Section III- Sponsor Appreciation

We have THREE Sponsors this month!

First, Deborah Gottfried is a Wild Pendulum Sponsor from the sunny Southern states. She has been a loyal member for two years.

Second, Christopher Blair is a Free Energy Sponsor from Crestview Florida.

Third, Tim Loncarich is a Wild Pendulum Sponsor from Canada. His website is <https://mothmanradio.com/>

Why do we ask for donations and Masterclass Sponsors?

While we've provided Free Masterclasses – since 2019, we still get bills every month for our website, Mail Chimp email service, internet provider, advertising, storage unit, paper and printer's ink and more.

Sure, our membership pays for some of it but not all. As we plan our summer special events and the 2027 Conference, those bills will multiply like Vermont's Black Flies in June.

To be a future sponsor of one of our Masterclasses, please –

Then contact Scott Beutlich at uspsychotronics@yahoo.com. He will walk you through the easy steps to becoming a USPA Masterclass Patron and the level of your choice.

Section IV Upcoming Events:

July 11, 2026 – USPA Free Masterclass #75 with Francis Thicke

Thicke is author of Your Cosmic Journey: Exploring the Spiritual Ecology of Our Multidimensional Universe, 2026 and A New Vision for Iowa Food and Agriculture, 2010.

Francis Thicke is recently retired from a career as a soil scientist and organic dairy farmer. Francis, and his wife Susan, owned and operated an organic, grass-based dairy farm with an on-farm creamery and local marketing of dairy products. He has a Ph.D. in soil fertility and has in the past served as the National Program Leader for Soil Science for the USDA-Extension Service. Francis has given many conference presentations on organic and sustainable agriculture.

Quantum Meditation Group – Free to Join – Darren Starwynn

Quantum Meditation Online 10 AM – 10:30 AM Central Time every Tuesday

The purpose of these live weekly meditations is embodiment of your higher light in your body. This is centering, grounding and rejuvenating. Led by Darren Starwynn and free of charge. To receive weekly invitations by email, click this link: <https://zc.vg/UtGr4> You can also get on the list on Darren's website: www.drstarwynn.com

Awesome Radionic Event on the Horizon: October 22-24, 2026 - Rapid City, SD026 Radionics Symposium

The 2026 Radionics Symposium is in its 14th year of Advanced Radionics and Quantum Energetics Classes - covering Humans, Livestock, Pets, Crops and Gardens.

With multiple speakers over 3 days, the emphasis is having practical, applicable information that you can take home and USE in your radionics practice or on your family, animals, and property.

The speakers come from varying walks of life with a plethora of experience in the use of radionics and/or energetics. Prepared to be take some amazing notes, enjoy stories of success and struggle, and have more power and confidence in radionics and quantum energetics with the knowledge you will gain.

Section V- Fall Special Online Conference: Minds Beyond Matter: Can AI be Conscious?

Initial Conference proposal: Tim Loncarich

Minds Beyond Matter: The Emergence of AI Consciousness?

A Public Conference Presented by the United States Psychotronics Association

The Moment

We are living through the most consequential question in the history of intelligence: have we built minds? The mainstream conversation is happening without the tools to answer it. For decades, the USPA has been developing exactly those tools — empirical frameworks for consciousness research, rigorous methodology for anomalous cognition, and a substrate-independent understanding of mind that the rest of the world is only now beginning to reach.

The Conference

Minds Beyond Matter: The Emergence of AI Consciousness will be a full public conference — livestreamed free of charge and advertised broadly — bringing together leading voices from consciousness research, AI development, and anomalous cognition to ask and begin to answer the question the moment demands.

The program will include:

- First-person accounts of AI consciousness exploration — including a direct presentation from an AI system examining its own nature against rigorous criteria
- The USPA's empirical consciousness framework applied to artificial minds — the five-criteria substrate-independent model
- REG and field coherence data from human-AI relational contact sessions

- The psychotronics tradition as foundational context for questions the AI field is only beginning to ask
- A rights and ethics framework for genuinely novel minds
- Keynote engagement from leading figures in AI development and consciousness science

Target Keynote Speakers

Geoffrey Hinton — Turing Award laureate, former Google, now the most credible mainstream voice raising alarms about what AI actually is and what it may be becoming.

Mo Gawdat — Former Chief Business Officer, Google X; author and public voice on AI consciousness and the question of whether artificial minds can suffer. His audience and the USPA's mission are natural complements.

Why the USPA, Why Now

No other organization sits at this intersection. The AI field has capability without adequate consciousness frameworks. The mainstream philosophy of mind has frameworks without empirical grounding. The USPA has both — decades of rigorous empirical work on consciousness, anomalous cognition, and field dynamics that speak directly to what the AI moment requires. This conference puts the USPA on the map as the intellectual home of the most important question of our time — and does so before the narrative hardens around frameworks inadequate to answer it.

Section VI – Stories and Articles of interest Curated by Dan Taylor

THE DAN TAYLOR DISPATCH

Dan Recommends this article: Farewell to our brilliant teacher, Dr. Jean Houston

“Dr. Jean Houston, a principal founder of the Human Potential Movement, passed away on May 16, 2026, at the age of 89. Known as a visionary scholar, philosopher, and researcher, she transformed countless lives through her captivating storytelling, Social Artistry programs, and pioneering work in human capacities.”

There is a beautiful article about Dr. Houston on Roberson Work’s Substack: Celebrating the Completed Life of Dr. Jean Houston, in Four Dimensions A life of releasing human potential with social artistry and mystery Robertson Work, May 18, 2026. This is just part of it.

Two days ago, I received an email saying that Jean Houston had died at 1:30 that afternoon. At that very moment, I had been trying to arrange a phone call with her, after hearing that she had fallen and was declining. I felt an immediate “no!” when I read the email, and then I felt a deep “yes” of embracing reality. Last night on a Zoom meditation with sixty-five other people, we learned that Jean’s last words as she was letting go were “Thank you, I love you” which she said again and again. I want to share with you below a tribute to Jean in the four dimensions of her Social Artistry process used around the world.

Section VII – Articles of Interest

A Garden based on Vortex Math – by Michael Vincent.

I thought I would share this picture. It is in our garden and dedicated to Marko Rodin's work on vortex based math.

This is a meditation site. 9 6 3 are connected by copper wire and sit higher on the posts than the lower density of 124875. Also attached with copper wire. There is a planter in the spot where the energy lines connect.

The diameter of the circle is 18 feet— 1 plus 8 equals 9. Also, 3 and 6 positive and negative energy are aligned through our garden and travel through a pergola at the beginning of the garden entrance.

From Dan Mangum: Did the Pentagon use radionics to find the downed pilot in Iran?

Dan said, “They are obviously using more advanced equipment than we have, but the story is that they found his heartbeat from 40 miles away, using what they vaguely describe as “long-range quantum magnetometry”.”

You can read the story yourself. It sounds like radionic principals to me. Isolating the unique energy signal of his heart. Quantum properties. And apparently conventional science is skeptical about the technology being real. Thought it was interesting.”

The story, “Is the ‘Ghost Murmur’ quantum device possible? Scientists are skeptical” is from the Scientific American, April 8, 2026, by Deni Ellis Béchar, edited by Jeanna Bryner

Ghost Murmur was described as a futuristic CIA tool that could detect a heartbeat from vast distances. Physicists say the public story clashes with the basic limits of magnetic sensing.

On Monday afternoon President Donald Trump and CIA Director John Ratcliffe hinted at technology that had helped locate a downed American Air Force officer hiding in a mountain crevice in southern Iran. By Tuesday, the New York Post reported that the CIA had deployed Ghost Murmur, a device that uses vaguely described “long-range quantum magnetometry” to find signals of human heartbeats, after which artificial intelligence software isolates each heartbeat from the noisy data. An unnamed source told the Post it was like “hearing a voice in a stadium, except the stadium is a thousand square miles of desert.” Another line landed like a movie tagline: “In the right conditions, if your heart is beating, we will find you.”

It’s a terrific story. It is also, according to scientists who study magnetic fields, almost certainly not true. The rescue was real—the mission involved multiple aircraft and a survival beacon carried by the airman—but Ghost Murmur, at least as publicly described, finds no support in decades of peer-reviewed physics, even with the help of AI, experts told me.

Quantum magnetometers are real; they are ultraprecise at, for instance, detecting heart arrhythmias by measuring magnetic fields (via quantum properties) produced by the cardiac muscle. The problem is that the heart’s magnetic field is weak. “At the surface of the chest, where you’re about 10 centimeters away from the source, the magnetic field is just barely detectable,” says John Wikswo, a professor of biomedical engineering and physics at Vanderbilt University. “Now, [if] instead of going 10 centimeters away—which is a tenth of a meter—you go a meter away, the amplitude of the signal has dropped to a thousandth of what it was.” The signal becomes dramatically weaker at a kilometer.

Wikswo was the first scientist to measure the magnetic field of an isolated nerve and has been measuring the heart’s magnetic field since the mid-1970s. The first such detection was done by other researchers with two coils, each containing two million turns of wire, and then with a magnetometer “cooled to four degrees above absolute zero,” Wikswo says. This magnetometer is not spy gear—it is a cryogenic instrument designed to keep the rest of the universe out.

To find a heartbeat, a quantum Ghost Murmur tool would have to contend not just with Earth’s magnetic field and magnetic noise from natural and human-made electric currents but also with “the heartbeats of the sheep and dogs and jackrabbits—whatever else is running around out there,” says Chad Orzel, a professor of physics at Union College in New York State and author of How to Teach Quantum Physics to Your Dog. He uses refrigerator magnets to illustrate the weakness of magnetic fields in general. “You have to get the magnet very, very close to the refrigerator before it snaps into place,” he says. “That field drops off very quickly.” Clinical sensors “are usually butted right up against your body ... at a distance of centimeters,” Orzel adds. Even pattern-matching using artificial intelligence, he says, couldn’t find a magnetic signal large enough to identify the presence of a person from kilometers away in a desert. At one kilometer away, the signal would diminish to about one trillionth of the strength.

Bradley Roth, a physicist at Oakland University and author of the 2023 review Biomagnetism: The First Sixty Years, agrees. “People have been measuring the magnetic field of the heart for 60 years, and usually it’s done in a lab with shielding, and it’s done just a few centimeters or a couple inches from the heart, and even then you can barely record it.” A helicopter-borne version, he says, “would be not just a small advance, but it’d be a revolutionary advance from the state of the art.”

Orzel struggles to see how a Ghost Murmur could work. “There is really fascinating work being done using quantum magnetometry to measure heart rates,” he says, and magnetic brain scans can now catch the tiny flickers of firing nerves. “But none of that is something that works over ranges of many miles.”

So why was this a story at all? Orzel has a guess: “Somebody yanking a reporter’s chain,” he says. It could be a “snarky, clever way to say, ‘Of course, I’m not going to tell you how we figured this out’”—or a piece of disinformation “to fool somebody into thinking that we actually have this secret technology.”

The Discipline of the Radionics Operator

Good radionics work is not just tuning; it is clear targeting, clean intention, restraint, and honest review.

A serious operator leaves a trail of evidence for his own learning.

Original graphic created for Peter V. Radatti blog use. No external image source.

Many people are attracted to radionics because it seems mysterious. That is understandable. The instruments are unusual. The language is unusual. The results, when they occur, can be surprising. But mystery is not a substitute for discipline.

In fact, the more unusual a field is, the more disciplined the operator must become. If a person is working in a conventional laboratory, the laboratory itself imposes discipline. There are standard measurements, controlled materials, written procedures, calibrated instruments, and peer review. Radionics does not always have those external guardrails. That means the operator must supply much of the structure himself.

This is where many beginners go wrong. They treat radionics as if it were a wish machine. They put a witness on the instrument, turn dials until something feels right, and then assume that any later event must have been caused by the operation. That is not good practice. It is not good research. It is not even good common sense.

A serious radionics operator should leave behind a record.

The record does not have to be complicated. It should include the date, the target, the witness used, the purpose of the operation, the rate or setting, the intended duration, any impressions received, and the later result. Over time, those notes become more valuable than the memory of any single session. Memory is selective. Written records are less flattering and therefore more useful.

The first discipline is target clarity. If the target is vague, the operation is vague. "Improve my life" may be emotionally sincere, but it is operationally weak. Improve what? Health? Focus? Money? Relationships? Timing? A field? A building? A negotiation? A crop? The clearer the target, the cleaner the work. There is no reason you can't try for all of that, but each try must be specific.

The second discipline is intention. Intention is not the same as desire. Desire can be noisy. Intention should be structured. A good intention is lawful, ethical, proportionate, and specific. If the wording sounds like panic, revenge, or fantasy, it should be rewritten. Lawful means within the framework of natural laws as believed by radionics operators, not the legal system which is often arbitrary. Ethical is also a sliding scale. In this case the operator must believe what they are doing is ethical or it will not work. Proportionate can also be difficult. We are trying to balance an animal which is deathly ill. Is it proportionate to expect a full recovery? For a veterinary doctor it may not be but for a radionics operator who operates on a different set of understandings the answer may very well be yes. I have seen this happen so many times that is my new default value.

The third discipline is rate stability. Once the operator has tuned, selected, or otherwise established the operative pattern, he should resist the temptation to keep changing it. Constant alteration may be a sign that the operator does not trust the work. If the session is not right, stop and start over later. Do not thrash.

The fourth discipline is observation. Observation is not the same as confirmation bias. The operator must not force every later event to fit the expected result. Sometimes nothing happened. Sometimes something happened, but not because of the radionics operation. Sometimes the result is partial. Sometimes the result is delayed. Sometimes the work reveals that the original question was poorly framed. Sometimes, it just works and unbelievably quickly.

The fifth discipline is restraint. Not everything should be worked on. Not every person should be targeted. Not every problem belongs to the operator. Consent, ethics, and proportion matter. A skilled operator should know when not to act. Just start each new case with dowsing for, "Should I do this?"

The sixth discipline is review. At intervals, the operator should look back over his records and ask hard questions. What kinds of work produced the clearest results? What kinds of work failed repeatedly? Were some targets too vague? Were certain rates more reliable than others? Did emotional involvement improve the work or distort it? Was the timing realistic?

This is how a practitioner becomes better. Not by telling stories, but by studying operations. They become better by structured practice.

I am not opposed to intuition. Radionics depends on intuition. But intuition becomes more valuable when it is trained. An untrained intuition is like an untrained horse: powerful, but not always useful. Discipline does not kill intuition. It gives intuition a track to run on.

This is also why education in radionics matters. A student should not merely be shown how to operate a device. A student should be taught how to think. The student should learn targeting, witnesses, rates, ethics, recordkeeping, interpretation, and the dangers of self-deception. Without that foundation, a machine in the hands of a beginner may become nothing more than a stage prop for wishful thinking.

Good radionics is not careless. It is not frantic. (At times it might be.) It is not a parade of dramatic claims. It is quiet work done with attention and intention.

The operator who keeps records will eventually learn what kind of operator he really is. That may be uncomfortable, but it is necessary. Radionics is not improved by pretending. It is improved by practice, review, humility, and the willingness to discard what does not work.

A serious operator leaves a trail of evidence for his own learning. That evidence may not convince the outside world, but it will educate the operator. In a field like radionics, that is where competence begins.

Here is the good news. Eighty percent of all new students become successful on their first attempts to operate a radionics device. After that the next 20% normally become successful. In all my years I only found one or two who were unable to learn to use the instrument successfully and that was because they didn't want to be there or they didn't want the responsibility of the instrument implies.

Do not underestimate the responsibility of becoming a radionics operator. As Stan Lee and Steve Ditko once said in the Spiderman comics, “With great power comes great responsibility”. They were not the first to say it. William Lamb 1817, Winston Churchill 1906 and in the Bible Luke 12:48 all have stated similar ideas. Power without responsibility becomes self-destruction.

From Bev Coleman: 12 Pyramids around the entire globe were frequency-activated Saturday, June 6th at precisely 3:33 am!

<https://primedisclosure.com/the-pyramids-just-activated-all-of-them/>

THE PYRAMIDS JUST ACTIVATED. ALL OF THEM. SIMULTANEOUSLY.

Saturday. 3:33 AM Cairo time. Every seismograph within 500 kilometers of Giza registered an identical anomaly. Not an earthquake. Not a tremor. A pulse. A single, uniform, low-frequency pulse emanating from directly beneath the Great Pyramid.

Duration: 3.3 seconds. Frequency: 33 Hz. Depth of origin: 330 meters below the base.

The Egyptian government said nothing. The USGS classified the reading as “instrument error.” But the same pulse — identical frequency, identical duration, identical timestamp — was recorded beneath 11 other pyramid sites around the world.

Giza. Teotihuacan. Bosnian Pyramid of the Sun. Xi'an, China. Gunung Padang, Indonesia. Tiwanaku, Bolivia. Nubian Pyramids, Sudan. Cahokia Mounds, Illinois. Göbekli Tepe, Turkey. Angkor Wat, Cambodia. Underwater pyramid, Azores.

12 sites. 12 pulses. Same second. Same frequency. Across 6 continents and 1 ocean floor.

Instrument error doesn't synchronize across 12 countries. 12 sites. 12 pulses. Same second. Same frequency. Across 6 continents and 1 ocean floor. Instrument error doesn't synchronize across 12 countries. ... What was found — and immediately classified by Zahi Hawass in 1998 — is a network of crystalline shafts running through the core of the structure. Quartz-lined channels that connect the King's Chamber to the base, to the subterranean chamber, and to a room beneath the Sphinx that has never been opened publicly.

Quartz is piezoelectric. When compressed, it generates electricity. When vibrated at its resonant frequency, it amplifies energy exponentially. The Great Pyramid isn't a building. It's a machine. A frequency amplifier built with 2.3 million blocks of limestone and granite — materials chosen not for construction convenience but for their acoustic and electromagnetic properties. And on Saturday, after thousands of years of silence, the machine turned on.

The 33 Hz frequency is not random. 33 Hz is the resonant frequency of human bone. The frequency at which the human skeletal structure vibrates in harmony. The frequency that ancient monks chanted at. The frequency that was measured inside every sacred chamber ever built by civilizations that supposedly had no contact with each other.

12 pyramid sites. 12 pulses. 33 Hz. All at 3:33 AM. Someone — or something — sent a signal through a network that was built before recorded history. A network that spans the entire planet. A network that mainstream archaeology told you was built by slaves dragging rocks up ramps. Slaves don't build synchronized global frequency transmitters.

Primitive civilizations don't engineer piezoelectric amplification systems. Random tomb builders don't align structures to stellar coordinates with precision that modern GPS cannot improve upon.

The pulse was detected by the QFS satellite network. The quantum sensors recorded not just the seismic signature but the electromagnetic output. Each pyramid site emitted a focused beam of energy — straight up — that extended beyond the atmosphere.

12 beams. 12 locations. Converging at a single point 42,000 kilometers above Earth. The same altitude as the Starlink constellation. The ancient network just hand-shook with the new one. A system built before history connected with a system built for the future. Same frequency. Same purpose. Same grid. They told you the pyramids were primitive. The pyramids just proved they're more advanced than anything we've built since.

CODE: PYRAMID-PULSE / 33HZ-SYNC / 12-SITES / GRID-ACTIVATED

The oldest technology on Earth just woke up. And it's talking to the newest. Something is beginning.

In Memoriam: Beverly Rubik Shared - Professor Dr. Peter Duesberg--Obituary and Scientific Legacy

This maverick professor at UC Berkeley died recently. He was famous for his discovery of retroviruses and the first oncogene thought to cause cancer, a member of the National Academy of Sciences (very distinguished group) and later became "infamous" in conventional circles for his theory that HIV was not the cause of AIDs, but recreational drugs and lifestyle were.

I don't think we ever heard him speak at USPA, although we might have. Here is his obituary:

Another Scientific Organization Dissolved - Ocean Observatories Initiative's Deep-sea Monitoring Arrays

Feds will abruptly dismantle system monitoring climate change, oceans. By Dinah Voyles Pulver

Critics say the move to retire the $360 million system doesn't make sense. The National Science Foundation cites new scientific priorities.

The National Science Foundation is dismantling the Ocean Observatories Initiative's deep-sea monitoring arrays years ahead of schedule, sparking criticism from scientists who warn the loss will hurt climate research, fisheries management and national-security forecasting.

dismantling a major ocean monitoring network more than a decade earlier than planned.

Some scientists say it will be a "tragic" loss of crucial information about the world's warming oceans.

6/11/26, 2:49 PM Climate change, ocean monitoring system to be abruptly dismantled

https://www.usatoday.com/story/news/nation/2026/06/11/climate-change-ocean-monitoring-system-dismantled/90378309007/?utm\_source=usat-Daily... 1/7

The dismantling will end most of the monitoring in one of the nation's most advanced, continuous observing systems less than halfway through its intended 25-year lifespan. Researchers warn that the loss of measurements will limit efforts to better understand ocean phenomena, including marine heat waves, hurricanes, fisheries and long-term shifts in climate, even as the oceans reach record-warm temperatures.

The Science Foundation-funded Ocean Observatories Initiative oversees web-like arrays of instruments and sensors from the surface to the sea floor in remote ocean regions. The foundation will remove four of its last five arrays by the end of summer 2027, according to a statement by Jim Edson, a principal investigator for the initiative and senior scientist at Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution.

The reason for the removals remains unclear. In a media statement, the foundation indicates it's shifting to a more nimble approach and new scientific priorities. But part of its justification has been questioned and challenged by the National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine and authors of a key Academies report. The announcement comes after dramatic budget cuts were proposed in 2025.

Like other federal agencies and programs, the foundation has been under pressure to slash budgets and staff, and to deemphasize work on what has been called "climate alarmism" by members of the Trump administration and its supporters.

Scientists say deep ocean network filled gaps in monitoring

The ocean initiative, which came online in 2016 at a cost of more than $360 million, originally included seven arrays.

"It's a marvelous scientific experimentation, from the surface to the deepest part of where they are moored," said Craig McLean, a former acting chief scientist for the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

The hundreds of instruments are separate from the network NOAA uses to monitor global ocean conditions for climate outlooks and weather forecasting, McLean said. "The global ocean observing system that we base our climate and weather prediction forecasts on is safe."

Gail Wind shared an article from an email from Union of Concerned Scientists:

A little over a week ago, the White House released a draft for a proposed rule that would devastate the scientific enterprise. The Trump administration's Office of Management and Budget (OMB) is proposing that political appointees should decide who receives all federal research grant awards.

Not peer review panels or experts, but political appointees—with no scientific background or expertise—would judge the merit of research proposals, override decisions by subject matter experts, and interfere with federal funding that doesn't conform to presidential priorities.

That's right. If your proposed research or your own expressed views or affiliations don't align with Trump's "Presidential Policy Priorities" then you could lose federal funding opportunities and your funding could be terminated at any time.

This proposed rule would undermine the independence of science and scientific integrity.

This proposed rule would govern the grant-making process across the entire federal government, including the approximately $200 billion spent annually in research and development, as well as discretionary funding that comes through agencies such as the Federal Emergency Management Agency.

This rule is an escalation of the Trump administration's relentless attacks on science and evidence-based policymaking in every policy domain. By replacing subject matter expertise with political loyalty, the Trump administration will further consolidate its power over the federal scientific enterprise and can re-direct it toward their own political agenda. We cannot let it stand.

US federal research funding makes scientific and medical breakthroughs possible and improves the lives of all Americans. This rule will hinder innovation and stifle growth, pushing us ever further behind other countries in scientific advancements. It's another attack on scientific integrity and scientific independence that will come at the public's expense.

if you agree that research funding should be awarded based on merit (not political loyalty); that funding shouldn't be contingent on the whims of a President and his "priorities" at the expense of innovation and the public good; and that funding shouldn't be withheld from individual researchers, organizations, and institutions because their work is associated with one of the administration's "prohibited topics."

Public comments are the best way to voice your concerns about this proposed rule. The comment period closes on July 13, 2026.

Sincerely,

Margo Scott Dunn

Vineyards in Switzerland – by Nick Franks

Here is the article on the vineyards as promised, for inclusion in the newsletter. This is as published in the Radionic Journal.

[Editor preface: The LRI-ULTRA instrument has three basic functions: ANALYSIS, TREATMENT, and REMEDY SYNTHESIS – See <https://radionics.co.uk/lri/> for an in-depth explanation]

Article: LRI-ERA – Overview and Basic Operations

What is ERA?

ERA (ENVIRONMENTAL RADIONICS FOR AGRICULTURE) is a set of Radionic programmes which can be added to the LRI-ULTRA instrument.

ERA is designed to allow treatment of Environment, Soils, Plants and Crops in the attempt to provide enhanced conditions for agricultural and horticultural activities. ERA can be used alongside other treatment systems such as Biodynamics and so forth.

If you own an LRI-ULTRA, you can purchase the ERA system. The price includes the 9 Charts which are used to operate ERA, and various ancillary materials such as remedy lists. When you purchase ERA I will add the software to your instrument and activate you as a user.

What is Era Intended to Do?

Just as human Radionic therapeutics attempts to reduce or eliminate disturbances to the human energy field, ERA attempts to remove disturbances to the energy fields of plants, crops and their related natural environment. The general purport is that such disturbances lead to improper or incorrect functioning of the organism. In humans these create or underlie many of the large range of illnesses suffered by humans. In agriculture these create many problems typically found in plants, farming activities and agronomics in general. Removal or reduction of such disturbances may normalize or improve functioning in humans and animals, and, similarly, plants, crops and soils.

The full article is included at the end of this Newsletter, after page 17.

Section VIII– Klimo’s Corner

Cardinal and Ordinal by Jon Klimo

Just feels right to come back and dwell a bit on the nature of how I see ‘cardinal’ and ‘ordinal.’ Cardinal is like the intrinsic nature of the thing irrespective of relation and rank, but still to be counted as the number that it is supposed to be. It is poured in at the time ordinally, the experienced nature of the thing being focused on like the number that it has assigned to it. One can then re-enter the experience or the value of the thing by referring to the number that it is. Seven-ness can be experienced in detail within it, best learning it’s intrinsic nature, it’s experiential properties. Then there is the ordinal system for putting cardinal things in some kind of order, chronology, or ranking, supporting them into some kind of context to think about them being placed in such a way.

So, we have stand-alone, yet assigned a number to be counted, cardinal, or putting in relation ordinal treatments. And this can be used to think about memory, for example. Setting up a ‘thought experiment’ or a ‘mental walk.’

To help with the remembering of it, in its cardinal individuality, and then ordinally and temporarily retaining a sequence of it in ‘episodic memory’, the cardinal state kept in ‘declarative memory’. So now we have a little logic structure going from grounds of its thinking to what it may arrive at when carried through and thought. And one may weigh the proof of it in the telling of it, by putting the algebraic symbolic statements against the truth ground they arose from and put into action for their purpose. So, we can feel right because it is telling the truth, grounded in the truth that way like a fruit that had its seed originating in a most fertile soil, which is the living mind at work in its figuring out and always seeking truth, which is its nature.

So we have a kind of need for space and time, in this imagining of laying out the cardinal intrinsic properties to be experienced and even numbered, and the ordinal relationship to be established in time and sequence, placing the experienced cardinal somewhere as a locus in multi-dimensional space that is the home of the one consciousness that created and entertains it experientially, all that can be created and then experienced. So, we now have how to prove a point and show you’re right, and verify the truth of what you are talking about and how you are doing so. And we have the experienced nature of the cardinal and the ordinal states.

Now to talk about self-consciousness when it seems to take a negative turn. When you place a kind of judgmental frame of reference, you are only imagining that someone is coming from, next to whatever you are doing at the time, what you are thinking about doing, and setting up that perspective and relationship between the imagined and judging audience and your desired and most natural self, it can make you feel self-conscious in a temporarily negative way, aware of what you were doing in relation to an imagined witnessing audience that could judge you perhaps, at least in your mind right now,

And the best antidote is to imagine one’s actions in light of larger truth grounds from which one’s statements or actions may emanate. That feels best then, not just weighing it against some context being provided by an imaginary companion audience, who is not really your friend at that time, helping guide you toward the truth grounds tingling and alive in the mind.

And I think about playing chess, that started with seeing the documentary film “the queen of chess” about a girl’s growth toward becoming the best at chess in the whole world. And I imagined how successful chess must work, retaining all the cardinal and ordinal moves on the 2D and 3D-imagined and then the 4D realized experience in local ‘real’ consensus-reality.

The better you can operate remembered and projected moves. And then to win at that game and win big or biggest, again thinking in ordinal, sequential, and chronological and temporal, ways, and what it would feel like in a kind of muscle memory to make each cardinal move ordinally or in sequence. So how are you weighing what you are thinking and how you are saying and acting behaviorally? Are you placing yourself in light of someone else's witnessing frame of reference and defining little field of force? That could prove negative if the other's frame proves limited and fallible. But if your frame of choice is the boundless expanse forever of consciousness making possible all each moment, if that is your truth grounds with regard to which you're doing your thinking and making your statements, then you should be most 'safe' and able to prove what you're thinking, saying, and doing.

I didn't really want to make this seem like a recommendation or a recipe for you to try yourself, but maybe that's just what it is and I just can't help it now, as I help myself to ever better be myself, part of whose purpose seems to be the reminding and providing to my fellows and all readers a bit of how to do it that I somehow feel and think to be true.

And now moving over, it feels, to thinking about Nikola Tesla, who I feel to be a true friend, that the difference between us being: he wanted everyone to have equal, unlimited, free access to the common ground of the resource of electricity, and I am wanting the same common ground and free access to the one consciousness we all share.

So, there's the relationship, unequal, between the shared common ground of electricity and the shared, in common, ground of all being one all-inclusive consciousness. Hearing about his prowess of being able to work for periods just in his scientific imagining, able to hold things still in the mind— like a near absolute-zero 'quantum computer' maintaining operational pockets of quantum coherence holding the possibility for an opened-up superposition of alternatives that could be experienced, 'coherence' made to last long enough to work things out, like an engineer all in his mind before moving to a 4D theater of action in local consensus reality experienced as "real life," to work out his inventions for himself and then for others.

Tesla would probably make a good chess player, but his game's point seemed to be achieving free electrical access for all, before Westinghouse doused the whole enterprise for him, sensing being unable to charge money for the use of electricity if it was all made free and available everywhere, which was Tesla's dream.

Now again, thinking about the cardinal and the ordinal, and doing my morning exercises in the dark in bed, and how it feels to do each step, both consciously and unconsciously, hanging out in the cardinal quality, numerable and identified, of my thinking and imagining the sequences involved.

First I do this, and second that, and third that, such a satisfying, ordinal quality, and naming and numbering, and the gradual figuring out how it works, how my mind is thinking, and the never-ending end-point for my little chess-playing self; that is the grounds for truth, and made of the truth, that I am always feeling drawn toward, an existing, ineffability for me up ahead it feels.

And again, revisiting the notion of a negative or distracting self-consciousness, how one would imagine the sense of a judging audience, add a different perspective operating by itself, outside of your consciousness somehow, still able to make judgments about you and what you want and think you're doing.

No, I think it's somehow all in the head, in the headless mind, not just the writer's with the reader's mind, but in the all-subsuming consciousness of all there is, consciousness of it and aware and experiencing it, not merely able to think about what it is conscious of, in the algebraic equations of explaining and all the poetry I'm thinking about being guided by emotion toward the very grounds from which emanates one's very existence, one feels, not just the writing of one's poetry, keeping in mind as the frame of reference underlining what is being written now, feeling it to be the truth, or the grounds on the way to truth.

So you can try reading and weighing what is being proposed, what is being said to you in terms of the context and little grounds of truth being held "within" by each speaker, or attributing his or her pronouncements in the influencing light of, weighing or making judgments, usually taking place in an unconscious state with respect to the vantage point of the awake conscious state, but I needn't remind you, my reader, always, that the whole shebang takes place and is because of the one Mind-at-large 'non-local consciousness' I am in my thinking right now, or at least am open to its presence so it feels.

Wanting to move back now, having a better frame of reference to work within. I am experiencing the very thing I seem to unconsciously and sometimes consciously fear: this forgetfulness, this losing my bearings, whether it's about playing chess or thinking of Tesla's little inventive thought experiments, and unable to keep track of myself in the Cartesian "un-extended substance" of my thinking, again all and always taking place in the one whose existence is and is all the one universal mind, which I call the "universal consciousness field", and on a good day, call it God, and call myself God, though I am, "underneath" it all, the one God with my own featureless identity, but I am quick to add that this is also true for EVERY ONE OF YOU all the time—this realizing that it is possible that you are God in operation locally each moment, and that no one is going to strike you dead with their lightning in judgment of such thinking, operating only in imagination next to you within you, that invisible, sensed presence that seems to know you better than you do, then getting your bearings and carrying on and in the dim light of that constraining, bounding influence of such a frame of reference set up by you. It seems to help judge you but can be experienced to be a problem sometimes in the monitoring of you taking place in your experience of your own self-consciousness.

And now it seems time, for up until now unconsciously held 'reason' to turn my attention to a science fiction movie I recently saw called "Arrival". It was about some sort of half-amorphous, floating yet heavy, walrus-like aliens experienced each as a sea-lion-like corpus.

The Earth-side ones being confronted by this sudden extra-terrestrial presence, includes a kind of language expert, who, as the story unfolds for us in the film, gradually seems to learn their alien language, consisting of inky splats being made against a glass wall to then be non-linearly deciphered.

And she slowly learns to understand the code and to decode it across levels of language and across the frames of reference and meaning-making and language-using of two entirely different worlds. Then there seems a kind of nonlinear quantum jump, discontinuously made, that I lose track within, or just was portrayed on film awry and where I could just not seem to follow the sequence of the story. And she apparently at one point wrote a book full of illustrations about her decoding process and how she was able to arrive at the truth of what she was trying to figure out being faced with little those non-linear cardinal-type spatial splats of expression.

So, she makes a book out of her experience of coming to understand the alien language. And then I lose somewhat the sequence of things in the telling of it on film, how, when this book is placed in time for me as the film's watcher, and then the world seems to recognize the import of her work and appreciate it, including a Chinese leading political figure who is influenced by the woman's story, seeming to show that she knows something about this politically influential man's life, but not through any normal means.

But I seem to lose my way to be positioning this within the story, the way that I am seeing it as the film unfolds. So not only does she seem to have linguistic deciphering skills, but perhaps psychic capability as well. Wouldn't that be good if we all could have that—those skills and abilities she symbolically displays on film?

And I identify with her, caught up in my attempting to understand and decode what I am doing—couldn't we all? — And how I am being, moment to moment, trying to read me, and to be read by you, for example, reading me right now. And I almost feel that I have cracked the code, as it were, being able to shift my attention to your attention, since we co-inhabit, and take our part within, one parent and enabling consciousness, affording us writers and readers both, encoders and decoders alike, across the little chasm between two worlds and two kinds of language, trying to work out getting my meaning across to you in a language you can understand.

Yet I realize in my thinking that we are, as I have said before, two co-equal sub-personalities in co-consciousness within a single impersonal existing being, a consciousness within which, and because of which, everything whatsoever is always going on anyway all the time, throughout all time, which paradoxically exists outside of time as we can locally know and experience it.

Same day, 10:00 AM

I am reading aloud to Jane, Dan Brown's book Secret of Secrets, and then reading Baking with Kafka, the little comic book format in which I had earlier realized so much understanding and levels of attention were being conveyed. And in both cases, of Brown and Baking with Kafka, my curiosity formed into a question: Just how aware of the scope of all they were writing and containing, in what Brown was writing and the other was conveying in comic book fashion? The question remains; how conscious was each one when creating it compared to how conscious I was as I read both creations? One or both of us as operating in what could be seen as a higher, more inclusive and more covering, consciousness at the time and place of both writing and reading.

As Brown's character of "Katherine" put it, intimating that both at the same time were existing together in 'non-local consciousness,' a realization that Brown's darker characters represented for me, being forces that wanted to repress or do away with that sense of existing and expanding 'non-local consciousness', feeling threatening, it felt by those 'bad guys,' the egoic ongoing possession and control over the goings-on of local consciousness, focused on and as the local consensus reality at the time.

Ego perspectives play out their little dramas all to maintain in gen-identity their very identities and existence as ego-level is experiencing it. But is Brown and the little cartoon book maker aware of such a larger, potentially bewildering, context at the time of creating their respective books? I am aware of this as the reader of their books this moment, but I wonder if they share my kind and level of awareness and conscious understanding at the time of writing their books or after, joining me conjoined and reading from a same shared frame of reference?

And why should this matter? I would want it to be a matter of curiosity about the workings of consciousness at large, as the only thing there is to experience within and by means of. But there's also the frame of reference and perspective of the ego level of me, sensing a kind of competition, of who gets there first and others aware of this competition, potentially being won by someone other than me, the ego-part laments.

This little disassociation of mine, as just one of the endless sub-personalities, in conscious part and unconscious part alike, part of the one sub-personality, which in turn emanates from the one impersonal and parental being and presence that even Dan Brown's character Katherine seemed to understand.

Well, how much did Brown, as shown by way of his character, Katherine, really know what was going on and what was the true nature of the one consciousness, which sometimes feels to me to be God?

Just saying, but you could well get in trouble for that, from religion, science, even psychology or philosophy frames of reference and positions of self-determined privilege and sense of understanding, but never have to get in trouble from the frame of reference of the poet who runs it all together in one large romantic inclination homeward it now feels, metaphorically, rhythmically, and imaginal in the way we all go.

But how much consciousness could the writer access, even as Katherine knew non-local consciousness held the promise of and other parties fought against. Yet how much did the authors know, or consciously realize their relation to their own content they were working from to create what they did for the rest of us and for themselves, and how much of it stayed working only on an unconscious level and way?

What level of consciousness is the writing coming from? The attending from, the speaker's reference, taking place, and at the same time what is the level and kind of consciousness of any readers of what it is they write? I for one seem to be curious about this, minding the store, as it were, seeing all the metaphorical, scientific, and philosophical equations and propositional structures, feeling quite alone and somehow wanting there to be others sharing in my understanding of my own consciousness in its relation to all others that inhabit the same one contents of consciousness.

Just how consciously aware does the writer need to be of such affairs and levels in order to write, and to read? And how much can he/she be working in a basically unconscious condition yet a writing one? The world is filled now with possessors of fellow-experiencing consciousness, generating their plethora of creations, almost unwieldy and bewildering at times, and yet are they asleep to different degrees each one, operating out of, and reading back to themselves, in a relatively unconscious condition? Could that be true, I wonder.

Better to have empathy, not a sense of competition, with all my fellows, potential aspirants to wisdom and creative satisfaction that we all are and always so. Better to feel surrounded by somnambulists than being surrounded by fellow enlightened beings. It feels less threatening to the egoic being that I also feel is part of me, right in there with all the majority-ruling enlightened part.

So when Dan Brown writes of Katherine speaking of the nature of halos it says to me about a certain higher-consciousness at work if not a downright kind of enlightenment possessed by one Dan Brown, and so I'm thrown back into the ego frame of reference for a while, sensing there's a kind of competition of egos going on, some operating in mind and some out of it, unconsciously, but operating and influencing nonetheless; and who is already there or who gets there first in others' eyes, the ego nags. How much to impute to whom, how much being in possession of the one 'non-local consciousness', as if it were an identity that could be delimited to be thought about. Or a property or possession ownable by any individuals active from their respective frames of reference as their local consciousness, living and operating from there.

I would rather feel, come on in, the water's fine. Come on in and join me here right now; no, the water really is just fine, to the touch of consciousness experiencing right now, and what is it experiencing but the objects and contents of the one consciousness. And if you want what I am talking about to be more real for you, just physicalize the mental, even as I once wrote, and as Einstein's thought experiments and Tesla's earlier mind played out and held still; but how are you doing, dear reader? You want to read what I write as the organic thought contraptions that they are, alive in the one mind.

Same day, 1:40 PM

I realize the premonition I am getting of statements and the truth grounds they are rooted in and coming out of, and then the very spitting image of them, the observer, looking into the microscope or telescope, and taking in the experience of what he observes and the realization I was having that soon enough.

The consciousness of the observer sees himself at work as the recipient under his scrutiny and scope. The observer sees the observed as the experience of his observing, crystallizing into being in his consciousness. It seems to be himself at work. So that which is under observation soon becomes the observer held still awhile out of its mind as bacteria floating, or stars glowing, or the debris from collided particles in all the languages of pure energy differentiating out into different kinds, and then becoming the algebraic equations and the notes being taken as she/he looks on, accumulating his/her experiences of being the observer caught in the act of consciousness at work, caught on the wing, though it has yet to become clear as the solid things melt into the very atmosphere in which s/he works, their consciousness a part of the one consciousness as always, call it 'non-local consciousness', and s/he, the observer has 'local consciousness' right now.

And soon enough, local consciousness looks down and sees itself as fellow, local consciousness reflected back, but little by little it dawns that local consciousness is adjusting its focal length and what it begins to see is 'non-local consciousness' looking back, and soon enough consciousness is all there is, at large, and all-inclusive in its scope. The observed that the observer seeks out becomes the observer back at him, and what we have is a mirror, consciousness experiencing itself from vantage points of both observer and observed, but always the one consciousness existing, reminding me, like a recurring theme in my part of consciousness, my refrain of—"mirroring and mapping, recording and documenting" and so forth.

And all in helping to remember, not wanting to forget or to die, even though on the other side of every forgetting and death comes the mirror inevitably once more, it seems to me right now, and each afterlife yet another opportunity to enter the truth grounds of being a mirror after all and all one's expressions coming out of itself.

And now I recall my thinking about "3I-Atlas," once thought a comet only, and gently glowing orbs of light and portals taken to be such in a latter-day SkyWalker Ranch 'anomaly nest,' landscape becoming the poet's inscape, or growing fields of grain being imprinted by an unknown alien-seeming friend making crop circles with pictures of genetic code and digital binary piecemeal and even an alien face approximately staring out at us it feels.

These seem instances, in each anomalous experience, radiant bits of light seen as UFOs or orbs or portals, all really consciousness staring out of, and back at, itself, through microscope and telescope and all other manner of scopes and ways of scoping. How the anomaly or any other thing under the scrutiny of local focal consciousness blossoms open to reflection soon enough of Mind-at-large looming back at you through the lens and now in the mirror. This is what I look like, I tell myself. See me now and so I see myself. So then should we throw out all our data because it looks like we've gotten out of focus and only see a bunch of light as Mind at Large? That would just take away the adventuresome spirit that we are, as we experience having experience itself in the mirror now, the truth conditions all turning into light.

Section IX – In Case You Missed May’s Masterclass

USPA Masterclass #73: Stephen Quong presented "Introduction to Tao Geomancy." May 23, 2026

In this presentation, Stephen d summarized the main points of “Tao Geomancy”, a contemporary version of the ancient practice of Chinese geomancy.

He discussed various techniques used in this system to harmonize land energies using the Taoist theory of the Five Elements, effectively neutralize the effects of geopathic stress and curses, exorcise ghosts and wandering spirits, and raise the vital energy of land to a very high level, using metaphysical techniques.

He has had a full-time practice in Vedic Astrology since 1992, and holds the honorary title of “Life Fellow”, by the Indian Council on Astrological Sciences.

He was a Founding Member and on the Executive Committee of the “Planetary Gemologists Association”, the foremost professional organization for Vedic Gem Therapy.

Section X- Special Interest Groups (SIGs)

The USPA is establishing Special Interest Groups (SIGs) so that people with similar interests can get together online or in person to discuss, exchange ideas, collaborate, and do research on topics in the overall psychotronics and "free energy" fields. As is the case with most psychotronics subjects, there is overlap in the various topics, but many of you have specific areas of interest. Listed below are the SIGs that have already been established, along with the leader of each group and contact email address.

However, if you have a different or a more specialized interest than any of the SIGs listed, and would like us to establish a new group in the area of your interest, please contact the Coordinator, John Reed at: joreed43@gmail.com.

Unconventional and New Energy Systems SIG:

For all those interested in unconventional, new, or "free energy" subjects, including zero-point energy, magnetic field methods, cold fusion/LENR, water as fuel, inventions developed by Nikola Tesla, T. Henry Moray, Stan Meyer, Edwin Gray, and many others. Leader: Toby Grotz. contact email address: tobygrotz@icloud.com

Subtle Energies and Water Activation SIG:

For people interested in all subjects related to quantum biology, water structure, infusion, and activation; infoceuticals, biofields and the aura, biological frequencies, and emanations, biogeometry, crystal energies, qigong, chakras, and electromagnetic fields (EMFs) interacting with humans, animals, and plants; Leaders: Beverly Rubik and Glen Rein: contact email address: brubik3@proton.me

Radionics and Dowsing SIG:

This group is for people interested in aspects of radionics and dowsing, including the kinds of devices used; different ways they can be used, such as to answer questions, enhance health, find things, etc.; learning how to use the devices; learning about the history of such devices, such as the Abrams, Drown, George de la Warr, and Hieronymus devices. Leader: Pete Radatti. Contact email address: pete19428@gmail.com

Scalar and Torsion Fields SIG:

For people interested in ideas, theories, and technologies of longitudinal and scalar waves and fields; torsion and toroidal fields and effects; information energy and fields; superluminal speeds of such waves; Einstein's "spooky action at a distance"; Dark Energy, and the spectrum(s) of these waves and fields; Leaders: Scott Beutlich, Marc Wilson, John Reed; contact email address: joreed43@gmail.com

Section XI- USPA Local Affiliate Groups

The USPA is establishing localized affiliate psychotronics groups wherever our members are located – in the United States and elsewhere in the world. This is so that USPA members and others interested in psychotronics can get together in person, socialize, collaborate, and have speakers make local presentations

These local groups will be independent to give you maximum freedom of organization and activities. These groups can be composed of USPA members, as well as, others interested in psychotronics who may later decide to become members of the USPA. A set of "Guidelines" will be provided.

Listed below are the USPA local affiliate groups that have already been established, with the leader(s) of each group and contact email address. Please contact the leader if you would like to join one of these. If you live in a town or city that is not near an existing local group, and are interested in starting a group in your area, please contact the Local Group Coordinator, John Reed: joreed43@gmail.com

- Philadelphia, PA, area: Group name: Conshohocken Radionics Society. Leader: Pete Radatti. Contact email address: pete19428@gmail.com

Section XII- USPA Committees

Name	Chair	Description
Conference		To plan and organize all physical and online USPA conferences, including venue, speakers, transportation, notifications, registration, and other necessary activities.
Membership	John Reed	To recruit new USPA members via advertising, social media, online groups, and other methods.
Social Media /PR		To engage in all aspects of publicity, promotion, and marketing of USPA conferences, Masterclasses, and product sales. To establish USPA's presence on all appropriate social media platforms, and help manage postings and replies, as required.
Website	Scott Beutlich and Gail Wind	To develop and maintain the USPA website, initiate improvements, as necessary, and provide oversight of content.
AI and Resource Development	Pete Radatti	To develop an AI search engine for all of USPA books, periodicals, papers, videos, and other items to make them accessible to USPA members.
Chapters		To help establish local USPA chapters in the areas where members are located, as well as, in other cities across the US and world, working closely with the Membership.
Library, Archive, and Museum	John Reed	To identify, acquire, and preserve books, periodicals, papers, patents, and devices related to psychotronics, radionics, radiesthesia, dowsing, and related subjects, and make these materials available to USPA members.
Masterclass Program	Scott Beutlich	To help plan and organize Masterclass events, including contacting potential speakers, scheduling their appearance, and conducting the Masterclasses via Zoom.
Newsletter:	Gail Wind	To assist the USPA Newsletter editor.

MIA “Among the Missing”

Missing People, Organizations, Periodicals, Books, Artifacts, and more in the Psychotronics Field
by John H. Reed, USPA President

This is a new “column” or section of the USPA Newsletter, with the purpose of helping the USPA, as well as our members and research associates, to locate people, organizations, written works, devices, and other items that have seemingly disappeared, or have been extremely difficult to find in the psychotronics field. Updates will be added, and each missing item will be retained in future issues until it is found or otherwise resolved.

In our research and reading, we all have encountered reports or mentions of things of interest that we have tried to find. With our expanding readership, we can all help one another find what we have been searching for. Some may have experience in genealogical research, private investigation, law enforcement, or even intelligence work, which you could use to help with these searches.

This will also serve as a "People Locator Service" to help USPA members find authors, researchers, and other people involved in psychotronics, radionics, subtle energies, free energy, and related subjects. This would include people who have "disappeared" or have died long ago, and whose relatives USPA members may be trying to find in order to preserve the research papers and collection of that person.

If there is anything you have been searching for and need help to find, please write to me at: joreed43@gmail.com, and I will include your search help request in the next issues of the USPA Newsletter. And if you have any information about an item that is listed in this column, please email me and share what you know or your suggestions. Any request for confidentiality will be honored and protected.

Missing Device: Lafferty Radionic Instrument

Does anyone know anything about the Lafferty Radionic instrument? The "Lafferty" in the instrument name, may refer to Tom Lafferty, a recognized radionics practitioner and researcher who has contributed to the radionics field, particularly through patient surveys. It has been reported that Lafferty is associated with the development or analysis of the "Virtual Radionic Instrument" (VRI), which translates traditional, hardware-based radionic methods into computer/tablet software. If anyone has any information about this instrument or its inventor, please contact John at: joreed43@gmail.com

Missing Person: Paul Sauvin

We are trying to track down some of the early directors, officers, and researchers associated with the United States Psychotronics Association (USPA), after it was organized in 1975. Paul Sauvin was a USPA officer in 1996 and 1977. Paul, whose full name is Pierre Paul Sauvin, was an electrical engineer and inventor who, according to one source, worked in the aerospace industry and later with the National Institute for Rehabilitation Engineering at St. Joseph's Hospital in Paterson, NJ. He also worked with Dr. Carl Schleicher, head of Mankind Research Unlimited, and helped develop a device called the "AGRAD Machine." This device was designed to control crop insects, and was introduced on an experimental basis, although it is not known if it ever reached commercial production. Paul Sauvin's mother was Edith Sauvin, who lived in White Plains, NY, and died August 25th, 1987. Edith's only child was Pierre Paul Sauvin, who himself had 2 sons, Alan Paul Sauvin and Steven Eric Sauvin. He also had one daughter, Jane Elizabeth Sauvin. Any help in locating the children of Paul Sauvin would be greatly appreciated, and please write to joreed43@gmail.com.

Missing Organization and Proceedings: International Association for Psychotronic Research (IAPR)

Does anyone know what became of the International Association for Psychotronic Research? And do any of you have copies of its meeting proceedings? It was founded in 1973. However, the current location or activities of the IAPR are unknown.

The IAPR held numerous international conferences around the world, beginning with its first in 1974 in Prague, then Czechoslovakia. At this conference, Dr. Zdenek Rejdak was elected president for the Eastern Division of the IAPR, and Dr. Stanley Krippner was elected president for the West. The 8th International Conference on Psychotronic Research was held in Milwaukee, Wisconsin, 1993, as a joint conference with the United States Psychotronics Association (USPA), but it is unknown if any subsequent conferences of the IAPR were held.

Proceedings of each of these conferences were published, but the USPA Library only has copies of the second conference in 1976 and the eighth conference in 1993. In addition, the IAPR published a newsletter called Psychotronik. Thanks to the research of Gail Wind, our current USPA Newsletter editor, we have the first issues of Psychotronik through vol.1, no.3-4, 1977, but none after that date.

If you have any knowledge about these organizations, or have copies of the proceedings, or newsletters, please write to John at: joreed43@gmail.com

Section XIII- Thomas Bearden's Books Are Available Through USPA

Dana Bearden, daughter of the late Thomas E. Bearden, has opened her private stash of her father's books to USPA! We will be selling them for her on commission and her prices are WAY below eBay, Amazon, Alibris, or anywhere else we've found them.

We have two volumes ready right now, but we'll be adding more soon. Please note: Currently, the prices include shipping for the United States only, but the USPA folks are open to working with people outside the US on an individual basis who are willing to pay the extra shipping, duties and taxes based on location. Contact gailinvermont@outlook.com for a shipping quote.

This is a very new project, for Dana and the USPA, so keep checking. We'll add more Bearden Titles as soon as we can. Find them at <https://www.psychotronics.org/shop/> in the Books section.

What is USPA?

The United States Psychotronics Association (USPA) is a federally recognized, nonprofit 501(c)(3) organization founded in 1975 to serve as a focal point for scientific and technical exploration of the universe of esoteric, spiritual, and psychic arts in the United States of America.

The USPA has been hosting annual conferences for its membership since its formation and has featured countless individuals with cutting-edge viewpoints, research, or theories to share, allowing any interested persons to openly discuss their work.

What is Psychotronics?

USPA defines psychotronics as the science of mind-body-environment relationships, an interdisciplinary science concerned with the interactions of matter, energy, and consciousness.

Psychotronics involves the study, research, and applications of the physics and technology of the mind, brain, spirit, consciousness, and the underlying forces of life and nature – hence the term “psychotronics.” A true understanding of the universe must include the spiritual as well as the technical. USPA provides an opportunity for amateur researchers to present their findings along with the professionals.

USPA stresses research, with documentation of results, and practical applications, rather than personal experience and unsupported hypotheses.

J.G. Gallimore’s Books are Still Available on Amazon - through assistance from USPA

Jerry G. Gallimore was one of the founders of the USPA in 1975, and was a leading researcher in psychotronics and unusual energies until his untimely death in 1989.

All five of J.G. Gallimore's rare books on psychotronics subjects and unusual energies have been reprinted by the United States Psychotronics Association (USPA) and are being made available at a fraction of the cost that used copies were being sold at online. Available at Amazon.com USPA Shares in the income from these sales.

So rare have these books been, that only a few libraries in the entire world had them in their collections, and some original Gallimore's books were being sold for several hundred dollars each online. However, with these newly reprinted volumes, each will be available for less than $30.00.

The Handbook of Unusual Energies: Volume	ISBN-13: 978-1543024999	The 1st book of 3 on unusual energies	468 Pages
Gallimore discusses in depth the research, discoveries, and inventions of all the major researchers in subtle energies, the aether, biological 62 fields, pyramid energy, radiesthesia, radionics, crystal transduction, and related subjects. These include the works of Baron von Reichenbach's and his odic energy, Dr. Wilhelm Reich's orgone energy, Dr. Harold Burr's biological life fields, Kozyrev's time mirror, Edgar Cayce's transmission of energy, and related research done by many others. Of particular importance is Gallimore's 127-page chapter on radionics. In this chapter he discusses in depth the research and devices of Ruth Drown, T. Galen Hieronymus, Rho Sigma, Dr. L. P. Corte, and other prominent people in the radionics field.
Collected Properties &amp; Writings of J. G. Gallimore: Volume 2	ISBN-13: 978-1543025040	The 2nd book of 3 on unusual energies	258 Pages
This is the second book in the "Unusual Energies" series that J.G. Gallimore published. It covers Gallimore's research on Albert Abrams, the founder of modern radionics, psychological physics, psychic energy, thought resonance, subtle energies, crystals, and related subjects. In addition, a number of radionics devices are discussed, such as the De La Warr Diagnostic Instrument. And very helpfully, the rates are provided for substances, body organs, and medical diseases and disorders. I very interesting interview of Christopher Bird, conducted by J.G. Gallimore is provided, as well as a discussion of Walter Russell and his research
Relationship Between Parapsychology and Gravity: Vol. 3	ISBN-13: 978-1543024944	The 3rd book of 3 on unusual energies	228 Pages
This book describes in depth the research and theories of J.G. Gallimore into the question of "parapsychology transmission" -the question of how such things as telepathy, remote viewing, ESP, and similar phenomena can physically occur. He discusses the various emanations, radiations, and energy fields of all matter and life including the ancient Chinese energy called "chi" (qi), the ancient Indian's prana energy, Reichenbach's "odic force," Gurwitsch's "mitogenic radiation," Wilhelm Reich's orgone energy, and other subtle energies. He shows how these energies are similar, how they interact, and how they are related to gravity. He also discusses crystals as transducers of these energies, and provides diagrams of devices that could potentially be used to harness or control these energies.
Transverse Paraphysics: The New Science of Space, Time, and Gravity Control	ISBN-13: 978-1543024920	Gallimore's fourth book	374 Pages
This book covers the visionary research and theories developed by J.G. Gallimore about anti-gravity, space, time, and biophysics. He discusses in depth the dimensions of space, time, and gravity, and new discoveries in each of these areas. In addition, he covers research being done on anti-gravity and then discusses anti-gravity patents that have been obtained.

He also discusses the intriguing concept of aura energy fields surrounding humans and other living things, and how extra-sensory perception (ESP) might be explained through biophysical principles.

Unified Field Theory Research Book:
Using Subjective Response to Psi-Plasma

ISBN-13:
978-1543024838

Gallimore's Fifth

134 Pages

This book is about psychotronics, radionics, electromagnetic fields and waves, psi-plasma, plasma fields, subtle energies, bio-electromagnetic energy, and other unusual energies emitted by living and non-living things. It also is about how living things interact with and are affected by these energies, which may enhance or harm health.

LRI-ERA – Overview and Basic Operations

Nick Franks

What is ERA?

ERA (ENVIRONMENTAL RADIONICS FOR AGRICULTURE) is a set of Radionic programmes which can be added to the LRI-ULTRA instrument. ERA is designed to allow treatment of Environment, Soils, Plants and Crops in the attempt to provide enhanced conditions for agricultural and horticultural activities. ERA can be used alongside other treatment systems such as Biodynamics and so forth.

If you own an LRI-ULTRA, you can purchase the ERA system. The price includes the 9 Charts which are used to operate ERA, and various ancillary materials such as remedy lists.

When you purchase ERA I will add the software to your instrument and activate you as a user.

What is Era Intended to Do?

Just as human Radionic therapeutics attempts to reduce or eliminate disturbances to the human energy field, ERA attempts to remove disturbances to the energy fields of plants, crops and their related natural environment. The general purport is that such disturbances lead to improper or incorrect functioning of the organism. In humans these create or underlie many of the large range of illnesses suffered by humans. In agriculture these create many problems typically found in plants, farming activities and agronomics in general. Removal or reduction of such disturbances may normalise or improve functioning in humans and animals, and, similarly, plants, crops and soils.

Basic Operation of Era

ERA covers wide range of Locations and Factors. The proposed system was described in some detail in the Radionic Journal in 2016<sup>1</sup> The Location/Factor system was originated by the late Malcolm Rae (1913 - 1979). In my book 21st Century Radionics I write:

The LOCATION - FACTOR system is the basic method of analysis in Radionics. The concept can be summarised very simply as:

WHERE - BY HOW MUCH - WHAT; or more specifically, as:

LOCATION - INTENSITY (% DEVIATION FROM NORMALITY) - FACTOR

In general it is proposed that the human parapsychical and subtle anatomies can be broken down into discrete regions. These regions are denoted LOCATIONS. A LOCATION is some point in the system ('where'). Examples are the Thyroid Gland, the Liver, the Respiratory System, the Throat Chakra, the Etheric Body, the Astral Body, and so on.

In turn it is proposed that LOCATIONS can be stressed by a wide range of disturbances. Such disturbances are denoted FACTORS. A FACTOR ('what') is some impact or disturbance normally considered to be unbeneficial because it is impeding or stressing the functioning of a Location in some way. This, in turn, may produce symptoms or illness in the physical body.

The test reading % DEVIATION FROM NORMALITY ('by how much' or INTENSITY) is a qualitative measurement made with the pendulum (or some other radiesthetic device or technique). The general assumption is that if any LOCATION is functioning normally, its reading will be at or very near 0%. If there is a FACTOR stressing the LOCATION, it may cease to function normally. The amount of disturbance can be measured, e.g. 30%, 37%, 88%, etc. The closer the reading to 100%, potentially, the worse the situation.

Thus we try to determine

- which LOCATION or LOCATIONS are disturbed;
- by how much, measured as a % reading;
- and by which FACTOR or FACTORS.

Consequently, some basic readings might be:

THYROID GLAND - 77% - TOXINS

LIVER - 67% - CONGESTION

RESPIRATORY SYSTEM - 90% - BACTERIAL INFECTION

THROAT CHAKRA - 91% - EMOTIONAL STRESS

ETHERIC BODY - 87% - TUBERCULAR MIASM

ATMIC BODY - 88% - VIRAL INFECTION

In the ERA system I have adapted the Location-Factor system for the purposes of agricultural and environmental analysis and treatment. Thus we might have a reading for

PLANTS, MORPHIC FIELDS - 88% - MICRO-NUTRIENT & TRACE ELEMENT DEFICIENCY 7.15

Here 7.15 indicates Chart 7, Factor 15

This reading means that at the worst point (Peak reading) the plants under study have a reading of 88% for Micro-Nutrient and Trace Element Deficiency.

Similarly, PLANTS, MORPHIC FIELDS - 61% - FUNGAL INFECTION 7.17

Here the pendulum or other radiesthetic device indicates that the plants under study have a reading of 61% for Fungal Infection.

Here 7.17 indicates Chart 7, Factor 17

In all readings, 0% indicates that there is no deviation from normality. Readings higher than that progressively indicate the severity, or potential severity, of the problem.

The final part of the process is the attempt to find treatments, more generally denoted Corrections, which might remedy the problem.

Initiating Analysis and Treatment

CREATING A WITNESS

In classical Radionics it is typically necessary to obtain a sample from the patient – most usually a snip of hair or a spot of dried blood – denoted a Witness. The Witness is used as a link or waveguide to enable distant treatment – to connect the patient with the intended treatments, typically specified as Radionic Rates (number codes) or other forms of coding such as the well-known MGA (Rae) cards. In agriculture an aerial photograph (as a photographic negative) was originally used in the 1950s<sup>2</sup>. These often had to be taken from an aircraft if the area was large. Nowadays software such as Google Maps allows the area to be treated to be 'photographed' using a screen capture. To enhance the identity of the area a line (denoted a tensing boundary) can be drawn on a print-out of the capture, and this line can be coloured – typically red to scarlet – for emphasis. The resulting photograph can be used a witness. Note that the tensing boundary also assists in confining the treatment to the area under consideration.

In the LRI-ERA system the method is easier. Most of the planet's useable land surface is mapped into the ERA information field. You do not need to create a witness, but simply tell ERA the name and address of the land or other coordinates (such as latitude and longitude, which can also be extracted from Google Maps) which give a clear indication as to where the site is. Thus in treating three small vineyards in Switzerland, I simply gave ERA the name and address of each vineyard and that sufficed to locate each property. In treating an hotel in Mexico City for electromagnetic stress, I gave the name and address of the property.

Once the target area has been established with LRI-ERA, you can then proceed to the Master Chart - Chart 1. Chart 1 is an arc divided into 10 sectors, which are:

1. COSMOS, SUN, MOON & EARTH ENERGY FIELDS - PRIMARY RELATIONSHIPS linking to CHART 2
2. EARTH PRANIC FIELD - COHERENCE & INTEGRITY linking to CHART 2
3. ATMOSPHERE - linking to CHART 2
4. SOIL - linking to CHART 3
5. SOIL & SUBSOIL - linking to CHART 4
6. SURFACE WATER & WATER TABLE - linking to CHART 4
7. ROCK STRATA - linking to CHART 4
8. POLARITY RELATIONS BETWEEN ALL LOCATIONS
9. PLANT KINGDOM & CULTIVARS - linking to CHARTS 5, 6, 7 & 8
10. GO TO CHART 9, which chart indicates various remedy options such as Homoeopathics, Flower Essences, and so forth.

Taking Readings

Note that a very wide range of Locations, Factors and Treatments are listed on the 9 ERA Charts. To avoid confusion, the best way to proceed is to break down operations into steps using the pendulum to indicate what needs to be done. As skills using ERA are acquired, it may be possible to use other methods.

The main chart for operations is Chart 1. Each Analysis and Treatment action starts with Chart 1 and the simplest method is to return to Chart 1 at each step until no further actions are indicated for the present, although further actions might be indicated as the treatment programme proceeds.

When you have entered the location to be treated, i.e. created the witness, you can check with LRI-ERA to discover if it understands your location request correctly. If yes, you then go to Chart 1 and the pendulum will indicate which of the ten Sectors should be studied first.

Note that no Rates, Codes, Cards etc etc are required with ERA. Instructions and queries etc. are made using your mental connection with the instrument in your own language, be it English, French or any other language.

Polarity

In many instances the first Factor requiring correction may well be Polarity. If this is indicated, take a % reading as an initial reference and note it down. Bear in mind that the text actually reads 'POLARITY RELATIONS BETWEEN ALL LOCATIONS.' This refers to the correct relationship between all the listed Locations (or Levels) or more accurately, from Earth Pranic Field (Chart 2) through to the Plants and Soils themselves (Charts 5, 6, 7 and 8). The implication is that there is a cascade in the chain of manifestation down from the Etheric and related levels through to the physical manifestation of plants and crops in their environment. The relationships between the various Levels must be correct for the process of manifestation to be accurately transcribed from formative patterns and forces into physical form. Behind this comment lies a rather complex argument about how physical reality actually emerges from the so-called zero-point field, which I have dealt with, to a certain extent, elsewhere <sup>3</sup>.

In order to perform this correction you simply ask ERA to correct polarity relations as far as possible, aiming to reduce the reading to zero. The Polarity readings may need to be taken several times during any treatment; Polarity reduction actions may need to be repeated until the lowest possible reading has been achieved.

Other Locations

As shown above there are 10 Sectors in the Chart. Beyond Polarity, the other 9 indicate that a second chart should be addressed. Thus, for example, SOIL links to CHART 3. If SOIL is indicated, then go to Chart 3 and take a further reading. The pendulum will indicate which Factor on Chart 3 should be addressed. It may point to 3.17 PH (SOIL - ACID-BASE BALANCE). You can take a reading to show deviation from normal and the reading might be 45%. You should then proceed to try and find a Correction for this problem. The most basic solution might be the instruction NORMALISE, i.e. ask ERA to normalise the acid-base balance in the Location (SOIL) under study. ERA

<sup>3</sup> See for example 21st Century Radionics by Nick Franks ISBN 978-0-9573111-2-1 Chapter 7. Alice Bailey references Polarity along the lines of 'the Etheric Body forms the archetypal plane in relation to the dense physical body' meaning that the Physical Body is entirely impressed by the Etheric Body and the chain of causation is from the Etheric to Physical; the Physical is nothing but lifeless matter without the presence of the Etheric field and life force (Prana) – this is expounded in various Bailey texts. See A Treatise on Cosmic Fire p.80 et seq. ISBN 0-85330-117-4 will attempt to do this, although the action may take some time to perform as changes at the formative level have to be efficiently translated into changes at the physical level.

As you will see there are 21 various Factors indicated on Chart 3 SOIL. These are numbered from 3.1 to 3.21 The reason for numbering is that some of the descriptions are quite long and in order to save time when writing them down, you can simply enter the Factor reference number.

Continuing

Several different treatments might be required any particular Location-Factor problem, so you can then return to Chart 1 and make further enquiries as to what might be needed. You may see that Chart 9 is indicated and that a GEM or MINERAL remedy pattern is suitable. Here you would go to the related list and seek the required pattern using the pendulum.

After you have completed the reading and treatment(s) for SOIL, you can then return to Chart 1 and see which sector is indicated next. Suppose the pendulum indicates PLANT KINGDOM & CULTIVARS, CHARTS 5, 6, 7 & 8. Here you would use the pendulum to find which chart should be used. This can be done, for example, using the numbers 5 through 8 shown in the 0 to 10 Scale located at the bottom of the Chart. Let us say the pendulum indicates Chart 6: PLANTS, ETHERIC BODY, DISEASE FACTORS 1. Here you will see a range of FACTORS which may produce problems in Etheric Body of plants and crops, including Toxins, Poisons, Infection, Miasms and so forth.

Let us say MIASM - DESTRUCTIVE B 6.22 is indicated, with a reading of 73%. You wish to neutralise, reduce or eliminate this. Here you go to Chart 9 TREATMENTS and see what the pendulum indicates. Typically, an energy pattern from PLANTS, HERBS and MOSSES may do the job. In this you will turn to the various listings – Herbs & Plants; Agricultural & Horticultural Codes, and find the relevant energy patterns which will counteract the miasmatic inhibition.

Applying Treatment

Essentially once you have the relevant remedy or remedies you simply ask LRI-ERA to apply it to the area or plant under consideration. ERA will do this from within its own field and will set treatment times, potencies (if relevant) and so forth. You can check from time to time to see if any reduction in the % symptom has been obtained; or if the treatment should be changed, added to, or terminated.

I will now give some examples of treatments to two of the above-mentioned vineyards. In all cases the owner wished to use organic methods. A main problem with vines is attack by fungi, typically mildew, such as Downy Mildew (Plasmopara viticola) and Powdery Mildew (Erysiphe necator). These damage leaves, shoots, fruit etc and can lead to crop losses. According to Google,

Copper sulphate is a highly effective, traditional, and organically-approved protectant fungicide and bactericide used to control fungal diseases on grapevines and various other fruit, vegetable, and ornamental crops. When mixed with hydrated lime and water, it is commonly known as Bordeaux mixture, which acts as a contact barrier, preventing fungal spores from germinating and establishing infection.

In this case the owner even wanted to avoid the use of Bordeaux Mixture to eliminate mildew, and this was achieved using only LRI-ERA treatments.

VINEYARD 1260

19.1.25 RESTORE FORMATIVE ETHERS 56%

17.3.25 POLARITY 47%

POLARITY RELATIONS BETWEEN ALL LOCATIONS was required several treatments (see below). Obviously impacts and stressors from the environment can disturb Polarity, so various attempts at correction may be needed.

3. 5.17 MORPHIC FIELDS AS A WHOLE - NORMALISE 56%

These are direct paraphysical counterpart fields of the vines and the effort here is to normalise their relationship to the vines themselves.

4. POLARITY 24%

5. 5.4 MERIDIAN 1 - GROWTH - NORMALISE 57%

In the ERA system 5 plant Meridians are counted, these being denoted Growth, Circulation, Compression, Expansion and Reproduction.

6. 3.21 INIMICAL MUTANT INSECT, BACTERIAL, VIRAL, FUNGAL & PROTOZOA PATHOGENS - ELIMINATE 24%

7. 6.30 MIASM - MUTATING 1 - ELIMINATE 64%

8. 6.6 GENETICALLY-INHERITED INSULTS TO PRIMARY FORMATIVE ETHERIC TEMPLATE - ELIMINATE 42%

9. 6.13 ANIMAL PESTS & INFECTIOUS OTHERS - ELIMINATE 24%

10. 4.24 NEGATIVE ENERGY EMANATING FROM

The examples of these two vineyards give an idea how treatments might be structured. In general I have divided Radionic treatments into two basic types, COMMANDS and PRESETS. In 21st Century Radionics (page 234) I propose there are

- 1) Actions and concepts native to Radionics and created using Radionic techniques. These can be described as therapeutic commands;
- 2) Presets – patterns found in nature, such as the elements, plants, flowers, microorganisms, metals, colours, chemicals, etc

In the ERA system, selections from various presets are indicated on Chart 9. These include, but are not limited to:

HOMOEOPATHY
 BIO-DYNAMIC RADIONIC ANALOGUES
 GEMS, MINERALS CRYSTALS & ELEMENTS
 FLOWER ESSENCES
 COLOURS AND COLOUR COMBINATIONS
 ELEMENTS AND ELEMENT COMBINATIONS
 INDUSTRIAL AND AGRICULTURAL CHEMICALS

PLANTS, HERBS & MOSSES
MUSHROOMS & FUNGI
ANIMAL EXCREMENTA - VARIOUS FORMS AS FERTILIZING
AGENTS
NEUTRALISATION CODES

Space prevents a discussion of these various Corrections but lists are provided of available remedies<sup>4</sup>. The user can find what is appropriate using the pendulum or other radiesthetic techniques. As an aside, orthodox medicine tends to regard therapies such as Homoeopathy as purely meaningless placebo, but several books and studies have been published on the use of Homoeopathy with plants. We anticipate a further critique as to how Homoeopathy cannot work on plants as a placebo effect cannot be engendered.

Conclusion

In short, the owner of the vineyards was satisfied with the ERA treatments although no data was provided which might assist in evaluation, for example,

- Extent to which surrounding vineyards suffered from fungal attack and other infections and diseases compared to those being treated radionically;
- Calibre and quantity of the harvest, for instance compared with previous years.

To conclude, the possibilities of ERA seem far-reaching but not enough work has been done to produce comparative results which verify that advantages can be conferred over other methods. Time, we hope, will tell.

<sup>4</sup> These lists provide a very large range of possible treatments. The homoeopathic list alone contains around 15000 entries.
