(CLICK HERE After registering; you will receive a confirmation email with a link to join the Zoom meeting.)

What this Masterclass will focus on:

The Pineal gland is both a spiritual and physical doorway to the divine. It is the source and regulator of a wide array of cosmic and chemical messengers that transverse the universe of Darkness and Light.

The Pineal is an erectile organ, which expands consciousness, while it regulates sleep, sexual and circadian cycles. Physical and spiritual outpourings of sacred fluids, such as melatonin, pinoline, psychoactive DMT, and meditative Divine Nectar are attributed to its mysterious actions, which support lucidity and the evolution of thought forms into physical manifestations.

In this session Ellen Kamhi PhD RN, The Natural Nurse, www.naturalnurse.com, will review the physical and spiritual aspects of the holy grail pineal gland, and how to decalcify and activate its actions via the use of specific foods, herbs, dowsing and radionics techniques.

Masterclass # 30: -Alan Kacperski and Allan Rohde presented “Experiences with Preston Nichols and Guy Obolensky over 30 years.”

This video is now available in our Members Section of our website – for free viewing, and in our shop for purchase.

Allan Rohde is an independent research and development associate specializing in creating new applications for Psychotronics from materials science to consciousness research, healing and energy. He was a longtime friend and student of Preston Nichols and Guy Obolensky. He assisted in the development of Guy’s ‘Teslatron’ healing machine over a period of 20 years. He is an honorary lifetime member of the USPA.

Alan Kacperski is an electrical engineer and has been a member of USPA for over 30 years and is currently on the board of directors. His interests are in alternative energy (other than wind and solar.)

This has led him to seek out and meet many unusual people who have built many unusual devices for energy and healing. He accompanied Preston Nichols on a trip to Montauk Point Long Island, and to Michael Bradford's house. Preston demonstrated his amazing sound system for Alan many times.

Guy Obolensky (3/3/2029 – 1/9/2018) was a scientist and inventor whose greatest accomplishment was his Teslatron, a machine in which Al Kacperski was treated in many times. The Als will describe his inventions in detail and his amazing life story. He was an experimental physicist, well known for his research based on the work of Nikola Tesla.

Preston Nichol's (5/24/1946 to 10/5/2018) book chronicles The Montauk Project, claiming it is one of the most amazing and secretive research projects in recorded history. Starting with the "Philadelphia Experiment"; of 1943, invisibility experiments were conducted aboard the USS Eldridge that resulted in full scale teleportation of the ship and crew. Forty years of massive research ensued, culminating in bizarre experiments at Montauk Point that actually tapped the powers of creation and manipulated time itself.

The Montauk Project bridges the modalities of science with the most esoteric techniques ever imagined and finally catapults us to the threshold of the stars. We all know something is out there, but we're not sure exactly what. (And, of course, his books are classified as "Science Fiction.")

USPA is beginning a search for a lifetime patron of the organization, one who will help establish a small permanent library site. USPA has thousands of books in storage, currently under the care of John Reed. He has scanned many of them to PDF to guard against the loss of their information, but in the interest of guarding the digital information against loss, a permanent safe place is needed for the physical books and materials. This would require the gift of a small building, and the funding of a stipend for a part time secretary as well as utilities and upkeep of the building. It is a big dream, but somewhere there must be someone who can help! Contact Scott at uspsychotronics@yahoo.com

From Dan Taylor: Action at a Distance – New Research

The “action-at-a-distance” that we rely upon as radionic practitioners is often the most difficult part for newcomers to comprehend or accept. Similarly, quantum entanglement was a hard pill for many physicists to swallow, even Einstein. And yet the evidence for it is undeniable now, and continues to mount.

July 7, 2022 Michael Irving Reported: “Record-setting quantum entanglement connects two atoms across 20 miles.”

Researchers in Germany have demonstrated quantum entanglement of two atoms separated by 33 km (20.5 miles) of fiber optics. This is a record distance for this kind of communication and marks a breakthrough towards a fast and secure quantum internet.

Quantum entanglement is the uncanny phenomenon where two particles can become so inextricably linked that examining one can tell you about the state of the other. Stranger still, changing something about one particle will instantly alter its partner, no matter how far apart they are. That leads to the unsettling implication that information is being “teleported” faster than the speed of light, an idea that was too much for even Einstein, who famously described it as “spooky action at a distance.”

Despite its apparent impossibility, quantum entanglement has been consistently demonstrated in experiments for decades, with scientists taking advantage of its bizarre nature to quickly transmit data over long distances. And in the new study, researchers from Ludwig-Maximilians-University Munich (LMU) and Saarland University have now broken a distance record for quantum entanglement between two atoms over fiber optics.

In their experiments, the team entangled two rubidium atoms kept in optical traps in two different buildings on the LMU campus. They were separated by 700 m (2,297 ft) of fiber optics, which was extended out to 33 km with extra spools of cable. Each atom was excited with a laser pulse, which causes it to emit a photon that’s quantum entangled with the atom.

The photons are then sent down the fiber optic cables to meet at a receiving station in the middle. There, the photons undergo a joint measurement, which entangles them – and because they’re each already entangled with their own atom, the two atoms become entangled with each other as well.

While photons have been entangled over great distances before, this study marks a new distance record for entangling two atoms, which could function as “quantum memory” nodes, over fiber optics. The key is that the mediating photons were converted into a longer wavelength so that they travel further through the fibers – their natural wavelength of 780 nanometers (nm) means they’d normally be lost after a few kilometers, so before their journey started the team ran them through a device to convert them to a wavelength of 1,517 nm. This is close to the 1,550-nm wavelength commonly used for telecoms in fiber optics, which reduces losses.

The team says this is an important step on the way to realizing a practical quantum internet. Such communications networks would be much faster and more secure than those in use today and, importantly, this study shows that they can operate using existing fiber optic infrastructure. This could be paired with technologies like satellites, which have previously demonstrated the ability to beam entangled photons over thousands of kilometers.

From Scott Beutlich: Dr. James Odell, ND, OMD, L.Ac. Re: Albert Abrams

Dr. Odell was a speaker four times at USPA Conferences. He has presented an in-depth history of Albert Abrams – Father of Radionics – on his website: What follows is a brief touch of this information. Please go to the website to read the entire article!

HISTORY - Albert Abrams

Dr. Albert Abrams was born in San Francisco on December 8, 1863 (differing birth dates have also been reported). He was the son of a successful San Francisco merchant from whom, at an early age, he inherited a sizeable fortune. Despite his wealth, he decided to devote his life and his fortune to the furtherance of medical knowledge.

In 1878, at the age of 15, he enrolled at the Medical College of the Pacific and worked as an assistant to Prof. Douglass and Prof. Hirschfelder. He received a medical degree on October 30, 1881.

Having also mastered the German language, and even though he already held an American M.D., he enrolled as an undergraduate at the University of Heidelberg and graduated with the degrees of M.A. and M.D.

While at Heidelberg, Abrams' brilliance attracted the attention and lasting friendship of his professor, Hermann Ludwig Ferdinand von Helmholtz (1821-1894), a German physician and physicist who made significant contributions in several scientific fields. Abrams later enrolled in postgraduate courses in London, Berlin, Paris and Vienna. In fact, he was one of the most highly trained medical physicians of his time.

Returning to his native San Francisco, Abrams was made Professor of Pathology, and later Director of Medical Studies at Stanford University, California. He devoted most of his time, however, to original research associated with the human nervous system.

Dr. Abrams was elected Vice President of the California State Medical Society in 1889 and became President of the San Francisco Medico-Chirurgical Society in 1893.

By the turn of the century, he had become a respected expert in neurology. In 1904, he was named President of the Emanuel Polyclinic in San Francisco. Little is published of his later personal life, though it is reported that he outlived two wives.

Dr. Abrams published numerous books from 1891 to 1923, and died in San Francisco on January 13, 1924 (from broncho-pneumonia).

In the early 1900s, Dr. Abrams developed a physical medicine technique called spondylotherapy, or spinal reflexology, that was partly inspired by chiropractic and osteopathic practices.

Spondylotherapy

In the early 1900s, Dr. Abrams developed a physical medicine technique called spondylotherapy, or spinal reflexology, that was partly inspired by chiropractic and osteopathic practices.

Spondylotherapy is based on the role of the spinal cord, especially involving autonomic nervous system mechanisms. It views the spinal cord as consisting of 31 segments (8 cervical, 12 thoracic, 5 lumbar, 5 sacral and 1 coccygeal). Each segment (and its associated nerve) serves to innervate organs, glands and tissues. These serve both as part of the central nervous system of a simple reflex arc and as a focal point for the remote onset of synergistic physiological processes often through nerve pathways.

Due to reasons lying in the embryonic evolution of humans, all nerves leaving the spine between two specific intervertebral disks innervate a horizontal slice of the body. Moreover, some innervated areas are arranged in a vertical direction.

The main consequence of this segmentation is that different nerves running to or coming from areas in one and the same segment can interact in the spinal cord. An impulse sent by an inner organ can induce an impulse connected to a specific part of the skin. This phenomenon is now termed the visceral-cutaneous reflex system or reflex arc.

Through the stimulation of nerves originating from the spinal cord, reflex actions on viscera or inner organs may be stimulated. Dr. Abrams performed reflex stimulation with controlled percussion - either with hands or a plexor/pleximeter applied to the spinous processes.

Occasionally, percussion was combined with sinusoidal electric currents and sometimes the application of ice. Dr. Abrams published several editions of his book Spondylotherapy between 1910 and 1918.

A simplified version of Spondylotherapy was first published by Alva Emery Gregory, M.D. in 1914. This technique was later translated into French by Dr. Regnault and published in his book Les méthodes d'Abrams (Maloine editions 1927). Similar acupressure techniques have long been used in traditional Chinese medicine for centuries as Tuina.

Radiesthesia and Electronic Reactions of Abrams

Dr. Abrams then began research in radiesthesia and was the first to design various calibrated instruments capable of assisting in the detection of the disease radiations of the body. He called this diagnostic phenomenon Electronic Reactions of Abrams (E.R.A.) and created several different devices that were used by physicians in the early part of the 20th century.

This raised radiesthesia to a high-tech, subtle-energy level and created the science known today as radionics (Dr. Abrams is considered the “Father of Radionics”). The concept of radiesthesia was known to the ancient Egyptians, Chinese and Babylonians - its use is depicted in their artwork and hieroglyphics. Radiesthesia, though it has been a traditional part of many cultures (the use of dowsing rods or pendulums may date as far back as 7,000 years), is considered by most as a quasi-science and still evokes considerable skepticism.

The basic concept of radiesthesia is that there is interaction or resonance between the mind of the dowser and the object or information being sought. Practitioners refer to this interaction as the use of a kind of sixth sense, or extra sensory perception. It has also been described as a kind of instinct. Some who practice radiesthesia say that as many as 80% of people have the ability to dowse, but many are unaware of it.

Despite the skepticism, many objects have been found with the aid of radiesthesia. Underground springs for water wells might be the best known. However, the list is long and includes animals, plants, minerals, lost objects and even people.

Practitioners specializing in this field list several uses of radiesthesia for health purposes. They claim that, in addition to locating areas and causes of disease, dowsing particularly with pendulums or biotensors can indicate the body's energetic or nonphysical health condition as well as guide in the selection of appropriate remedies.

Radiesthesia tools rely on the skill of the operator much like a stethoscope. A stethoscope must be used properly to be an effective diagnostic tool, and this is also the case of dowsing rods, biotensor rods, pendulums and radionic equipment. These are all subjective diagnostic tools that are dependent on the skill of the user. Some individuals are quite adept at using radiesthesia devices to detect abnormal health conditions. Whereas, others are not.

The name "radionics" is somewhat misleading, as this form of diagnosis and therapy has nothing to do with radio or radio waves - nor does it have anything to do with electronics. As applied to medicine, radionics is an art by which diagnostic data is obtained through use of equipment which enables a trained operator to detect and measure differential radiations by the different organs and tissues of the body. Other uses of radionics equipment includes detecting and determining the location of disease in the body, measuring the amplitude of various types of pathology and health conditions of tissue, and locating and measuring any foreign micro-organisms, and other irritant factors that contribute to disease.

Radionic analysis is not a medical analysis in the strict sense, as it assesses the energy-body of the patient (not the physical organs). By identifying energy imbalances and disease patterns at the pre-physical level, radionics can recognize the underlying causes that later manifest as physical conditions.

Radionic detection equipment has also been used to determine whether a remedy (such as a vitamin, mineral, homeopathic substance or nutritional concentrate) is helpful for a certain organ, system or function of the body. Later radionics instruments were developed for treatment and even "broadcasting" information or subtle forms of energy for treatment at a distance. Keep in mind that all healing is self-healing. The radionic means which the practitioner uses (including numerical rates or geometric card patterns) are simply triggers which put the self-healing process to work in the patient.

At the core of radionic theory and practice is the concept that humans - along with all other life forms - are submerged in the electro-magnetic energy field of the Earth; and further, that each life form has its own electromagnetic field or signature frequencies. If these frequencies become distorted, then disease develops. Hence, radionic practitioners view organs, diseases and remedies as having their own frequency or vibrational rate. This idea is now central to modern quantum physics, but in the early 1900s was considered quite radical.

Dr. Abrams was passionate about designing radionic instrumentation that would both simplify and increase the accuracy of traditional radiesthesia tools. He taught radionics and published several papers and books. The first book devoted exclusively to the development of E.R.A. was Dr. Abrams' New Concepts in Diagnosis and Treatment, published about 1916. This followed very closely upon Spondylotherapy editions referring to E.R.A. Many of the preliminary experiments which led to the development of E.R.A. are detailed in the book New Concepts in Diagnosis and Treatment.

From the pages of Borderlands Research: Darrell Butcher – Discovering His Concepts

Darrell Butcher – Creator of the First Automatic Radionic Instrument

Is this too wild a claim to make? I think not, and my reasons will follow. But to answer the question adequately, it is first necessary to endeavour to understand Butcher's thinking, for he never did anything without a reason.

Much of his life was spent as an aircraft engineer, a career which proved invaluable when in the 1950s he became interested in Radionics, and which led to years of unique experiment and research.

In the beginning he found himself unable to use the conventional means of registering the Radionic impulse by 'stick-pad' or pendulum, but where most men would have given in and sought another field of endeavour, he, with his creative faculty and technical skill, overcame this obstacle by the simple expedient of designing his own very personal instruments. Some, at least, appear to work entirely on their own, whilst others make use of the operator's mind.

As yet undisclosed information about his experiments has come to light, together with interesting comments by himself. These I propose to give, together with illustrations and descriptions of eight of his instruments.

But before doing so, I must pay tribute to his exceptional creative ability, and to the quite exquisite precision work in their construction. He made every piece of equipment himself, and all of these are masterpieces of design and craftsmanship. These I will show with photographs.

With the exception of Pegotty, I found his instruments far too time-consuming for everyday work, but I could and did use them all in his laboratory and in my home.

Whilst describing his work I will give notes of what he had in mind and indicate his own words in quotes:

"We are going to discuss the Downpouring first. This is a known force. It has been given many names. I am of the personal opinion that different people are able to attract different amounts of this force, but it is always with us. And that it does come down vertically under normal circumstances and this can only be made use of if we abide by the laws of light, one of which states that: 'Vibrations of the ether take place, not in the direction of the wave, but in a plane at right angles to it, and the latter are called transversal vibrations'. This is from Ganot's Physics."

"The meter is only important to those people who cannot use the 'stick' or pendulum. The Meter was necessary to me because I was quite unable to operate either of these. Which has been one great asset all the way through the 14 years of experimentation. Having to use a Meter one has had a useful form of comparison. For that is what all meters are. They are comparators. Meters have been of different sizes and shapes during all this time. The latest one, which is thought to be the best, though I do not suppose it will be the last, is very simple." I will now describe his instruments beginning with the Meter.

Meter I

I believe that this was one of his early efforts. It is made of black perspex with a circular band 1" deep and the circumference 6" in diameter. On the top and bottom are fixed black hexagonal perspex plates. The central portion is covered to hide all working parts, with the exception of a white perspex measuring dial and a needle arm protruding from the suspension mechanism. On the top is a small black ring with a hole in it, presumably for a needle on which can be balanced a small metal holder for the patient's sample. The feet are adjustable for levelling. When the cover is removed we find underneath the needle suspension frame – a plate 5-1/2" in diameter, with a clearly engraved Archimedian Spiral and extending from the centre a carefully bevelled slit to the extremity.

Internal Plate

Part of the Archimedian Spiral is covered with black paper of similar design. On the inside of the central frame will be seen a beautifully engraved design of an arrow on transparent perspex 6" long and 1" deep at one end. This must have been engraved flat and then bent to fit into the Meter.

Arrow Pattern

Meter 2

In all other Meters I have seen the framework is rectangular. Needles appear to have been of different designs. In this Meter the Archimedian Spiral lies on the base and is made of black paper.

Meter 3

Here again we have a black base, but above it and under the needle suspension we find a different item which can only be appreciated from the following photograph.

Meter III

"It has been ascertained that a cone made of thin paper, suspended freely, will revolve clockwise when in the presence of a human aura; I consider that the Fundamental Force comes into this, and in order for us, as human beings, to use it we have first to turn it into a spiral and that is why one hears so much about spirals in Radionics."

"When the operator is facing a patient and a machine at resonance, the meter reacts in a clockwise direction taking up the spiral of the operator. Or that's what appears to happen. And that is the basis of our diagnosis."

"All this was made use of in the latest model and a form of cone was simulated within the rotar bar. The rotar bar itself which supports the needle has a small pin magnet and this is repelled by two other pin magnets, one at each side of the meter. The whole thing is adjustable for centering. And that broadly speaking is the meter."

This article is quite lengthy. For the "rest of the story," please go to Borderlands' website here: <https://web.archive.org/web/20150207205451/http://borderlandresearch.com/book/radionic-truths/darrell-butcher>

NASA reveals Webb telescope's new images of stars, galaxies and an exoplanet

By Ashley Strickland, CNN

Updated Fri July 15, 2022

A stellar nursery where stars are born, interactions between galaxies and a unique view of an exoplanet are just some of the new cosmic images were shared Tuesday.

After decades of waiting, it's finally time for the world to see the first images taken by the most powerful space telescope ever -- the James Webb Space Telescope. Development of the world's premier space observatory began in 2004, and after years of delays, the telescope and its massive gold mirror finally launched on December 25.

The images are worth the wait -- and they will forever change the way we see the universe. President Joe Biden released one of Webb's first images on Monday, and it is "the deepest and sharpest infrared image of the distant universe to date," according to NASA. The rest of the high-resolution color images made their debut on Tuesday.

This side by side comparison shows observations of the southern ring nebula in near infrared light, left, and mid infrared light, right, from NASA's Webb telescope. The southern ring nebula is 2000 light years away from Earth. This large planetary nebula includes an expanding cloud of gas around a dying star as well as a secondary star early on in its evolution.

Positive Energy Needed:

You choose the form -- prayer, meditation, laughter, silence, random acts of kindness, the 'attitude of gratitude,' yoga, humming, singing or a simple nature walk. As you perform these things keep in mind those in need; share the energy that you 'create,' and send it out.

Research Question: Regarding the Quantec system

A member asked: "I was wondering if there is anyone in the USPA you can put me in touch with that is currently (or in the past) using Peter von Buengner's Quantec system (also called bio-communication)?" If you have any information to share, please contact Scott and he will pass it along to the person who asked. Scott's Email

The Library Lion: John Reed

The backbone of this work is John Reed, USPA's Master Librarian, (former Newsletter Editor and Current Board Member.) John is adding out of print, open copyright books to the library for anyone to download.

John is hoping a Publications Packrat like him will have what is missing. He is creating a digital library by scanning every out of print book, series of newsletters and magazine articles that he can lay his hands on relevant to psychotronics, radionics and sister fields. As his database grows, he will share updates via this newsletter and our website. From John:

Missing Newsletters of USPA Chapters

The USPA national organization started in the late 1970's, and over the years, at least 25 local chapters were formed. Some, but not all, of these chapters published a newsletter telling about the activities of the local chapter. The USPA Library is attempting to identify all of the chapters that published newsletters, and to obtain copies of all issues of the chapter newsletters that were ever published.

We only have a few issues of such newsletters in the USPA Library, from such chapters as the Eugene Chapter in Eugene, Oregon; the Phoenix Chapter in Yellow Springs, Ohio; the Zenith Chapter in Cleveland, Ohio; the Northern California chapter in Yuba City, CA, and the New York City Chapter.

If you have copies of any USPA chapter newsletters, please write to the USPA Librarian and Archivist, John Reed at: joreed43@gmail.com. If you have issues of chapter newsletters, but wish to keep them, please make a xerox copy, scan, and send it to John at the above email address. If you wish to have the physical copies preserved in the USPA Library, please let John know, so that shipping arrangements can be made. All shipping costs will be paid for by the USPA Librarian.

REWARD ..OFFERED

Attention bounty hunters!

To help our librarian, John Reed in his quests for missing journals, newsletters, articles and manuals, a reward of one free audio or video download from the USPS shop is offered per item captured.

There is no limit on receiving this bounty as many, many items will be added to this list. Your participation in the search is highly participated appreciated!

Section VIII - USPA Publications: Proceedings and Journals are Digitized and in the Shop!!

Quick Background of our Proceedings Evolution

Since its first meeting in 1975, hundreds of top scientists, educators and researchers have made presentations at USPAs annual conferences. They are from the leading edges of their fields, especially regarding the phenomena of Mind-Body connection, energy and emerging technologies. The first audio recordings were made in 1978.

Then, in 1985, USPA produced a perfect-bound Proceedings book for its tenth conference. The proceedings went through quite an evolution, much like our audio and video presentations. In 2010 they went through a “final” stage and the proceedings are now produced as pdf documents.

6 USPA Journals and 18 out of 19 Proceedings are now available for purchase.

The 6 USPA Journals and 18 of our 19 Annual Proceedings can be purchased in pdf format from our webstore at:

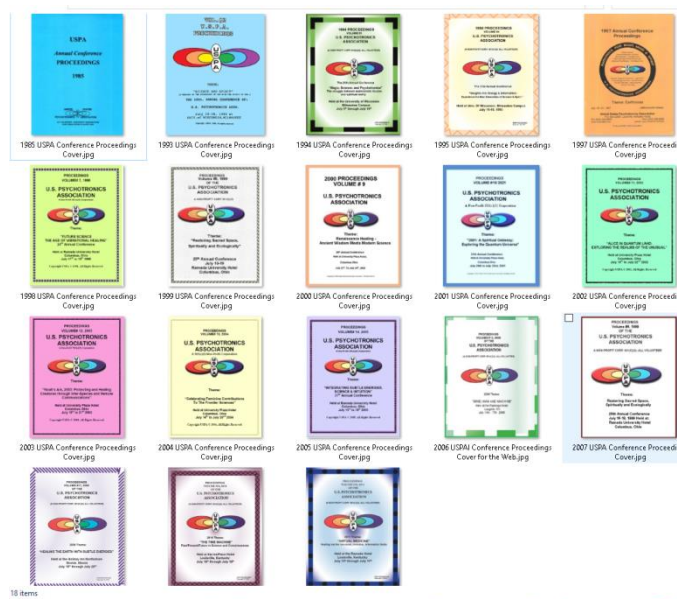

<https://www.psychotronics.org/product-category/uspa-publications-journals-proceedings/>

All USPA publications are copyright protected and are property of the USPA. They may not be reprinted without permission of the Board of USPA.

What is USPA?

The United States Psychotronics Association (USPA) is a federally recognized, nonprofit 501(c)(3) organization founded in 1975 to serve as a focal point for scientific and technical exploration of the universe of esoteric, spiritual, and psychic arts in the United States of America.

The USPA has been hosting annual conferences for its membership since its formation and has featured countless individuals with cutting-edge viewpoints, research, or theories to share, allowing any interested persons to openly discuss their work.

What is Psychotronics?

USPA defines psychotronics as the science of mind-body-environment relationships, an interdisciplinary science concerned with the interactions of matter, energy, and consciousness.

Psychotronics involves the study, research, and applications of the physics and technology of the mind, brain, spirit, consciousness, and the underlying forces of life and nature – hence the term “psychotronics.” A true understanding of the universe must include the spiritual as well as the technical. USPA provides an opportunity for amateur researchers to present their findings along with the professionals. USPA stresses research, with documentation of results, and practical applications, rather than personal experience and unsupported hypotheses.

Section XIII - Our Donors

USPA Generous Donors Recognition Page

The USPA would like to give special recognition on a continuing basis to people who have made generous donations to the United States Psychotronics Association in past years.

This special “USPA Generous Donors Recognition Page” will be carried in each issue of the USPA Journal & Newsletter, and new names will be added as donations are received.

HONORING MY FATHER & MOTHER by Samm Simpson

HONORING MY FATHER & MOTHER

by Samm Simpson

ISBN 9781645508120

Sam began as a radio broadcaster in the 1970s. Television followed, along with seasons of political and social activism. She's written thousands of TV and radio scripts, produced and directed hundreds of TV and radio broadcasts and penned a bevy of unpublished short stories and poems. This is her first book. As a child, she was acquainted with a love for truth. She was acquainted with grief. Both polarities endured. Sam remains a child, working out her own salvation with fear and trembling

Samm Simpson says,

“On the thirty first day of the first pagan month in the year numbered 2019, my mother, Lila Lee Simpson, said goodbye to this bountiful Earth, a destiny awaiting all living beings. Her body shone luminous and the day was miraculous. I had the honor and privilege of being with her and laying her body to rest as it should be – intact, whole, no embalming, no cremation, no funeral industry chemicals, body plugs, wires, glues or make up. The story grew much larger than a simple descriptive narrative. It morphed into a tale of my idyllic childhood, seen through the lens of America's self-destruction and fall from grace.

You will read of miracles as well as be exposed to difficult or uncomfortable topics. At the time of this writing, they were not yet banned. You are under no obligation to believe what I've written. But, while a semblance of freedom to think independently still exists, I urge you to do your own research until books are burned and Big Tech fully sanitizes the internet.”

One reader commented: "I loved how it weaved an America that used to be, with miracles of an amazing death and burial, along with hard core truths that help explain the madness of today's culture.”

Another wrote: I would make this required reading for students. This book is about a different time, not so long ago in our society where we lived and played as family and neighbors. The title alone tells you what has long been forgotten, as so many don't even know who their parents are in this life. Those who do their parents are sons and daughters of the greatest generation. This is what broke our society. This is a book that demonstrates those who understand what has been lost, and how they chose to honor their parents in life as well as when they left our world.

This book will be cherished by all who read it, those who also honor their mother and father. Hopefully broken families will understand what it takes to break this cycle and will want to, after reading this book.

Section XV – J.G. Gallimore’s Five Rare Books Are Now Available!

Jerry G. Gallimore was one of the founders of the USPA in 1975, and was a leading researcher in psychotronics and unusual energies until his untimely death in 1989.

All five of J.G. Gallimore’s rare books on psychotronics subjects and unusual energies have been reprinted by the United States Psychotronics Association (USPA) and are being made available at a fraction of the cost that used copies were being sold at online.

So rare have these books been, that only a few libraries in the entire world had them in their collections, and some original Gallimore’s books were being sold for several hundred dollars each online. However, with these newly reprinted volumes, each will be available for less than $30.00. All are:

| Relationship Between Parapsychology and Gravity: Volume 3 | ISBN-10: 1543024947 ISBN-13: 978-1543024944 | The third book of three volumes on unusual energies | 228 Pages |

This book describes in depth the research and theories of J.G. Gallimore into the question of "parapsychology transmission" -the question of how such things as telepathy, remote viewing, ESP, and similar phenomena can physically occur.

He discusses the various emanations, radiations, and energy fields of all matter and life including the ancient Chinese energy called "chi" (qi), the ancient Indian's prana energy, Reichenback's "odic force," Gurwitsch's "mitogenic radiation," Wilhelm Reich's orgone energy, and other subtle energies. He shows how all of these energies are similar, how they interact, and how they are related to gravity.

He also discusses crystals as transducers of these energies, and provides diagrams of devices that could potentially be used to harness or control these energies.

This book covers the visionary research and theories developed by J.G. Gallimore about anti-gravity, space, time, and biophysics. He discusses in depth the dimensions of space, time, and gravity, and new discoveries in each of these areas. In addition, he covers research being done on anti-gravity and then discusses anti-gravity patents that have been obtained.

He also discusses the intriguing concept of aura energy fields surrounding humans and other living things, and how extra-sensory perception (ESP) might be explained through biophysical principles.

This book is about psychotronics, radionics, electromagnetic fields and waves, psi-plasma, plasma fields, subtle energies, bio-electromagnetic energy, and other unusual energies emitted by living and non-living things. It also is about how living things interact with and are affected by these energies, which may enhance health or harm health.

The book covers the research of Wilhelm Reich on Orgone energy, of Baron Reichenback on the odic forces, as well as research done by Cazzamalli on brain radiations and Lakhovsky on using high frequency radiations to successfully treat cancer in humans. In addition, Lakhovsky used similar methods to enhance the growth of plants. Gallimore shows how these energies, forces, and fields are all inter-related and provides hypotheses and ideas on their possible unification.
