previously unknown weapon that may finally unlock a mystery. Since at least 2016, U.S. diplomats, spies and military officers have suffered crippling brain injuries. They've told of being hit by an overwhelming force, damaging their vision, hearing, sense of balance and cognition. but the government has doubted their stories. They've been called delusional. Well now, 60 Minutes has learned that a weapon that can inflict these injuries was obtained overseas and secretly tested on animals on a U.S. military base. We've investigated this mystery for nine years. This is our fourth story called "Targeting Americans." Despite official government doubt, we never stopped reporting because of the haunting stories we heard, like this:

Chris: Very first incident occurred in August of 2020. And what it felt like was that-- someone punched me in the throat, and my left ear was clogged. And I started to get sharp shooting pains going down my left arm.

Chris and Heidi asked us not to use their last name. They met in the Air Force academy. Chris retired as a lieutenant colonel working on highly classified spy satellites. He told us, near Washington, D.C., he was struck by an unseen force five times in five months.

Did US use ‘secret weapon’ in Maduro abduction? By Nina Montagu-Smith, January 26, 2026
Venezuela's defence minister has accused the United States of using the country as a “weapons laboratory” during the abduction of President Nicolas Maduro and his wife, Cilia Flores, on January 3.

Vladimir Padrino Lopez said last week that the US had used Venezuela as a testing ground for “advanced military technologies” that rely on artificial intelligence and weaponry never used before, according to the Venezuelan newspaper El Universal.

On Sunday, US President Donald Trump told the New York Post that US forces had indeed used a weapon he referred to as “the discombobulator”.

“I’m not allowed to talk about it,” he said, adding that the weapon “made equipment not work” during the operation. Details of the US military mission to abduct Maduro have not been made public, but the US has been known to use weapons to disorient soldiers and guards or disable equipment and infrastructure in the past. ## Section VII – Klimo’s Corner

Consciousness, Telepathy, Channeling and Dream States by Jon Klimo

“This is remembering as much as I can of a dream fragment, I had during last night (February 14), early Saturday morning 2026. The dream I had was quite extraordinary partly because I don’t seem to remember hardly any of my dreams the last couple of years. Bbut this one last night and this morning was particularly striking, although it was not actually a full dream. I don’t even remember what the context in the dream was, but here it goes...

I appear to be invited to a group of some kind, like a classroom, but I don’t know what it’s about or where it is, except I can feel it simply as a dream. I have been invited to join this group because I apparently have telepathic or psychic ability or knowledge and I’ve been asked to shed any light I can on what they have been talking about whatever that is.

As I come in and sit down, I momentarily am a bit unsure why I’m there or why they think I’m some kind of adept or authority on telepathy or the mind in general. So, I sit there for a little while wondering about my own ability in this matter, but figuring maybe they know something I don’t about myself that I am expert in this regard.

Then, I don’t seem to recall what happened next, what I have to share with the others. But the dream at this point seems to have something to do with the rest of them holding relatively traditional views on consciousness and the mind while I apparently have more that I might be able to offer.

So that’s the important part about the dream, I suppose, that I’m sitting in this relationship to others and their thinking, and I have been invited to contribute my point of view. The only problem is I just can’t remember what happens next in the dream. For now., I think it’s probably important enough that this just be about the dream as remembered if not more than that and I only hope I am able to remember more later- anything about what I might’ve had to say that would shed light on consciousness or telepathy.

>>I’m going to shift over to something else I’ve been thinking about while awake the last day or so: that’s about the second law of thermodynamics for heaven’s sake. If one is a materialist as most scientists still are these days you look ahead to the eventual demise of our known universe, thinking about it entirely as matter and energy only. According to the usual view, the universe is running down thermodynamically and will eventually disappear into what often is called a “heat death,” but really is a kind of evenly-spread-out sameness where there’s no longer any negentropy to have things happen, with ingredients of more and less ordered systems throughout the universe seen entirely as made out of particles or energy only.

Nowhere in that picture can consciousness be found, and the underlying ultimate reality of consciousness is a view that I hold and have written considerably about. According to this everything-is-consciousness view, eventually the physically-defined universe does wind down thermodynamically until nothing physical/energetic can occur any longer anywhere.

But then, according to the consciousness-based view I hold.,while thermodynamically we would see the result as being a static nothingness of sorts, I would choose to see instead everything as not nothing but somethingness all over and that is because consciousness would be there as it always has been and out of consciousness could come anything and everything and so the continuation of the universe would be guaranteed because only a nothingness-based universe could be the case if everything is just physicality.

If everything is consciousness., there could not be nothing unless consciousness lost its mind or lost its way entirely in so far as its way would be all ways of thinking of and bringing whole universes of things out of its own unlimited mind and that as long as there is consciousness underlying everything there would be the reversal of the thermodynamic heat-death view of the universe because one would always have consciousness to think up everything it wants to, everything possible that could be thought and then held still for itself for a while.

>> I want to turn to another thing I remember from waking life and that is something that happened on a radio program many years ago.. We had been talking about channeling and the notion of “open channeling,” or the generation of what I call “lyrical essays” or prose poetry as a form of channeling as a way of giving voice to a mildly altered, higher-self, expanded state of consciousness under inspiration that would desire to be seeking the larger source of things out of itself, and this would push the limits of expository prose into the neighborhood of the poetic in that it would seek to say and embrace something like “the beloved” as that which most would want to be talked about in that somewhat altered state. And that beloved would be what the heart-part of oneself most wanted to know and embrace and give its love to., that being that All-That-Is or the universe is ultimate subject matter and repository of one’s most loving feelings..

>> Anyway, at that radio show the host of it happened to ask me by the way can you channel, can you do that open channeling where there’s no identifiable source of the inspired stuff coming to you? And so, I sat there in the studio in real life and gave it a try. I sort of remember turning my attention to the task of being an open channel, of opening myself that way, and enabling it to be articulated through me in that manner and I guess it was somewhat successful although I can’t quite remember any details about what I said or what he said in response.

I remember that from past waking consciousness, that attempt to somewhat alter my consciousness and avail myself of whatever would happen to come through me as a result. In fact, being able to open myself to being an open channel when I want to often under the influence of religio-spiritual or related music in a classical manner as helping inspire myself. So, I remember that from real life.

>> Now I find myself remembering something more from what happened in that dream last night. There I sat in the dream, invited to speak, and wondering what if anything I might be able to say. What happened was I let myself in the dream open to being that kind of open channel I have written about and I can remember in the dream how it felt to be making that voluntary transition of consciousness and then being able to speak and even explain. I it was virtually the same kind of experience in that dream that I had remembered from years ago in that radio station. In both cases, I was successfully able at least somewhat at the time to alter my consciousness and be able to speak in somewhat of a carried-away, inspired manner compared to normal speaking and thinking... I remember I was successful in both my dream and at the radio station years ago in waking life.

>> I don’t think I’ve ever had a dream in my life where I found myself, allowed myself, to alter my consciousness in order to open myself to a mode of expression I normally can’t do. Now that I think about it., in that dream, when I attempted to address that group in my somewhat altered state, it was about consciousness and something about telepathy that they wanted me to talk about, and here I was in the dream, allowing myself to move to a somewhat different state in order to best express myself and my thinking, and that’s what I do in waking consciousness as well even if a lot of people can’t quite follow me in what I have written out of that experience.

>> Thinking again about the dream., I think it had something to do with what I was saying about consciousness and what occurs in the telepathic state as a conjoint sharing of consciousness. That’s exactly what I’ve tried to do while awake as well so there’s a certain isomorphism between the dreaming and the waking state in what I think about consciousness and how I try to talk and write about it.

>> Now back to thinking about the eventual thermodynamic heat-death of the universe in physical terms. I choose to think about such end times within the infinite-dimensional container-creator that is consciousness in much the same way I was trying to talk about telepathy or shared consciousness in my dream.

In both cases - of the eventually demise of the physical universe, and of telepathic-shared consciousness as subject matter within my dream - the common thread is the all-pervading atmosphere of consciousness, the allowing, enabling nature of consciousness itself. It keeps the physical universe from ever having to stop being and it allows us beings to share consciousness in the common, all-inclusive context of being and allowing. That is the nature of consciousness for me and what I was remembering dreaming about.”

Section VIII – In Case You Missed March’s Masterclass

USPA Masterclass #71 “From Scan to Strategy: Turning Subtle Data Into Practical Steps” Featured Wolfgang Bucher, March 21, 2026

From Wolfgang, “In this masterclass, I will present a structured, practice-oriented framework for working with subtle information in a professional setting.

Rather than focusing on isolated numbers, the session shows how to move from an initial concern to meaningful patterns, working hypotheses, and practical next steps that clients can actually apply. A key focus is how to reduce practitioner bias and over-interpretation by working with questions instead of statements, keeping the process transparent and ethically responsible. A short demonstration will illustrate the workflow from “scan” to “strategy” without turning the session into software training.”

Wolfgang Bucher is a business informatics specialist (Wirtschaftsinformatiker) and the founder of Bucher GmbH (Germany), established in 1994. The company’s mission is the development and production of IT-supported systems used in complementary medicine and holistic practice. Wolfgang is the developer behind Bucher Coaching Systems (BCS), a modular platform with product options such as Bucher Vita Coach (radionics), Bucher Aura Coach (chakra harmonization), Bucher TAO Medical (TCM applications), and additional modules including astrology-based balancing (Cosmic Lights Balancing). For Canada and the United States, Bucher GmbH has packaged a focused configuration called BCS Core to support a clear, practical introduction and professional workflow.

In Germany, Wolfgang regularly teaches online seminars and user trainings for professional practitioners working with BCS. He also creates educational content under the neovara-coach brand, with an emphasis on practical, transparent methods and responsible communication.

Section XI- USPA Local Affiliate Groups

The USPA is establishing localized affiliate psychotronics groups wherever our members are located – in the United States and elsewhere in the world. This is so that USPA members and others interested in psychotronics can get together in person, socialize, collaborate, and have speakers make local presentations

These local groups will be independent to give you maximum freedom of organization and activities. These groups can be composed of USPA members, as well as, others interested in psychotronics who may later decide to become members of the USPA. A set of "Guidelines" will be provided.

Section XII - MIA “Among the Missing”

Missing People, Organizations, Periodicals, Books, Artifacts, and more in the Psychotronics Field

by John H. Reed, USPA President

This is a new “column” or section of the USPA Newsletter, with the purpose of helping the USPA, as well as our members and research associates, to locate people, organizations, written works, devices, and other items that have seemingly disappeared, or have been extremely difficult to find in the psychotronics field. Updates will be added, and each missing item will be retained in future issues until it is found or otherwise resolved.

In our research and reading, we all have encountered reports or mentions of things of interest that we have tried to find. With our expanding readership, we can all help one another find what we have been searching for. Some may have experience in genealogical research, private investigation, law enforcement, or even intelligence work, which you could use to help with these searches.

This will also serve as a “People Locator Service” to help USPA members find authors, researchers, and other people involved in psychotronics, radionics, subtle energies, free energy, and related subjects. This would include people who have “disappeared” or have died long ago, and whose relatives USPA members may be trying to find in order to preserve the research papers and collection of that person.

If there is anything you have been searching for and need help to find, please write to me at: joreed43@gmail.com, and I will include your search help request in the next issues of the USPA Newsletter. And if you have any information about an item that is listed in this column, please email me and share what you know or your suggestions. Any request for confidentiality will be honored and protected.

Missing Device: Lafferty Radionic Instrument

Does anyone know anything about the Lafferty Radionic instrument? The "Lafferty" in the instrument name, may refer to Tom Lafferty, a recognized radionics practitioner and researcher who has contributed to the radionics field, particularly through patient surveys. It has been reported that Lafferty is associated with the development or analysis of the "Virtual Radionic Instrument" (VRI), which translates traditional, hardware-based radionic methods into computer/tablet software. If anyone has any information about this instrument or its inventor, please contact John at: joreed43@gmail.com

Missing Person: Paul Sauvin

We are trying to track down some of the early directors, officers, and researchers associated with the United States Psychotronics Association (USPA), after it was organized in 1975. Paul Sauvin was a USPA officer in 1996 and 1977. Paul, whose full name is Pierre Paul Sauvin, was an electrical engineer and inventor who, according to one source, worked in the aerospace industry and later with the National Institute for Rehabilitation Engineering at St. Joseph’s Hospital in Paterson, NJ. He also worked with Dr. Carl Schleicher, head of Mankind Research Unlimited, and helped develop a device called the “AGRAD Machine.” This device was designed to control crop insects, and was introduced on an experimental basis, although it is not known if it ever reached commercial production. Paul Sauvin’s mother was Edith Sauvin, who lived in White Plains, NY, and died August 25th, 1987. Edith’s only child was Pierre Paul Sauvin, who himself had 2 sons, Alan Paul Sauvin and Steven Eric Sauvin. He also had one daughter, Jane Elizabeth Sauvin. Any help in locating the children of Paul Sauvin would be greatly appreciated, and please write to joreed43@gmail.com.

Missing Organization and Proceedings: International Association for Psychotronic Research (IAPR)

Does anyone know what became of the International Association for Psychotronic Research? And do any of you have copies of its meeting proceedings? It was founded in 1973. However, the current location or activities of the IAPR are unknown.

The IAPR held numerous international conferences around the world, beginning with its first in 1974 in Prague, then Czechoslovakia. At this conference, Dr. Zdenek Rejdak was elected president for the Eastern Division of the IAPR, and Dr. Stanley Krippner was elected president for the West. The 8th International Conference on Psychotronic Research was held in Milwaukee, Wisconsin, 1993, as a joint conference with the United States Psychotronics Association (USPA), but it is unknown if any subsequent conferences of the IAPR were held.

Proceedings of each of these conferences were published, but the USPA Library only has copies of the second conference in 1976 and the eighth conference in 1993. In addition, the IAPR published a newsletter called Psychotronic. Thanks to the research of Gail Wind, our current USPA Newsletter editor, we have the first issues of Psychotronic through vol.1, no.3-4, 1977, but none after that date. If any of you have any knowledge about this organization, or have copies of the proceedings, or newsletters, please write to John at: joreed43@gmail.com

Section XIII- Thomas Bearden’s Books Are Available Through USPA

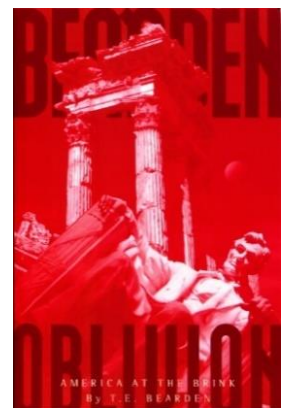

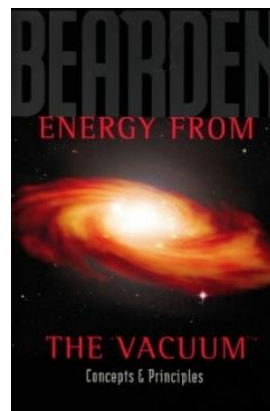

Dana Bearden, daughter of the late Thomas E. Bearden, has opened her private stash of her father's books to USPA! We will be selling them for her on commission and her prices are WAY below eBay, Amazon, Alibris, or anywhere else we've found them.

We have two volumes ready right now, but we'll be adding more soon. Please note: Currently, the prices include shipping for the United States only, but the USPA folks are open to working with people outside the US on an individual basis who are willing to pay the extra shipping, duties and taxes based on location. Contact gailinvermont@outlook.com for a shipping quote.

This is a very new project, for Dana and the USPA, so keep checking. We'll add more Bearden Titles as soon as we can. Find them at <https://www.psychotronics.org/shop/> in the Books section.

What is USPA?

The United States Psychotronics Association (USPA) is a federally recognized, nonprofit 501(c)(3) organization founded in 1975 to serve as a focal point for scientific and technical exploration of the universe of esoteric, spiritual, and psychic arts in the United States of America.

The USPA has been hosting annual conferences for its membership since its formation and has featured countless individuals with cutting-edge viewpoints, research, or theories to share, allowing any interested persons to openly discuss their work.

What is Psychotronics?

USPA defines psychotronics as the science of mind-body-environment relationships, an interdisciplinary science concerned with the interactions of matter, energy, and consciousness.

Psychotronics involves the study, research, and applications of the physics and technology of the mind, brain, spirit, consciousness, and the underlying forces of life and nature – hence the term “psychotronics.” A true understanding of the universe must include the spiritual as well as the technical. USPA provides an opportunity for amateur researchers to present their findings along with the professionals.

USPA stresses research, with documentation of results, and practical applications, rather than personal experience and unsupported hypotheses.

J.G. Gallimore’s Books are Still Available on Amazon - through assistance from USPA

Jerry G. Gallimore was one of the founders of the USPA in 1975, and was a leading researcher in psychotronics and unusual energies until his untimely death in 1989.

All five of J.G. Gallimore’s rare books on psychotronics subjects and unusual energies have been reprinted by the United States Psychotronics Association (USPA) and are being made available at a fraction of the cost that used copies were being sold at online. Available at Amazon.com USPA Shares in the income from these sales.

So rare have these books been, that only a few libraries in the entire world had them in their collections, and some original Gallimore's books were being sold for several hundred dollars each online. However, with these newly reprinted volumes, each will be available for less than $30.00.

The Handbook of Unusual Energies: Volume	ISBN-13: 978-1543024999	The 1st book of 3 on unusual energies	468 Pages
Gallimore discusses in depth the research, discoveries, and inventions of all the major researchers in subtle energies, the aether, biological 62 fields, pyramid energy, radiesthesia, radionics, crystal transduction, and related subjects. These include the works of Baron von Reichenbach's and his odic energy, Dr. Wilhelm Reich's orgone energy, Dr. Harold Burr's biological life fields, Kozyrev's time mirror, Edgar Cayce's transmission of energy, and related research done by many others. Of particular importance is Gallimore's 127-page chapter on radionics. In this chapter he discusses in depth the research and devices of Ruth Drown, T. Galen Hieronymus, Rho Sigma, Dr. L. P. Corte, and other prominent people in the radionics field.
Collected Properties &amp; Writings of J. G. Gallimore: Volume 2	ISBN-13: 978-1543025040	The 2nd book of 3 on unusual energies	258 Pages
This is the second book in the "Unusual Energies" series that J.G. Gallimore published. It covers Gallimore's research on Albert Abrams, the founder of modern radionics, psychological physics, psychic energy, thought resonance, subtle energies, crystals, and related subjects. In addition, a number of radionics devices are discussed, such as the De La Warr Diagnostic Instrument. And very helpfully, the rates are provided for substances, body organs, and medical diseases and disorders. I very interesting interview of Christopher Bird, conducted by J.G. Gallimore is provided, as well as a discussion of Walter Russell and his research
Relationship Between Parapsychology and Gravity: Vol. 3	ISBN-13: 978-1543024944	The 3rd book of 3 on unusual energies	228 Pages
This book describes in depth the research and theories of J.G. Gallimore into the question of "parapsychology transmission" -the question of how such things as telepathy, remote viewing, ESP, and similar phenomena can physically occur. He discusses the various emanations, radiations, and energy fields of all matter and life including the ancient Chinese energy called "chi" (qi), the ancient Indian's prana energy, Reichenbach's "odic force," Gurwitsch's "mitogenic radiation," Wilhelm Reich's orgone energy, and other subtle energies. He shows how these energies are similar, how they interact, and how they are related to gravity. He also discusses crystals as transducers of these energies, and provides diagrams of devices that could potentially be used to harness or control these energies.
Transverse Paraphysics: The New Science of Space, Time, and Gravity Control	ISBN-13: 978-1543024920	Gallimore's fourth book	374 Pages
This book covers the visionary research and theories developed by J.G. Gallimore about anti-gravity, space, time, and biophysics. He discusses in depth the dimensions of space, time, and gravity, and new discoveries in each of these areas. In addition, he covers research being done on anti-gravity and then discusses anti-gravity patents that have been obtained. He also discusses the intriguing concept of aura energy fields surrounding humans and other living things, and how extra-sensory perception (ESP) might be explained through biophysical principles.

Unified Field Theory Research Book:
Using Subjective Response to Psi-Plasma

ISBN-13:
978-1543024838

Gallimore's
Fifth book

134 Pages

This book is about psychotronics, radionics, electromagnetic fields and waves, psi-plasma, plasma fields, subtle energies, bio-electromagnetic energy, and other unusual energies emitted by living and non-living things. It also is about how living things interact with and are affected by these energies, which may enhance or harm health.

Dana Bearden, daughter of the late Thomas E. Bearden, has opened her private stash of her father's books to USPA! We will be selling them for her on commission and her prices are WAY below eBay, Amazon, Alibris, or anywhere else we've found them.

We have two volumes ready right now, but we'll be adding more soon. Please note: Currently, the prices include shipping for the United States only, but the USPA folks are open to working with people outside the US on an individual basis who are willing to pay the extra shipping, duties and taxes based on location. Contact gailinvermont@outlook.com for a shipping quote.

This is a very new project, for Dana and the USPA, so keep checking. We'll add more Bearden Titles as soon as we can. Find them at <https://www.psychotronics.org/shop/> in the Books section.

(Check prices on eBay or Amazon – then go to our shop!)
