Tom Bearden on Scalar Interferometry

SOVIET WEATHER WARFARE OVER NORTH AMERICA Thomas E. Bearden (Abstract)

Shortly before the death of Leonid Brezhnev, the Soviet Union began "adjusting-in" a scalar interferometry grid across North America. The purpose of the grid, produced interfering scalar beams from giant scalar wave transmitters in Russia, was to directly influence the weather over the North American continent.

The adjustments left a signature: a series of microquakes in the earth and a series of anomalous "airquakes" across the country. The grid adjustment was apparently completed by February/March '83.

With completion of the scalar grid, direct influence on North American weather began in earnest. Storm after storm hammered the California coast, then moved across the Rockies, dipped sharply down across Texas and Oklahoma, moved across Louisiana, Mississippi, and Alabama/Tennessee, and turned in Georgia to move along the Adirondack chain, wreaking havoc all along the way. The giant jet streams dipped down in the center of the U.S. with a classic bend that was repeated over and over again.

Then, in the summer, drought conditions struck much of the U.S. heartland. About half the nation's corn crop was lost, for example.

The winter of 1983-84 was particularly enlightening. Classic signatures appeared in the clouds at many places throughout the nation. During Christmas, cold records were broken in some 21 states and 60 cities. At least a dozen cities reported all-time low December temperatures. (Yet in Europe it was unseasonably warm.) Storm activities across the U.S. were unusual and included floods, extra heavy snow, extreme low temperatures, etc.

El Nino is a famous warming disturbance in the waters of the Pacific Ocean. It usually occurs every decade and brings heavy rains to parts of South America. In April, 1983 the New York Times reported that El Nino was much more extensive than usual and that it was displaced far to the east of its normal location. Almost the entire eastern Pacific was affected. This drastic change in El Nino produced drastic consequences: a giant flip-flop of much of the world's weather occurred, with particularly severe results experienced in North America and Australia.

In early 1984 the floods began again, with spring flooding in Utah and Wyoming reaching record levels. The remnant of a giant radial cloud pattern (a signature) was photographed over Huntsville, Alabama by the author. Anomalous airquakes over a large area of Tennessee and Alabama again occurred, possibly as a result of additional Soviet adjustments of the scalar grid.

In a one-year period, the lowest pressure ever recorded and the highest pressure ever recorded both occurred -- an unusual "coincidence," to say the least.

In this address, the author briefly presents the fundamental concepts of scalar electromagnetic theory. He cites specific references to show that the basic scalar mechanisms have existed in the scientific literature for 25 years, and have been experimentally proven for 24 years. The mechanisms and effects occur even in the presence of zero electric and magnetic fields, and so do not appear in classical electromagnetics theory.

These effects are lumped together in what are called the "Bohm-Aharonov" (BA) effects in quantum physics. These effects are absolutely required by quantum mechanics. But since they do not occur in ordinary EM theory, they are presently unknown to conventional Western scientists and engineers, who have ignored the zero-field effects. For example, it appears that a statement of the weapons implications of the BA effects does not even exist in the Western literature prior to papers by this author. Obviously, in such an absence, our intelligence analysts have not known of the effects and their implications. They have also not collated a picture of the Soviet scalar weapon development, testing, and overt use against the U.S. in hostile actions.

The author points out that an artificial potential can be produced by deliberately opposing electric or magnetic fields so that they vectorially sum to zero. The result becomes a "zero-vector field" insofar as resultant or "envelope" fields and external observers are concerned. This field has no electric or magnetic field, yet it possesses a multi-field substructure. It is a stress in spacetime vacuum itself. By varying the substructure vector components, with the resultants always summing to zero, a pure scalar potential wave -- spatiotemporal stress wave -- can be produced.

Each of the component electric and magnetic force fields in the zero summation are still inclusively present, though not exclusively present to an external observer. Thus all the component energies are "infolded" against each other and locked-in as stress energy of vacuum, even though the wave possesses no "envelope" force field magnitude and hence no ordinary electromagnetic energy.

By interfering two beams of such scalar waves at a distance, a scalar interferometer is produced. Energy may be PRODUCED at the distant interference site, or it may be EXTRACTED FROM that distant site. At any rate, no EM energy as such flows in the intervening space between the transmitters and the distant target site. This is Tesla's old "transmission of energy at a distance without losses," and scalar interferometry was his secret.

By adding energy at a distant interference site -- say over North America -- a high pressure area results at the target site. By extracting energy from the distant interference site, a low pressure area results at the target. By slow rotation of the transmitters, the entire distant interference zones -- and the highs and lows -- can be moved along. This scheme then allows the capturing and movement of huge cloud masses, direct manipulation of high and low pressure areas, diversion of jet streams, and extensive Soviet control over the weather patterns of North America.

Further, since scalar waves can travel through the ocean or through the earth with only limited attenuation, it is very likely that Soviet scalar interferometer transmitters were responsible for the highly anomalous location, appearance, and intensity of El Nino in 1982/1983.

There is extensive evidence in the open literature for Soviet testing of scalar electromagnetic weapons on a global scale during the last two decades. Massive instances of sudden strong cooling of large areas have occurred as near-explosions of cold, up to 150 miles in diameter, at least 78 times since 1974. A recent spectacular example occurred off the coast of Japan, 200 miles from Tokyo, on April 9, 1984.

Large-scale, massive Soviet weather engineering over North America is a fact. Overt acts of weather war have been accomplished against North America by the Soviet Union, and American citizens have already been killed in the war.

The author urges that this problem be brought to the attention of the international community of nations, and that scalar electromagnetic defensive weapons be developed by the U.S. as a matter of the highest national priority.

NEW GEO-MAGNETOMETER DETECTS GEOPATHIC DISTURBANCE FIELDS

Richard Powers & Nancy Turner
(Abstract)

Various "tell-tale" plant growth patterns, such as rotation and/or spiraling of bark lines, have been found in a geopathically disturbed area.

Research has shown that a geopathically disturbed zone will demonstrate an alteration of several physical phenomena such as changes in ionization states, temperature variations, acoustical anomalies, etc.

Numerous measurements have demonstrated that there is an alteration of the geomagnetic fields over a geopathic disturbance area. It has been determined that an abrupt change in the strength of the earth's magnetic field -- approximately 3000 nanoTesla or more over an expanse of 50 cm. or less -- will indicate the presence of a significant, biologically hazardous geopathic burden. The greater the change in magnetic field strength (over the shortest distance) the stronger the geopathic disturbance.

Although a geopathic zone rarely affects healthy persons to a significant degree, experiments have revealed that susceptible individuals will demonstrate aberrations of physiological processes involving cell permeability, oxygen utilization, colloidal fluid systems, electroacupuncture measurements, etc., over geopathically disturbed fields.

The Geo-Magnetometer BPM 2001 is an extremely sensitive instrument capable of measuring these ultra-fine alterations of the earth's magnetic location of the disturbance fields, as well as their source. It is an invaluable tool for the physician aware of the pathophysiological relationship between ill health and geopathic stress.

INTERACTIONS OF WEAK NON-LINEAR ELF EM FIELDS WITH BIOLOGICAL PROCESSES

Eldon A. Byrd
(Abstract)

Recent work indicates profound alterations of biological processes in cells, organs, and organisms under the influence of certain types of non-linear, weak, EM (mostly magnetic) ELF fields. These effects include: reprogramming of DNA genetic codes (in human leukemia cells and in inherited characteristics in whole organisms), entrainment of DNA replication, direct interaction with the self-generated fields of growing embryos, regeneration of amputated mammal limbs, and marked slowing of the aging process.

A model has been developed to explain the mechanisms which may contribute to the observed interactions. A simplified version is presented which includes soliton interaction with glycoproteins in cell membranes and how the energy can be transferred into chemical processes inside cells.

The implications of this new technology are discussed. Also, how early work by USPA members paved the way toward the development of what may turn out to be the most important discoveries in the history of mankind.

Ruth Harvey Tells About
the Alpha-Stim

ELF USE OF THE ALPHA-STIM

Ruth Harvey
(Abstract)

A new modality for pain control utilizing extremely low frequencies -- in the 0.5 to 10 Hz range -- will be presented. According to recent research, this low-frequency, low-amperage modality is helpful in neurological disorders, tinnitus, sinus disease, peripheral vascular disease and tardive dyskinesia.

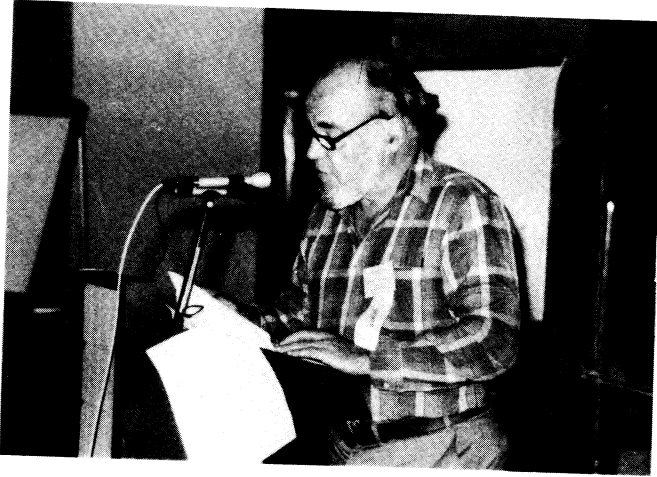

We continually see similar results from a very good healer. It was because of the observed similarities in results of healer and machine that I became convinced something in the nature of a common denominator was at work. The Alpha-Stim measures electrical conductivity in the body. An area of pathology is highly resistant to electrical flow. A successful treatment is denoted by a biofeedback mechanism telling us that the area is now highly conductive.

Several excellent healers have been tested and each has been able to raise the conductivity in the healee in the same measure as the Alpha-Stim is designed to administer.

Dr. Robert Becker has proposed an "analog data transmission system" composed of the perineurial cells which sheathe the entire nervous system. This system is involved in the receipt of damage or injury stimuli and in the control of the various growth processes of repair, including regeneration. Its nature renders it susceptible to perturbation by electrical and magnetic fields. I am proposing here that perhaps it is this same data transmission system that receives the stimulus from a healer.

Chris Bird has "The Alchemy of Life" well in hand

THE ALCHEMY OF LIFE--ENVIRONMENTAL EFFECTS ON DNA DETECTED BY DOWSING

Christopher Bird

(Abstract)

A survey of research applying to the psychotronic field is presented. It is based on meetings with various French scientists working quietly, if not "underground." The survey will particularly, but not exclusively, center on the appearance this year of a book The Alchemy of Life-Biology and Tradition (in French). The "tradition" is that of alchemy and astrology.

The authors are Etienne Guille and Christine Hardy. Guille is a doctor of sciences, professor in mathematics, and molecular biologist who for years has been studying mechanisms of animal and human cancer at the University of Paris - South (Orsay) and at the Curie Institute. Hardy is a psychosociologist who has worked for several years on states of consciousness and thought processes.

The book addresses research in the functioning of DNA and the effects on that molecule from the environment. Of particular interest is the fact that the researchers used dowsing as one of 5 techniques to elicit information through measurement of various parameters in a highly complex area of investigation. The four other techniques included a) the sensitive crystallizations developed over 40 years ago by Pfeiffer (and largely ignored by science), and b) a form of spectroscopy which has revealed 5 types of water.

The book jacket states that "Proposed herein is a new way of reading genetic information contained in our chromosomes."

AT THE 1984 CONFERENCE:

THE ORGANON OF MEDICINE
Mary Hardy
(Abstract)

The science of Homeopathy is based on a group of laws which are recorded in the ORGANON OF MEDICINE, written in the early 1800's by the author of Homeopathy, Samuel Hahnemann. At that time the scientists of the world did not understand electricity or the fields of electrical energy. The laws of Homeopathy as they are stated in the ORGANON OF MEDICINE relate to, and can be explained fully, only by understanding that these laws refer to the electrical field which surrounds the body. Homeopathy is a science designed to balance the electrical field, commonly known as the AURA. The proof that this field exists became a reality with the advent of Kirlian photography. We can now take a picture of this energy field using the Kirlian technique of photography. The aura's energy field can only be recorded by electronic cameras because the aura is a field which exists at or above the speed of light.

But if the scientists in the 1800's could not prove the existence of the electromagnetic field around the body, how did Hahnemann develop a science designed to balance the aura? Samuel Hahnemann was a student of Alchemy. Alchemy is based on a set of scientific laws which explain the wisdom of the subatomic realm--the realm of the very small energy particle where subatomic particles travel above the speed of light.

History often mentioned Alchemists as searching for a way to change lead into gold. To achieve this ability to change matter we must alter the electromagnetic structure of the atom itself. To alter the structure of the atom one would have to accelerate its composite particles. In effect, this is how the Homeopathic remedies are prepared. They are potentized into a faster than the speed of light substance by a practitioner who dilutes and succusses the remedy. A chemist cannot find a physical trace of the chemical substance in a remedy which is potentized beyond 12C because that remedy has been diluted to one 12,000,000,000,000,000,000,000 of the mother tincture. The particles within the remedy are traveling faster than the speed of light. The Alchemists and Homeopaths work with the simple laws of the subatomic realm; the wisdom of changing the atomic structure of matter.

Let us consider the Caduceus as a symbol of the wisdom which can change matter into a magnetic field traveling faster than the speed of light. Where did the Caduceus symbol come from? What does it mean? The symbol represents a Standing Columnar Wave or Solitron. It also represents the human aura, which is an energy pattern which functions in the form of a Standing Columnar Wave (SCW). The laws of Alchemy and Homeopathy are based on the reality of SCW energy. We assume this energy pattern forces the particles of the atom to travel faster than the speed of light, changing the consistency of matter. We feel the Caduceus effect signifies a wisdom which can bring the aura into balance and thus free human beings from disease. The Caduceus is the secret symbol of Alchemy.

Elizabeth Rauscher holds forth
on PK models

SOME MODELS OF PSYCHO-KINESIS AND HUMAN VOLITIONAL REMOTE INTERACTION
Elizabeth Rauscher
(Abstract)

In attempting to understand the nature of human consciousness and its self-organizing abilities, a particular attribute of consciousness, termed psychokinesis (PK) (mind-motion), has been under study. PK is defined as remote (from the human body) interaction with external processes of matter and energy. Targets of remote human volitional intentional (and non-intentional) interaction can be either animate (such as bacterial cultures) or inanimate (metal, crystals, etc.). In one model of the mind/body interaction, the mind operates the body by PK in this dualistic model. PK is a phenomenon which is part of the whole life process and is self-organizing and negentropic.

A theoretical model has been developed which accomodates such a phenomenon and does not violate the main tenets of physics. This model demonstrates a manner in which the mind can transcend space and time and remotely affect matter and energy. It allows a domain of action of consciousness in physical reality. Also, such issues as the so-called quantum measurement problem and the "Schrodinger cat paradox" appear to be resolved by such a model. Negentropic processes and self-organization processes result from non-linear effects in this geometric model which involves a multi-dimensional complexified geometry with a twister algebra and Higgs field monopole.

Extensive experimental examination of psychokinetic effects and properties have also been conducted. Dr. Beverly Rulick has conducted four major studies of a healer's "laying on of hands" effect on sterile cultures of bacteria, increasing growth rate and motility (or movement) over real time controls. This research was conducted through San Francisco State University and funded by the Holmes Foundation and Tecnic Research Laboratories. Further work is in progress and some replication studies at other laboratories are under way.

A study is also under way on human volitional interaction over distance (8 to 2000 km) on thermometer, electrolysis cell, and other electrical components.
